DETECTIVE FORCE REORGANIZATION IN EFFECT TODAY

City Divided Into Three Districts With Total of 219 Men Detailed to Plain Clothes Duty.

SPECIAL PROVISION TO GUARD ROADS

Four Squads of Nine Men Each to Be Equipped With Autos Carrying Searchlights.

A complete reorganization of the detective forces of the Police Department, with 219 detailed to plain clothes duty where there were only 165 before Robert Kaiser became Chief of Detectives, will go into effect at 10 a. m. today. Maj. Kaiser will explain his plans to the new force at Police Headquarters at that time.

Division of the city into detective precints and special provision for the guarding of roads and bridges leading into the city are features of the reorganization through which Kaiser says he will stamp out organized crime.

In addition to the shakeup of the detective forces, the shift in the uniformed Captains and Lieutenants also goes into effect today. It has been told, all but six of the Captains o nthe force were reassigned last week by the new Board of Police Commissioners to posts where they could do better work.

Three Detective Districts.

Under Kaiser's new detective organization plan the city will be divided into three districts. The First Detective District will be under Lieut. T. George Dineen., the Second under Lieut. Andrew Aylward, and the Third under Sergt. Ben Heggeman, Acting Lieutenant, who was formerly Kaiser's riding partner and played a part in the mail robbery cases against members of the Egan gang.

Under these detective districts will be eight detective precincts, each in charge of a Detective Sergeant. Precincts A and B will be in the First Detective District; Precincts E, F and G in the Second Detective District; Precincts C, D and H in the Third Detective District.

The commanding officers of the detective districts will have desks in the old Homicide Bureau room at Police Headquarters and will keep in close touch with Maj. Kaiser. The Detective Sergeants commanding the precincts will have offices in the district police stations.

To the detective precincts will be assigned 88 detectives, exclusive of the Sergeants. They have been assigned as follows: Precinct A, eight men; Precinct B, six; Precinct C, six; Precinct D, 14; Precinct E, 18; Precinct F, six; Precinct G, 10, including two negroes; Precinct H, 12. These assignments are exclusive of the Sergeants in command.

Provisions for Guarding Roads.

Kaiser's special provisions for guarding the roads into St. Louis will take 36 more men equipped with automobiles. These will be divided into squads of nine men each to be detailed to one of the four outlying sections of the town, to be designated south, southwest, northwest and north.

Three men of each crew of nine will be on duty at all hours on eight-hour shifts, patrolling the roads leading into the city. They will be equipped with the latest of arms and their speedy automobiles will carry high-powered searchlights and other late police equipment. The riding squads will work under the Lieutenants in command of the detective districts and will be entirely separate from the precinct details.

To complete the provisions for guarding tne entrances to the city [illegible] more detectives will be assigned to the bridges. Details of six men will be assigned to each of the three bridges, the Municipal, McKinley and Eads. Two men, working on eight-hour shifts, will be on duty on the spans day and night. Working with them will be one uniformed patrolman. He is provided to forestall any likelihood of the plainclothes men being fired upon as supposed highwaymen. The bridge details will also work under the commanders of the detective districts. The Terminal Railroad Association has already

TEXAS WOMAN FLOGS MINISTER ON PUBLIC SQUARE

Widow Flails Baptist Circuit Rider for an Alleged Remark Reflecting on Her Character.

By the Associated Press.

WEATHERFORD, Tex., April 18.—Mrs. Beulah Collins, 36, a widow, with a buggy whip publicly flogged a circuit rider on the courthouse square today for an alleged remark reflecting on her character.

Mrs. Collins plied the buggy whip in business-like fashion, literally "wearing it out," witnesses said, on the person of her victim, the Rev. J. T. Lunford, Parker County Baptist missionary, who did not retreat under the woman's flailing, but shouted for the police. No charge has been filed in connection with the affair tonight.

Witnesses who viewed the whipping said there were no preliminaries to the action. Mrs. Collins brought the whip down on face, arms, legs and back of the missionary, viewers said, stopping only when she was virtually exhausted.

FOUND HANGED AS FIANCEE WAITS FOR HIM AT CHURCH

Body of Man Discovered Swinging From Tree Near Schiller Park in Chicago.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, April 18.—While Miss Mamie Broaker of Franklin Park waited at the church at noon today to be married to Walter Piske, 25 years old, his body was swaying from a tree in the forest preserve near Schiller Park. There are no marks on the tree to show that he climbed it and leaped to his death.

His automobile was found near the body by a caretaker, but when the caretaker hastened to a telephone to report the death, someone drove the car to a distant point, where it was found later.

NO POISONS ARE FOUND IN BODY OF DR. OSCAR OLSON

Only Small Amount of Mercury, Probably Medicine, in Organs, Chemist Reports.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 18.—Except for a small amount of mercury which Dr. W. D. McNally, Coroner's chemist, said he believed due to medication, no poisons were found in the examination of the vital organs of Dr. Oscar Olson, whose body was exhumed in connection with the investigation into the death of William Nelson McClintock, millionaire orphan, the doctor's report to Coroner Oscar Wolff tonight said.

VOTE 60 TO 1 FOR CRIME NEWS

Subscribers' Demand Causes Paper to Lift Ban on It.

By the Associated Press.

FAYETTEVILLE, N. C., April 18.—After one week of a scheduled two weeks' experiment of not printing any crime news fact the Observer today announced in "response to an overwhelming public demand" for crime news, abandonment of the experiment.

The management of the paper stated that sentiment of its readers as determined by a poll on the subject was 60 to 1 in favor of publishing crime items. It was stated that the week's experiment had an appreciable effect on circulation during the trial period.

NEARY GETS 30 YEARS AT SECOND TRIAL AS SLAYER

Verdict of Second Degree Murder Returned by Jury for the Killing of Patrolman Bernard Early.

ATTORNEYS PLAN TO APPEAL VERDICT

Same Sentence Fixed at First Trial Was Thrown Out Because of Error by Court Stenographer.

For the second time John Neary was convicted of the murder of Patrolman Bernard Early yesterday, in Circuit Judge Ittner's court, and sentenced to 30 years' imprisonment.

The jury deliberated from 2:30 to 5:40 p. m. and returned a verdict of guilty of second-degree murder, ignoring the charge of first-degree murder, which is punishable by a life term or death, and taking advantage of an instruction for the lesser offense.

Jurors declined to discuss details of their balloting, beyond stating that seven ballots were taken. They would not tell whether conviction of first-degree murder had been considered.

Appeal Planned.

Counsel for Neary, Robert J. Callahan and I. L. Spencer, said they would ask for a new trial and, if denied that, would seek to appeal for Neary as a poor person.

The first time Neary had been sentenced to 30 years' imprisonment for the murder, which occured at the Vandeventer-Easton avenue saloon of Michael Woods on the night of July 26 last, was in Circuit Judge Hamilton's Court on Nov. 26. However, Judge Hamilton granted a new trial, and change of venue was taken, when it was shown that the Court stenographer had transcribed the word 'with" as 'without" in the Court's instructions for the jury.

Neary, on the witness stand yesterday, denied categorically that he fired the shots which killed the policeman, and the defense halted its questioning abruptly. Assistant Circuit Attorney Johnston drew from the witness a reply that he was at the saloon corner the night of the shooting, and then asked him if he had gone there in any one's company. It was the State's contention that he went there with Edward Fitzgerald, a fugitive, as described in a statement to the police by Neary after his arrest, in which he confessed their mission was to rob the saloon.

Denies Admitting Shooting.

Neary returned an emphatic declaration that he was unaccompanied, after which he was snown the statement in question. He said he couldn't read, nor could he identify his signature. He was then dismissed, but shortly recalled by the State and asked, if at the inquest into the policeman's death, he had not admitted under oath that he did the shooting. He again made denial.

The State introduced four statements made by Neary after his arrest, of conflicting nature, but in which he admitted having conspired to rob the saloon. A companion, he said in one of these statements, had entered the place, but he did not go in. In the statements Neary made alleged confessions of guilt, but he repudiated the statements, saying he had been forced by police to give them. Policemen denied this.

BELIEVE WOMAN WAS SLAIN AND THROWN INTO CANAL

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PEORIA, Ill., April 18.—The supposed murder of a woman on the farm of William Weisel, five miles north of Wyanet, and the throwing of her body in the Hennepin Canal, is being investigated by Sheriff Mills of Bureau County and deputies, they admit.

Mrs. John Wibble, wife of the tenant of the farm, was aroused Friday night by a woman's shrieks which suddenly ceased. The next morning an abandoned automobile was found spotted with blood, and on the starting crank was matted blond hair of a woman.

Early today a stranger appeared at the Wibble farm and said he had heard his wife had been murdered and thrown in the canal. He left without giving his name. It is planned to drag the canal in the vicinity tomorrow.

DAWES STORMS AT SENATE AGAIN AND BUTLER 'AMENS'

Senator and 1000 Boston Business Men Rise en Masse in Approval of His Assault on Rules.

BUTLER "WILL WORK FOR CHANGE"

Vice President Declares He Will Campaign Around the Country and Act as a "Conduit" to Senate.

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, April 18.—Vice President Charles G. Dawes, in Boston for the celebration of the 150th anniversary of the battle of Concord and Lexington, in a speech at a luncheon of 1000 Boston business men today, renewed his attack on "Senate rules," which he launched in his inaugural address March 4. Denouncing the present rules of the Senate, he said he would continue the battle for reform throughout his four years of office. He was greeted with cheers when he called on those present, including Senator William M. Butler, to show their desire for a change by rising.

Tonight in the Old North Church in the belfry lanterns were hung on the eve of the first battle of the Revolution as a warning that the British troops were on the march, the Vice President inaugurated the formal program of the Concord-Lexington celebration by an address in which he termed the Constitution a guiding light for the nation. He lauded the New England charactre as a beacon shining for future generations of the American people whose character still is in the making.

Called on for a speech at the luncheon, at which Owen D. Young and Jeremiah H. Smith, Commissioner-General of the League of Nations to Hungary, also were guests, Dawes entered at once upon his denunciation of the senatorial veto, thumping the table vigorously as he thundered his disapproval.

Plans 4-Year Campaign.

"I am going around this country before I get through this four years, then I'm going out of office," he said in conclusion, amid laughter and applause. "I am satisfied that this reform can be accomplished."

The Vice President had said previously that he would reserve discussion of the Senate rules for his New York speech on Tuesday. It was the presence at the luncheon of Senator Butler, he said, that led him to change his mind. Alluding to himself as 'the best smoker-out in the country," he continued:

"It was the way I said it, not what I said, that gave rise to irritation in Washington. My grief over that irritation is somewhat tempered by a remark of George Lernard Shaw that no offensive truth is properly presented unless it causes irritation.

"And now I am going to say a few things. And I am going to say them because Senator William M. Butler is here to listen. As I see it, unless in my humble way I can act as a conduit to transmit to the Senate and its members the individual reactions of the constituency, I do not see what I am doing in office. So I am going to appeal to you as part of Senator Butler's constituency to express your opinion on this subject of Senate rule. Here is a principle at stake that our forefathers fought for.

No One Person Responsible.

"Did our forefathers have in mind when they framed the Constitution the lodging with any one of the 96 Senators a power greater than the veto power of the President of the United States? Would they have said that when our laws must have the concurrent action of two houses of Congress, when they must be subject to the veto power of the President, and yet again subject to review by the Supreme Court of the United States that a further check was needed in the shape of power, placed in the hands of one Senator, to block all legislation—power that he might some times use for his own personal gain?

"Is that the conception they had? That it is right to have this usurped power of a Senator fastened on the country, not by the Constitution, not by court, not by good legislation, but by Senate rules built up through the last 119

PRATHER CONFESSES HIS PART IN BEER PROTECTION SCANDAL; WOULD TESTIFY FOR GOVERNMENT

WOMAN HELD FOR FATAL POISONING OF EIGHT PERSONS

Alleged Victims of Nebraskan Said to Include First Husband, Mother-in-Law and Six Children.

By the Associated Press.

ST. PAUL, Neb., April 18.—County Attorney Dobrey of St. Paul, Howard County, announced today that Mrs. Emmanuel Sorenson, wife of a section foreman, had been charged with the fatal poisoning of eight persons, including three of her own children, her first husband, Joe Weldam, his mother, and three other children. She is mentally irresponsible, he said, and will be taken to the State insane asylum as soon as possible. There will be no prosecution, he said.

Dr. Fast of the Ingleside Institution, near Hastings, a mental improvement institution, said that Mrs. Sorenson is a paranoiac.

Mrs. Sorenson's maiden name was Ella Sidel. Her husband and two children reside at Danneborg. She is only 28 years old.

The deaths charged to Mrs. Sorenson are as follows:

Joe Weldman, her first husband, who died Sept. 10, 1920; Mrs. Wilhelmina Weldman, her mother-in-law, who died shortly after her son's death; Minnie Weldman, 6 years old, who died Sept. 7, 1920; Delores Sorenson, 1, daughter of her second marriage, died Feb. 19, 1924; Viola Cooper, 1, a daughter of Weldman's sister, died July 23, 1918, at Danneborg; Clifford Cooper, 4 months, died Aug. 20, 1922; Ruth Brock, less than one year old, died Feb. 20, 1923.

Another of her children, the name of whom is unknown at present, was also said to have died of poison administered by Mrs. Sorenson, the county attorney said. Mrs. Sorenson, he said, was stoical, and would make no statement, except that "another one of my children died of convulsions recently." While no prosecution will be made the woman will be held at the county jail until transferred to the asylum.

Others who suffered from convulsions and who also are thought to be victims of poison administered by Mrs. Sorenson, include another Sorenson child and Wetzel Cooper of Danneborg. They were ill during October, 1920.

Authorities said that the investigation started about three weeks ago. According to County Attorney Dobrey, the woman had visited the Irwin Knott family at Danneborg recently and two of the children became sudenly ill of convulsions. The children, he continued, said they had eaten some cookies given them by Mrs. Sorenson. It was found that poison had been administered. The investigation was continued, he said, until the arrest of Mrs. Sorenson.

Each of the death certificates was examined and it was found that in each instance, death was due to poisoning, the County Attorney said.

The long investigation culminated today with the County Insanity Board's decision that the woman was insane and the report of Dr. Fast of the State asylum at Hastings. Emmanue l Sorrenson, the accused woman's husband, told authorities he did not think Mrs. Sorenson insane and did not think that she had poisoned the persons. The woman's parents, who live at Farwell, Neb., have made no statement on the case.

The County Attorney said that Mrs. Sorenson is being cared for by a police matron at the Howard County jail and has not made a confession.

ITALY CLOSES EXCHANGES

Government Ban for Two Days to Halt Traders' Agitation.

ROME, April 18.—The Government today issued a proclamation ordering all the stock exchanges throughout Italy to remain closed today and Monday. This measure is intended to cope with the continued agitation among the traders against the Government reform measures.

Confesses in Beer Scandal

Former State Food and Drug Commissioner, who will plead guilty to charges of conspiracy to make and sell real beer, in connection with the Griesedieck Brewery case and who will offer to testify for the Government.

20,000 African Troops In Dazzling Spectacle For Wales in Nigeria

Thousands of Natives Travel Miles, Many Succumbing on Way to Heat, to Welcome Prince at Reception of the Emirs.

By the Associated Press.

KANO, Nigeria, April 18.—The Prince of Wales, who has seen many gorgeous pageants in strange corners of the earth, today witnessed one of the most stirring and colorful spectacles of his career—the Durbar, or reception for native Princes, held here in his honor.

To the unceasing throb of tomtoms and the weird strains of native orchestras, more than 20,000 African troops, costumed in brilliant colors and with fantastic trappings, maneureving with amazing skill before the Prince's reviewing stand for several hours.

A vast native crowd of spectators, giving every evidence of wild excitement, cheered constantly as the drums rolled and the multitude of horsemen dashed magnificently across the great field.

Every Jungle Road Jammed.

Before the Durbar began at 8 o'clock this morning every jungle road for many miles was jammed with persons endeavoring to reach the scene. Most of them had tramped all night, many had traveled for several days, and numbers died of the heat and jungle perils.

The Emirs from all surrounding native districts appeared in new costumes, most costly and colorful. Their leader was the Emir of Kano, who rules more than 2,000,000 persons.

The Prince was particularly thrilled as troops of cavalry, strikingly caparisoned, many carrying ancient swords that date to the period of the Crusades, dashed directly toward his stand, with extended lances, sweeping away in waves when almost upon him, in a remarkable display of horsemanship.

Some of the horsemen wore ancient suits of chain mail. Some bodies of soldiers, wearing brilliant red uniforms, carried golden trumpets five feet long, wore plumed helmets and were armed with bows. There were units of cavalry with feathered headbands and carrying enormous silk flags. A camel corps, with riders vividly dressed and waving swords as they passed the Prince, followed the horsemen.

The scene was almost dizzying as the variegated columns whirled by, interspersed with yelling "devil dancers" and accompanied by frenzied outbursts of cheering and the constant roar of drums.

Prince Attends Dance.

Despite the long train journey and his exertions at tennis, Wales attended a dance after dinner last evening.

The history of the organization of the dance and the preparations for the event is interesting. Six weeks ago the site, two miles outside Kano, was ordinary bush, with a small fish pond in a valley below.

Stirred with enthusiasm over the Prince's forthcoming visit, the inhabitants cleared the whole area, laid an excellent dance floor, installed electric lights and drained the pond, making it into an artistic flower garden.

Heavy rains turned the garden into a swamp, but by strenuous exertions it was reconverted into an attractive little lake.

Kano's white population is only 350, but 500 were present at the dance, visitors having come from all parts of the Northern provinces. Nineteen of the 25 women present had traveled great distances to welcome the Prince of Wales. The Prince, who wore a dinner jacket, received every person present and danced every dance.

After the spectacle the Emirs were received by the Prince. They approached his dais in dignified attitude and then knelt respectfully—some throwing themselves at full length upon the ground. Then they squatted in a semicircle fully 50 yards away to hear the Prince's address.

WILL THROW HIMSELF ON MERCY OF THE COURT

Former State Drug Commissioner Under Indictment With Heber Nations and Others.

WILL BE ARRAIGNED HERE TOMORROW

Nations Seeking Change of Venue From Charge He Participated in Distribution of About $15,000.

Charles S. Prather, former State Food and Drug Commissioner, has confessed his part in the beer protection scandal, in which he and Heber Nations, former State Labor Commissioner, are to be arraigned in Federal Court tomorrow, on felony and misdemeanor indictments voted a year ago.

Prather, in his confession, has professed to tell all he knows of the matter, and he is ready to plead guilty and throw himself on the mercy of the Court. As is usual in such cases, he will offer to testify for the Government against his co-defendant, Nations, and his offer undoubtedly will be accepted.

The third individual defendant in the case, Raymond B. Griesedieck, vice president and manager of Griesedieck Bros. Brewery Co., has heretofore confessed that he paid about $15,000 to Prather for protection in the illegal manufacture and marketing of beer, in the latter part of 1923 and early in 1924. He was a witness before the grand jury which indicted Prather and Nations, and he is to be a Government witness in the case.

Brewery a Corporate Defendant.

Griesedieck Bros. Brewery Co. is a corporate defendant in the same case.

When the case is called for trial tomorrow, a motion for a change of venue will be presented, and this, if granted, will mean the calling of another judge to try the case, and probable delay. The change of venue is sought by Nations, who alleges prejudice against him on Judge Faris' part.

Prather and Nations formerly were represented by the same attorney, Patrick H. Cullen, but Cullen has ceased to represent Prather, whose present attorney is James Finch of New Madrid.

Prather's confession is in the possession of John C. Dyott, Special Assistant Attorney-General, in the prosecution of prohibition cases. Dyott refused yesterday to make any statement as to the matter. The details of the confession were not available.

Indicted Early Last Year.

Prather, Griesedieck and the brewery company were indicted April 12, 1924. The indictment of Nations was made public May 7, after Nations had issued a challenge to Dyott to bring about his indictment. In an open letter to Dyott, Nations charged that the accusations against him originated with St. Louis politicians, who had a grievance against his brother, Gus O. Nations, then chief Federal prohibition officer in Missouri.

Heber Nations resigned his State job just before the indictment against him was made public. Prather also had resigned his position just before being indicted. Nations is editor of the Jefferson City Post. Prather lives in Advance, Stoddard County, and is in the milling business.

Heber Nations, who has been a leader in the Ku Klux Klan, has organized and led numerous liquor raids in Jefferson City and Cole County, both before and since he

'GLOOMY DEAN' ARRIVES ON U. S. VISIT SMILING

The Very Rev. William Ralph Inge Doesn't Like Prohibition but Thinks He Can Stand It 3 Weeks.

UNIQUE CHARACTER IN BRITISH CHURCH

Does Not Expect Another War in His Lifetime, He's 65; Never Goes to Theaters Because He's Deaf.

From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 18.—"The Gloomy Dean" came in smiling. It was like him for he is notoriously fond of surprising people and has a love for paradoxes. He is the Very Rev. William Ralph Inge (prouonnced Ing), dean of one of the largest cathedrals in the world, St. Paul's, London, and, paradoxically, conceded to be the most brilliant and liberal mind in the church of England. He will deliver Lyman Beecher lectures at Yale.

Neither in his manner or his appearance was there any hint of the daring, pungent intellect which has made him a unique figure in his church and one of the darlings of the penny press of London along with Shaw, Wells and Chesterton.

He appeared to appreciate the controversy his arrival is expected to cause here, his landing synchronizing as it did by chance with the latest flare-up of the never ending liberal-conservative row in the Episcopal church as represented by the Rev. Dr. William Norman Guthrie and Bishop Manning.

Expects to Be Suspended.

"I read," said the "Gloomy Dean," "that one of your liberal churchmen was suspended yesterday. "I suspect I will be tomorrow."

Nineteen years ago he came here for a visit, he said. Then there was no prohibition. He thinks England will never have prohibition.

"I think I can hold out for three weeks," he offered.

Of the virgin birth he said. "It is not a vital part of my belief. I do not think it is essential to the Christian belief. It is an historical question to be judged on historical evidence. Liberal thought among the young clergy of England is not very strong, but things are certainly moving in that direction.

"I do not think events are moving toward church. The difficulties are too great. I hope there may be a friendly feeling and co-operation. I don't believe in institutional fusion." Of a "place of worship for all people," he said: "I don't believe all people would go, and if they did they would fight the way they did in Jerusalem.

Not Expecting War Soon.

"Science and religion are not opposed. I hope the time will come when the man of science will be religious and the man of religion will be scientific."

He said the action of the Tennessee legislators in barring the teaching of the Darwinian theory only proved "the legislators of the State are more dangerous to the young than Darwin."

He does not believe there will be another war in his lifetime—he is 65—because all the nations are bankrupt, but that "America can afford a war is she wants one."

He believes a restricted birth control is imperative because "the intelligent are not breeding in sufficient numbers." But he fears unrestricted birth control is placing a dangerous instrument in the hands of the unmarried.

He calls divine healing "humbug," spiritualism "thoroughly bad."

He finds too much sex in modern fiction, but would offer no opinion on censorship.

He never goes to the theater, not because of principle, "but principally because I'm deaf."

Has Seen One Movie.

He has seen one movie but can't recall its name.

He thinks Dorothy Canfield's "The Bent Twig," which he has just finished reading, is a book that shows America has real literature.

He is a defender of monarchy but believes the American Constitution and the British empire "are the two greatest political achievements of history, both by our race."

He thinks "girls are steadying down," after a loosening of morals after the war.

He knows some women "who should be Bishops," and thinks women priests would "equalize sex in the church and attractive ones would increase church attendance.

He is bitter against "the miserable doles" given to the unemployed in England as weakening to character.

But it remained for his wife, smiling up at him from the deep wicker chair, to make the bon mot of the morning. As he evaded one question artfully, she said:

"This seems to be your day of dodgement."

Autopsy Shows Organs In Man on Wrong Side

Heart Apex and Spleen on Right, Liver and Gall Bladder to Left; Teamster Killed by Own Wagon.

When Dr. Theodore L. Carriere, Coroner's autopsy physician, yesterday performed a post-mortem examination of the body of a teamster, killed the day previous when the wheels of his wagon ran over him, there was disclosed a condition in the position of the man's organs known virtually only to medical literature. In all the 3000 or more autopsies he has performed, Dr. Carriere had never come upon it. Every organ was in a reverse position of right to left and left to right from normal!

The condition was described in the autopsy report as "situs inversus viscera." Internally there was a lateral transposition of all the thoracic and abdominal viscera, the report stated. The right lung had two lobes, the left three lobes. The apex of the heart was on the right side, instead of the left. The greater lobe of the liver and the gall bladder were in the left abdomen. The spleen was on the right side.

The finding of the autopsy was death from a ruptured liver. As the man was otherwise normal in the bodily functions, comment was made that had the liver been in its normal place, the victim might have survived the injury.

The teamster was Joseph Kwiatkowski, 30 years old, who lived with his wife and four children at 1412 North Twenty-second street. He slipped and fell under the wagon as he was driving up the incline at Third and Chestnut streets. An inquest will be held tomorrow.

DAWES STORMS AT SENATE AGAIN, AND BUTLER "AMENS"

years, nobody knows how, without any party or any one person being responsible?

"I want Senator Butler to know how you feel about it. All of you who think the Senate rules ought to be changed, stand up. Come on. Get up and say so right now."

Greeted With a Roar.

As the roar which greeted the Vice-President's challenge subsided and his hearers sat down again, he pointed to Senator Butler, who had risen with the rest, and said:

"I knew Senator Butler would stand up. Senator Gillett would stand up, too, if he were here. He told me so."

There was cheering again as Dawes finished. He listened for a moment, rose and literally pulling Senator Butler, who sat beside him, from his chair, said:

"I want to hear what Senator Butler has to say about this."

Senator Butler's first remark: "I believe in the reform of the Senate rules," drew more prolonged applause.

"Without detracting an iota from what the Vice President has done to bring this matter to the attention of the public," he added, "I want to say that last December when I went down to the Senate my experience with Senate rules and the doctrine of seniority taught me that it made no difference what a man's achievements were or whence he came, he was forced to take the last seat and the lowest position on the lowest committees.

"I believe in reform, I believe in change and I believe in improvement, and I propose to devote my time in the Senate to the accomplishment of these ends.

DRY RAIDS IN SPRINGFIELD, ILL.

Twenty-two Arrests Made in Campaign of 50 Agents.

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 18.—Springfield, which has been an oasis for several months, is dry tonight. Fifty prohibition agents today swooped down on the city and proprietors of 16 soft drink parlors, three roadhouses and three rooming houses later furnished bond in the Federal Court on a charge of selling intoxicating liquor.

DETECTIVE FORCE REORGANIZATION IN EFFECT TODAY

offered to build a shelter for the Eads bridge detail.

In addition to the men detailed to the detective precincts each district uniformed captain will be allowed two special officers. These men will not be detectives, but uniformed men detailed to plain clothes duty for special district investigations.

Other Squads Formed.

Besides the men detailed to the precincts, Chief Kaiser will have a number of special squads working directly under him much after the manner of headquarters troops in an army organization. Included in the special details are the auto theft squad with 11 men, the gambling squad with three, the moral squad with two, a special negro squad with four men and a general service riding squad for special duty under Kaiser, with 15 men.

To mount the revamped detective crew 38 automobiles will be necessary and the requisition for them was signed and approved today. In the old detective organization which worked out of headquarters 30 machines were used.

"Individual crime is the problem of the department. Organized crime can and must be stamped out at once."

That will be the keynote of Maj. Kaiser's address to his men today as it was in his remarks to the Board of Police Commissioners when his plan was adopted. Kaiser will tell his men that they must keep in constant touch with the uniformed force and that there must be complete harmony between the two branches of the department.

Harmony to Be Sought.

In the past there has been a tendency among some detectives to "high hat" the uniformed men and the practice has resulted in a lack of co-operation between the two branches. Kaiser has stated that he regarded the return of harmony as one of the most important purposes of the reorganization of the detective forces.

Kaiser will tell his men to break up breeding places of crime such as pool halls, soft drink bars and cheap dance halls. He will tell them that no gang is to organize and that any organized gang now operating must be smashed at once.

A short address to the men will also be made by Chief of Police Gerk who will also stress the need for harmony between the branches.

Location of Precincts.

The locations of the new detectives precincts with their commanders, as printed yesterday in the Post-Dispatch, is as follows;

Precinct A. Wyoming Street Station, Sergt. John Carroll.

Precinct B, Magnolia Avenue Station, Sergt. Joseph Scherman.

Precinct C, Page Boulevard Station, Sergt. Eugene Martineau.

Precinct D, Deer Street Station, Sergt. Oscar Collard.

Precinct E, Laclede Avenue Station, Sergt. Bernard Wille.

Precinct F, Central District Station, Sergt. Fred Egenreither.

Precinct G, Carr Street Station, Sergt. George Fritsche.

Precinct H, Angelica Street Station, Sergt. William Dempsey.

In a last minute change yesterday Detective Sergt. Cliff Reber, slated to command Precinct E, was assigned to the Traffic Bureau, to which he was formerly attached. Sergt. Wille was taken from the Page Boulevard District to command Precinct E. Sergt. Ferdinand Firle was detached from Traffic and assigned to the Soulard Street District, and Sergt. Daniel Sullivan was detached from Soulard and transferred to the Page Boulevard District to take Willie's place.

WARRANTS ISSUED FOR STEPHENSON AND TWO OTHERS

Indiana Officers Seek Former Klan Leader on Murder Indictments Found by Grand Jury.

By the Associated Press.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 18.—Marion County officers tonight were seeking D. C. Stephenson, former grand dragon of the Ku Klux Klan; Earl Gentry, and Earl Klinck, against whom a grand jury today returned first murder indictments in connection with the death of Miss Madge Oberholtzer. Capiases for their arrest had been issued shortly after the indictments were returned.

Stephenson was not at his hotel or office and neither he nor Klinck and Gentry could be found, according to Omer Hawkins, Sheriff. They are believed to be in the city.

The indictments against the three men followed closely after the Coroner's inquest into the girl's death which ended yesterday. A Coroner's verdict is expected next week.

Stephenson, 33 years old, recently has been prominent in Indiana politics. He was active in supporting Ed Jackson in his campaign for the primary nomination in the spring of 1924 and in the fall campaign for the election.

The murder charge is based on the allegation that the three men failed to provide medical attention for Miss Oberholtzer after she had taken poison at a Hammond (Ind.) hotel, following an attack which she declared was made by Stephenson.

To Deny Defendants Bail.

Judge Collins announced that the three men would not be admitted to bail.

The indictments contain four counts. The first count charges that Miss Oberholtzer, March 16, 1925, was taken aboard a train by the defendants and was attacked in a drawing room while the train was bound from Indianapolis for Hammond, Ind. It charges further that she was again attacked in a hotel at Hammond; that in shame she took poison, following which action the defendants refused to furnish her with medical treatment and that on the afternoon and night of March 17 they held her in duress, transported her in an automobile to Indianapolis, and did not release her until noon March 18.

In the second count it is charged that the three men administered poison to Miss Oberholtzer, which she took in fear and under duress and compulsion.

ELEPHANTS SPILL BANANAS OFF CART, THEN ENJOY MEAL

Quartet of Pachyderms Enliven Downtown Corner After Close of "Peanut Matinee."

Four elephants shoved over civilization and a banana push cart at Tenth and St. Charles streets yesterday afternoon. Then the elephants ate all the fruit, while the Italian fruit vender yelled and their owner, George Powers, sorrowfully counted out $25 and gave it to the push cart merchant. This appeased the push cart man, who cautiously got his empty cart out of the way, and the elephants calmly finished their meal.

Powers' elephants—Roxie, Lena, Julia and Jennie—were on the bill at the Orpheum Theater last week. After every performance their owner escorted them from the show to a stable at Eleventh street and Clark avenue. Now yesterday afternoon the Orpheum management advertised a "peanut matinee," which meant all the children were supplied with peanuts to feed to the elephants after the performance. So the children did, but the multitude of peanuts only sharpened the appetites of the pachyderms.

Finished with the peanuts, they were being led to their stable when they and the push cart man happened to arrive at Tenth and St. Charles at the same time. Roxie, the biggest elephant, spied the cart walked up to it, and gently tapped it with her trunk, which sent the cart over and the bananas, oranges, et al., rolling around the street. Then Roxie began to eat and so did Lena and Jennie and Julia. Powers says his elephants can withstand any temptation but a fruit wagon.

CHARLES T. THOMPSON OF ASSOCIATED PRESS DIES

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 19.—Charles Thaddeus Thompson, who had been connected with the Associated Press organization continuously for the last 33 years, died today in St. Luke's Hospital at the age of 67. He had been in ill health for some months but was at his desk up to a few days ago.

Thompson had a distinguished career with the Associated Press in the United States and abroad. He reported scores of notable events, among them being the Algeciras conference in 1906, dealing with the disposition of Morocco; the death of Pope Leo, the disastrous eruption of Mount Vesuvivus in 1906; the marriage and attempted assassination of King Alfonso of Spain in Madrid.

STREET FIGHTING IN UPRISING OF TROOPS IN LISBON

Government of Portugal Said to Have Taken Necessary Steps to Restore Order.

By the Associated Press.

LISBON, April 18.—A revolutionary uprising with the object of overthrowing the Government began this mornin, and hand to hand fighting ensued at various points in Lisbon. Grenades were thrown and many persons are believed to have been killed or wounded.

The president of the republic, Teixeira Gomes, and the members of the Cabinet sought refuge in one of the city barracks.

The movement was led by Maj. Filomeno Camara, and the military of all arms participated in the revolt. Eventually loyal troops rallied to the aid of the president and Government surrounded the Paco Da Rotondo where the mutineers had gathered.

At this place there was considerable fighting. Eventually the loyal troops got the upperhand.

The Portuguese Government obtained information of today's intended outbreak in raids conducted last night during which 12 men were arrested.

The first intimation of impending trouble came last night when theater-goers were alarmed by a conflict between the staff of one of the principal night clubs and a group of men who attempted to enter and extort money from the management. In the scuffle a malefactor named Costa was killed and on him the police found important papers.

SUIT TO NULLIFY GARBAGE PLAN BEFORE MILLER NEXT THURSDAY

Unsuccessful Bidder Asks for Injunction Against Kansas City Firm.

Hearing on a temporary restraining order preventing the execution of a five-year contract awarded Friday by the Board of Public Service to Charles L. Rea of Kansas City for the disposal of the city's garbage will be held Thursday before Circuit Judge Miller, who issued the injunction Friday night on application of the Jefferson Distributing Co., which has had the garbage disposal contract and was an unsuccessful bidder for the new contract.

The Jefferson Distributing Co. alleged in obtaining the restraining order that the ordinance is invalid because it does not contain any estimate of the cost of the work. The company's bid of $1.29 a ton for the disposal of the garbage was 55 cents higher than Rea's bid.

FORMER "MISSOURI RICE KING" REPORTED MARRIED

George Begley Jr., Who Served Prison Term, Took Out License at St. Charles April 6.

George Begley Jr., who was known as the "Missouri rice king" and considered the most fastidiously dressed man in Poplar Bluff, Mo., until he went to prison, six years ago, for forgery, is on the brink of getting married and settling down to selling tamales.

A marriage license was issued April 6 at St. Charles to Begley, who is 38 years old, and Miss Eleanor Leupold, 28, a former stenographer for a St. Louis bank. Whoever performed the ceremony—if it already has been performed—has not made that fact public. A dispatch from Poplar Bluff states that the couple will make their home in Chicago, and that Begley is expected to go "on the road" for a tamale manufacturer there.

Fanatic Reported Crucified.

By the Associated Press.

DELRIO, Tex., April 18.—Rumors reaching here from the State of Michoacan, Mex., tell of the crucifixion by a group of religious fanatics of Mario Leon, who claimed he would re-enact the crucifixion and resurrection. The story is that his followers nailed him to a rugged cross, where he died. When he failed to arise his body was sent to Leon's former home, Piredad de Cabadas, for burial.

Prather Confesses His Part in Beer Scandal

was indicted. A raid made March 29, in which he and his followers confiscated two stills, was said to be the 100th raid which Nations had made in or near Jefferson City.

Nature of Felony Charges.

The felony indictment against Nations, Prather, Griesedieck and the brewery company has two counts. The first charges conspiracy, alleging that Nations and Prather agreed with the brewery and Griesedieck for $1 a case of beer made and sold, to use their influence to deceive or trick the officers charged with the enforcement of prohibition, to prevent arrests.

The second count charges them with conspiracy to defraud the Federal Government of $2700 in taxes, at $6 a barrel on 450 barrels of beer, the quantity confiscated in the raid which preceded the confession of Griesedieck and the indictments. The tax is payable under the old revenue laws, which are held still to be in force in such cases.

The maximum punishment on conviction on either of these counts is three years' imprisonment and $2000 fine. Lesser punishments are within the court's discretion. In case of conviction on both counts, the sentences probably would be made to run concurrently, this being customary in Federal Court. The brewery company could be punished only by a fine.

17 Misdemeanor Charges.

The misdemeanor indictment charges 17 separate offenses, in as many counts. Each offense charged is a violation of the Volstead act. Manufacture, transporting, sale and possession are charged in the various counts. The punishment, on conviction on any count, is not more than six months in jail, or a fine, or both.

Judge Faris, on April 11, took under advisement a demurrer and motion to quash, filed by counsel for Nations. He denied an application made in this connection for a subpena duces tecum, in which a demand was made for a large collection of data. The demand included all records of the prohibition enforcement unit concerning R. B. Griesedieck; all correspondence of the local prohibition agents with the department headquarters in Washington; and records as to the work of the Federal prohibition agents in the district.

Since this request was denied, notice has been served on Dyott, in behalf of Nations, that a change of venue will be asked. Such an application, under Federal law, makes it mandatory upon the Judge to grant the change, if the application is filed within the proper time. The proper time is within 10 days before the first day of the term of court, which in this case would have meant filing it in the last week of March. It is provided that if the application is filed later, good cause for the delay must be shown.

Charges in Venue Motion.

The motion, as shown in the notice furnished to Dyott, will allege that persons connected with the United States Government, and having a special interest in the prosecution, have communicated to Judge Faris what they alleged to be knowledge of facts and circumstances connected with the averments of the indictment, and that as a result the Judge has an ill and unfriendly feeling toward the defendant, Nations.

The motion further states that Nations is informed, and believes, that Judge Faris has stated that it is his opinion that Nations has been and is guilty of having operated and conspired with to afford unlawful protection Griesedieck company in turing, transporting and toxicating liquor. The motion sworn to by Nations, and and Charles G. Revelle, in the defense, make affidavit the motion is filed in good As a reason for the lateness of ing the motion, it is stated that matters alleged came to attention only recently.

Dyott said yesterday that would oppose the motion change of venue. In case it be granted, the presiding Judge the circuit would designate Judge to try the case. This ably would entail delay, if a were called from outside St.

The public developments beer scandal came with and the raid made by Gus O. and his squad of enforcement upon the Griesedieck Brewery, Shenandoah avenue, the of Feb. 21, 1924. This raid made while members of a squad, sent from Washington look into the reports of tion, were in the vicinity of brewery, and about to make The brewery was an old having paid $17,000 in fines pleas of guilty in 1921.

R. B. Griesedieck and more 40 employes were arrested raid, and it was soon after Griesedieck made his accusing Prather.

'Yallowest Cur' and Queerest Pet at The Humane Society's Animal Show

—By a Post-Dispatch Staff Photographer.

Pep, owned by Richard Brodtrick, of 4535 Magnolia avenue, who is adjudged to be the best yellow dog at the Humane Society's animal show, which was a humane way of saying, "the worst cur."

Funny Funston, a snapping turtle of great talent, shown by Nathalie Coddington of 3231 Neosho street, was awarded the prize for being the most unusual pet.

Cats and Dogs March Behind Brass Band in Animal Pet Parade

Children Escorting Rats, Goldfish, Rabbits, Etc., Have Troubles on Way to Grounds, Where Prizes Are Awarded.

The dogs and cats and mice and rats from everybody's back yard held a big parade yesterday afternoon. If you were a boy or a girl and had any sort of pet at all it was your duty to take the animal to the parade. It isn't every day that a boy and his dog or a girl and her cat can march behind a brass band with four fine policemen riding up ahead to clear the way. Several hundred St. Louis children appreciated that, and were on hand promptly at 2 p. m. at the corner of Clark avenue and Fourteenth street.

Of course, you really didn't have to bring any particular kind of pet. If you had a goldfish you brought him. If you had a rabbit you chucked him in a basket and came. If you were lucky and had a Shetland you saddled him. And if you didn't possess any sort of pet you walked through the alley and picked one up. Maybe he was a dog with chewed ears, or a cat with a touch of mange on its tail. That was all right. Sure. The Humane Society of Missouri, which was sponsoring the parade, put it in the papers that nothing in the line of animals was barred. Why, one little girl even brought a swell snapping turtle.

Autos Full of Prizes.

Every child knew that the parade was to be just the beginning. After the parade had reached the circus grounds on Forest Park boulevard near Vandeventer avenue, there would be a regular animal show. The Humane Society members drove up to Fourtenth and Clark in their automobiles filled with prizes. So the start of the parade was merely the beginning of the fun.

Which would be the homeliest dog? Which would be the best yellow dog? Who would have the most unusual pet? What child rode the best pony? Whose dog had the longest tail, the shortest tail, the most spots? How long was this dog's nose? How short was that dog's nose?

With all these important questions to be settled the marshals of the parade had some difficulty in forming ranks. Harry Latal, 14 years old, of 1909 Oregon street, carried "Snowball," a white rat. This rat, he told the youngsters around him, had one claim to distinction, which Harry thought would win him a prize. Snowball would ride on a dog's back. He would. Harry offered to prove it.

Laziest Dog in St. Louis.

But that was nothing. Pooh! Adeline Rauch of 1138 South Seventh street had a dog named "Spot," which she thought must be part coach dog. Spot, she declared, was more unusual than any white rat. Spot was the laziest dog in St. Louis. She knew that he would never walk as much as even a block in any parade, and was prepared to carry him. So Harry put Snowball on Spot's back, just to prove he would ride on a dog's back, and Spot didn't even turn his head, which proved, according to Adeline, that Spot was the laziest dog in St. Louis. They both seemed satisfied.

Nathalie Coddington, 8, of 3231 Neosho street, carried "Fanny Funston," the turtle, the only turtle in the parade. She asserted that this animal had come from Camp Funston, Kan., and could imitate an armored tank going into action. He was set down to entertain the crowd, but only imitated a tank retiring from action, promptly drawing in his head and legs. Harry Blattner of 2629A Hebert street, who is 9 years old, said his Belgian hare, Martha (a male, for all that) could claim distinction for his speed at eating carrots. Martha, he observed, should win a prize if there was a carrot-eating contest, and he hoped the judges would give Martha a chance.

Goldfish in Line.

Harry Svatek, 10 years old, of 2123 Gravois avenue, had brought his three goldfish. He had thought first of bringing Zippo, his dog, but Zippo was suffering slightly from distemper and Harry's mother objected. So carrying the goldfish clutched tightly against his fresh Saturday afternoon shirtwaist, (they were, of course, in a bowl of water) he took his place in line. Goldfish, Harry said, deserve prizes in an animal show, although he supposed, strictly speaking, they were not animals.

Well, there they were, the children and their pets, ready for the grand parade and the gorgeous animal show afterwards. They realized that nothing like it had been seen here before, and nothing like it might ever be be seen again. Robert F. Sellars, secretary of the Humane Society, rushed hither and thither with a megaphone and, being careful not to step on any cats, managed to get the children into trucks and milk wagons, loaned by friends of the society. It was though best to restrict the actual marching to a stretch between Vandeventer avenue and the show grounds. Sellers, wise man, said, "What if one of the rabbits gets loose on Grand boulevard and all the dogs here chase it?" No, better closed truck than the open road for these paraders.

Mounted Police in Lead.

Led by a detail of mounted policemen with the Jefferson Barracks band playing as gallant an air as ever accompanied a victorious General, Martha the rabbit, Funston the turtle, and Sport the dog, not to mention the goldfish which must be nameless, and hundreds of other pets, began their processional out Chestnut street.

Pride swelled in the breasts of children as they clutched the furry, warm twisting thing close, and the wagon wheels rumbled and music and sunshine made the day happy.

There were cats in that parade that would not have been allowed in the same show ring with a Maltese or Persian. There were dogs that never saw the inside of the Coliseum. There were ponies sadly lacking in those polished manners imposed upon blooded animals. But Amos Calvin, 14, of 1905 Oregon avenue, for one would have said that Tige ("picked up almost dead in the alley behind our ashpit") deserved to be in a parade. Lee Schneiter, also 14, of 2333 Park avenue, believed his dog, Jack (no pedigree, and classified as a spotted dog, merely) was good enough for a parade. So Milton Tamme, 12, of 4663 Magnolia avenue, felt no shame for Spoof, even if he is half collie and half shepherd.

Both children and animals behaved exceedingly well as the parade swept out Chestnut street to Lawton boulevard and thence to Laclede avenue and down Laclede to Vandeventer and across Vandeventer to Forest Park boulevard. Then the procession dismounted and the short march to the show grounds began. It was not really a march. You see, your dog or your cat was so restless that he jumped out of the truck or ice wagon, and you had to jump out, too. Then your dog or your cat would want to make friends or fight with some other dog or cat. What with one passion or another you had no time to form in line.

At the filling station near the show grounds tragedy met the parade. Snowball, the white rat, tried to ride on the wrong dog's back and was slain, most foully. His young master, Harry Latal, rallying from the loss, enlisted several friends, and they dug a grave for Snowball in a clump of goose grass. Unmindful of this, the majority of the paraders passed on to the show.

Secretary Sellars and several other officials of the Humane Society were judges. There were so many dogs and other entries that it was impossible to judge as carefully as such a show demanded.

Dandy Girl the Ugliest.

"All candidates for the homeliest dog, this way!" shouted Judge Sellars.

Someone pushed Dandy Girl forward and there were one or two other candidates, but most of the boys and girls held tight to their animals. They didn't want this prize. So poor Dandy Girl (well, she was plain, but then, there were lots of ugly dogs) got the prize. She was shown by Miss Berenice Dutton of 3852 De Tonty street.

And who do you suppose was the prettiest dog? Every dog there was entered and boys shouted, "Hey, look here. Ain't this a pretty dog, now? Ain't he?" But Snowball, a 2-months-old Spitz puppy owned by Herman Julius Plegge, 8 years old, of 4249 Peck street, caught the lady judges' attention. Well, he ought to have won. He had never prowled an alley or looted a garbage can or worked hard for his living, as most of the dogs had. His paws were nice and white. And he did win.

There were a parrot, a mouse who could roll in a special trap, seven goldfish and a turtle entered in the contest for the most unusual pet. The turtle was Funny Funston, who could imitate an armored tank. The parrot could talk and the goldfish swim, but they had no chance with Funny Funston. He took first prize. It was a snap for Funny Funston.

"Pep" Without a Past.

The fiercest fight of all was over the prize for the best yellow dog (a humane way of saying "the worst cur"). There were not so many "strictly yaller dogs" as their owners explained, but none had difficulty in finding a patch or so.

The race got down to a matter of genealogy. Then it was that a small, light brown dog, built for dodging rocks and sneaking up on a bone, came to the fore. This dog absolutely had no past. His owner, Richard Brodtrick, of 4535 Magnolia avenue, said that Pep had come out of that oblivion beyond the alley gate one day, and had never explained where from, or what he had been. There was even doubt as to his name, sometimes he answered better to Tex. Of course, that settled it. Pep was a yellow dog, the best of the show.

The parade and show yesterday opened the Humane Society's campaign for more kindness to dumb animals and the week beginning today will be Kindness to Animals Week.

ROBBERS SHOOT POLICEMAN WHO HALTED HOLDUP

Patrolman Walter Murphy of Magnolia District Falls With Bullet in His Right Hip.

Patrolman Walter Murphy of the Magnolia Avenue District was shot and seriously wounded in a revolver battle with three robbers which took place when he interrupted a holdup in a drug store at Compton and Lafayette avenues at 9 o'clock last night.

The three robbers escaped with a fourth man in an automobile after Murphy had gone down with a bullet in his right hip. Murphy fired four shots in the fight and declared at the city hospital, where he was taken, that he had hit one of the robbers.

Murphy was patrolling his beat near the store when a man came running to him and told him that there was a holdup in progress in the drug store of George Luecking, 3154 Lafayette avenue, on the southeast corner of the Compton-Lafayette intersecton. Murphy started on a run for the store, which is over the line in the Soulard Street District.

Asked for Paregoric.

A few minutes gefore a man had entered the store and asked Nick Georgopoulos, soda clerk, for paregoric. Georgopoulos asked A. S. Wilde, pharmacist, to take care of the sale and as Wilde emerged from behind the prescription counter, the customer and another man who was with him drew revolvers.

They herded the clerk and Wilde, along with three girl customers, into the rear of the store where John Schoenthaler was working at the prescription counter.

While one man guarded them the other looted the cash register, taking the day's receipts, estimated at about $200.

All Three Shoot.

At this juncture Murphy approached the store, revolver in hand. As he passed the robber in the waiting automobile, another man who was on the sidewalk acting as lookout ran into the store and shouted: "Nixie (an underworld term for a policeman), watch yourself."

All three men fired as Murphy entered the store. He returned the fire. A bullet struck him in the right hip and he fell but continued firing until they had fled. At city hospital physicians said it was possible the bullet that struck the policeman had pierced the lower intestine.

Murphy, who is 45 years old, is married and lives at 4220A Dewey street. He joined the force June 18, 1907.

MRS. COOLIDGE OPENS WOMEN'S WORLD'S FAIR

Signal From White House Swings Doors of International Exposition in Chicago.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 18.—Opened by an electric signal flashed from Washington by Mrs. Calvin Coolidge and dedicated by a radio message by President Coolidge from Washington at high noon, the first Woman's World's Fair was under way here today with an international exhibition of feminine progress.

The woman baker, candlestick maker, doctor, lawyer and Indian chieftainess were represented at the opening among many other occupations representative of the twentieth century advance of women. Two acres of floor space in a large exhibit hall was filled with the exposition display.

President Coolidge, in his radio address, gave tribute to the businesslike conduct of the fair and its financing. He declared the achievement of the women in raising complete funds for the cost of the fair was a "striking contrast to the average project of like character, supported in easy fashion out of public funds."

SCHOOL TAX RAISED ONE CENT

Sinking Fund for Building Projects Benefits by Change.

The Board of Education, at a special recess meeting, yesterday raised the public school tax rate from 86 to 87 cents on the $100. The tax of 85 cents on the $100 for actual school purposes, which is the maximum allowed by law, was unchanged.

An addition of 2 cents on the $100 was provided for the $3,000,000 bond issue sinking fund for building work, voted eight years ago. This is a raise of 1 cent from last year's tax.

Mrs. Virginia M. Cummins Dies.

Mrs. Virginia M. Cummins, wife of Robert P. Cummins, office engineer of the St. Louis & San Francisco Railway, died yesterday at her residence, 811 East Big Bend avenue. Mrs. Cummins, who was 41 years old, was operated upon for acute appendicitis last Sunday. She is survived by her husband and four children, two sons and two daughters.

MAN SLAIN IN FIGHT IN BOARDING HOUSE

Suspect Arrested Carrying Pistol on Information Given Police By a Woman.

Walter J. Reardon, 37 years old, a wire worker, was shot through the heart and killed in an argument growing out of a drinking bout with two other men in a boarding house at 1724 North Tewlfth street shortly after 4 p. m. yesterday.

Half an hour later, upon information given by Mrs. Jennie McHale, keeper of the boarding house, the police arrested Charles Malone, 52, at his home, 2419 North Ninth street. He had a .25 caliber automatic in his pocket and admitted quarreling with Reardon and "shooting his way out after being kicked around."

"I don't care if he is dead," Malone said when taken to the North Market District Police Station. "He would have killed me if I hadn't got him."

Woman's Version.

According to Mrs. McHale's version of the affray, she was ironing in the middle room of the 3-room flat when Malone and another man, known by the name of Brookins, entered and had several drinks with Reardon in the kitchen.

A few minutes later, she said, Reardon and Malone began a dispute and clinched in a scuffle. She ran into the kitchen and separated them, but Malone staggered back, drew a pistol and fired four shots.

Reardon fell and was dead when detectives arrived. His body was taken to the morgue. After the shooting, Mrs. McHale said, both Malone and the other visitor left, saying they were going out to find a doctor, but did not return. Mrs. Anna Weber, who resides at the house, corroborated Mrs. McHale's story.

Says He Was Kicked Around.

Malone, who is an iron worker, said when arrested that he and Reardon quarreled about three years ago and that recently Reardon had been picking on him. After dividing a bottle of whisky with him yesterday, Malone said, Reardon "kicked him around" and then, declaring "I'm going to kill you," struck him in the face, knocking him down. He said he fired while lying on the floor and didn't know who had been hit. He was found to have a bruise on his mouth and scratches on his neck, but the women denied he had been knocked down or "kicked around."

At 8:30 p. m. the police arrested Louis Brookins, 42, a painter, at his home, 1400 North Tenth street. He was found to have a bullet wound in his left knee and was suffering from alcoholism. His painter's truck was found in front of the boarding house. He was unable to make a statement and was locked up at the North Market Station.

JOHN DYOTT TO JOIN ST. LOUIS LAW FIRM

Assistant to Attorney-General to Become Associated With Greensfelder and Grand.

John C. Dyott, special assistant to the Attorney-General of the United States, in charge of prosecutions of violations of the antinarcotic and liquor laws in this district, announced yesterday he would associate himself with the law firm composed of Bernard Greensfelder and Joseph H. Grand about May 1.

Dyott has not resigned his Government post and probably will not do so until near the end of the year because of numerous important liquor and drug cases now pending in both divisions of the local Federal Court with which he is entirely familiar.

His decision to enter private practice was made known to his superiors in Washington some time ago and no objection to the plan was made. District attorneys and their assistants are permitted by law to practice privately provided the practice is not so large as to interfere with their duties for the Government.

The new firm will be known as Greensfelder, Dyott & Grand and will occupy the offices in the Central National Bank Building now occupied by Greensfelder & Grand.

Recital at Lindenwood College.

Miss Cora N. Edwards, contralto, assisted by Miss Mildred E. Gravely, pianist, both of the music faculty of Lindenwood College at St. Charles, will give a recital this evening at 6:30 o'clock, in Roemer Auditorium at the college.

BOY, 3, MAKES RECORD OF 50,000 MILES OF SEA TRAVEL

Christopher W. Johnson Jr. Expected Home Today After 132-Day Voyage Around World.

An extremely youthful globe-trotter will arrive home today when Mr. and Mrs. Christopher W. Johnson of 3409 Longfellow place return from a world cruise with their 3½-year-old son, Christopher Jr. With them he made a 132-day cruise to 14 countries on a circuit of the globe, returning to New York several days ago.

The trip was on the steamer Belganiand. The ship's carpenter made a sandbox on deck for the lad, who modeled the steamer there in sand, among other things. He was the youngest passenger.

Johnson, who is president of the St. Louis Basket & Box Co., took his wife and son on the boy's first long journey, starting in November, 1922, and on that world voyage the boy learned to walk on shipboard. It is estimated that young Christopher's travel mileage is more than 50,000 miles at sea and several thousand on land.

OIL OFFICIALS HERE ON WAY TO MEXICO

Group Includes Executives of Standard of Indiana and Pan-American.

Nine officials of the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana and three officials of the Pan-American Petroleum and Transport Co., control of which was acquired by the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana April 1 last, were in St. Louis for a short time last night, enroute from New York to Mexico for an inspection trip of the properties of the Pan-American Co.

The party arrived here from Chicago at 6:20 p. m. on the Illinois Central, and departed at 6:45 p. m. on the Missouri-Pacific. They were traveling on a special Pullman car.

Members of the party said they expect to reach Tampico next Friday. They plan to spend four days in an inspection trip of Pan-American oil properties in Mexico, after which they will go to New Orleans for an inspection of oil fields owned by the Pan-American Co. in that locality. The party will return to Chicago on April 28.

Included in the party were Col. Robert W. Stewart, chairman of the Board of Directors of the Standard; W. W. Burton, president; Beaumont Parks, Allan Jackson and John D. Clark, vice presidents; E. G. Seubert, secretary and treasurer; Edward J. Bullock, director of purchases; Robert M. McElroy, director of traffic; Joe Nevotti, secretary to the chairman of the board; Fred H. Wickett, chairman of the Board of Directors of the Pan-American company; Harold Walker, vice president of the Pan-American, and E. G. McKeever, secretary to President Herbert G. Wylie of the Pan-American, who was unable to make the inspection trip because of illness.

LEXINGTON AND CONCORD BATTLES TO BE OBSERVED

Sons of American Revolution to Celebrate With Banquet Tomorrow Night.

A banquet in celebration of the 150th anniversary of the battles of Lexington and Concord will be given by the Missouri Society, Sons of the American Revolution tomorrow at 7 p. m., at Hotel Chase. The banquet is part of a national observance of the day by the organization.

FIRST PIPE SHOW ON RECORD WILL BE HELD NEXT FRIDAY

Followers of Lady Nicotine May View Exhibits at Jefferson Hotel.

One thousand pipes, ranging in value from $7 to $1000 each, will be exhibited at the Jefferson Hotel at a "pipe show" to be given there Friday from 10 a. m. to 5 p. m. under the direction of Stewart A. Hargraft, representing English manufacturers, in conjunction with a local tobacco firm.

The $1000 pipe is described as an apparently plain briar affair. To the inveterate smoker its charms will appear little different from those of other varieties.

The present exhibition is said to be the first pipe show ever given in St. Louis.

CHILD INJURED BY AUTO

Girl, 3, Suffers Fractured Skull Crossing Street Near Home.

Annie Ostenitz, aged 3 years, 213 Ducohuquette street, suffered a fractured skull and posible internal injuries last night when she was struck by an automobile driven by J. M. Jayme, a section hand living on the Terminal tracks at Union boulevard.

Witnesses said the girl was crossing the street in front of her home when Jayme struck her. She was taken to the city hospital, where physicians pronounced her condition serious.

MAN ACQUITTED OF SLAYING GIRL FINED FOR LARCENY

Albert Ellis, 25 years old, of 4617 San Francisco avenue, whose life was once in jeopardy on the charge of the murder of his sweetheart, Edna Ellis, of which he was acquitted on Jan. 20, 1923, had a new experience with the courts yesterday when before Justice Werremeyer at Clayton he pleaded guilty to a charge of petit larceny and was fined $25.

Ellis was accused by Frank McClinton, a contractor for the Majestic Homes Corporation at Bermuda and New Florissant roads, St. Louis County, of the theft of electrical fixtures.

He paid his fine and was released. When arraigned Ellis gave the name of Kalthaler, which is that of his stepfather.

NATION-WIDE DRIVE TO PUSH BILL FOR RIVER PROJECTS

Executive Body of Mississippi Valley Association Plans Campaign for Porter Measure.

Plans for conducting a nation-wide campaign in the interest of obtaining passage, at the next session of Congress, of the Porter bill, which would provide for a $204,000,000 Federal bond issue to complete all authorized projects for river and harbor improvement within five years, were formulated at a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Mississippi Valley Association at the Missouri Athletic Association yesterday.

The Porter bll, which was introduced in the lower house last June, is supported by Congressman Newton, leader of the waterways block, and other advocates, who point out that it combines economy with efficiency and assures prompt completion of projects which now are delayed through the necessity of waiting upon annual appropriations.

Plans adopted yesterday call for continuance of the campaign up to Nov. 20, next, and suggest ways and means for impressing the merits of the legislation upon the attention of every voter in the United States. For this work, Chambers of Commerce, trade and agricultural organizations and even State Legislatures would be asked to participate actively, besides passing resolutions favoring adoption of the measure.

To Canvass Country.

With a view to obtaining as many demands as possible from constituents, asking Congressmen for favorable action, an organization, or several of them, will be enlisted in each of the 435 congressional district to interview voters and collect individual expressions of sentiment. These expressions then would be made public, according to the program, and distributed widely along with literature explaining merits of the bill. The literature would be sent out weekly during the entire period of the campaign. State Legislatures would be asked to memorialize the legislation as individual State action.

Members of the Executive Committee attending the meeting included James E. Smith of St. Louis, president of the association; H. W. Seaman, Clinton, Ia.; C. F. Richardson, Sturgis, Ky.; Robert I. Randolph, Chicago; J. C. Roop, New York; T. F. Cunningham, New Orleans; H. P. Warner, St. Paul, and A. W. Mackie, Kansas City.

Smith, in a statement at the meeting, pointed out that appropriations for rivers and harbors are now running from $35,000,000 to $60,000,000 a year, of which about $15,000,000 is required for maintenance. With a bond issue providing for completion of the approved projects, he said, the annual charge for the first 10 years would be $15,000,000 for maintenance and the interest charges on the 4½-per-cent bonds, gradually rising to $9,180,000 in the fifth year and never going above that amount. This, he pointed out, would make the total range from $17,700,000 to $24,180,000 annually, instead of from $35,000,000 to $60,000,000.

"Assuming that the bonds would be retired at the rate of $10,000,000 a year, beginning with the eleventh year after their issue, which would retire them all in 30 years from date of issue," he continued, "the maximum annual charge would be $34,180,000, reached in the eleventh year.

"From the construction point of view, the provision of the necessary funds when and as needed will permit the laying out of a program for the prosecution of the work at the most economical rate, with full assurance that the program will not have to be modified because of lack of funds."

PURCHASE OF TEXAS RAILROAD BY SAM LAZARUS IS REPORTED

St. Louis Man Refuses to Make Statement on Deal for Feeder Line into Ranch Country.

FORT WORTH, Tex., April 18.—Sam Lazarus and associates of St. Louis have purchased the Motley Railroad, which now runs from a junction with the Quanah Acme and Pacific Railroad at Roaring Springs to Matador. The Quanan road is owned by Lazarus and St. Louis capitalists.

This is believed to be another move in the fight between the Santa Fe and Burlington systems for control of the South plains territory. The Burlington is now negotiating for the Quanah Acme and Pacific but no price has been agreed upon. The acquisition of the Motley road will give the Quanah route another feeder line into the big ranch country which now has no steam transporation. Lazarus has assumed all the obligations of the Motley line. The sale contract has been sent to St. Louis for the signature of Lazarus.

Lazarus last night refused to make any statement regarding the reported deal.

MYERS DIRECTLY LINKS MILLSPAUGH WITH BANK CASE

Former Cashier in Supplemental Statement Says He Warned Deposed Official Crash Was Coming.

By CURTIS A. BETTS,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

TULSA, Ok., April 18.—Personal participation by Frank C. Millspaugh, deposed State Finance Commissioner of Missouri in the schemes of the Jerome B. McCutchan band of financial manipulators which wrecked the Citizen's Trust Co. of Gorin, the Interstate Casualty Co., the Bank of Ladue and other Missouri banks was described here today by Roy T. Myers, former cashier of the Citizens' Trust, whose confession involving Millspaugh a month ago resulted in the immediate removal of that official by Gov. Baker.

Myers, who came to Tulsa from Sombreret, Zacatecas, Mexico, where he has a silver mine, gave the statement as supplemental to his confession at El Paso to Attorney-General Otto and the Post-Dispatch. Today he told of telephone conversations he said he had with Millspaugh and related in detail statements he attributed to the former official. He said attempts to induce Millspaugh to arrange a personal meeting with him were futile. In his previous confession, Myers said nothing of having talked to Millspaugh, confining his information to statements he said McCutchan told him Millspaugh had made.

These latest developments are looked upon by attorneys for the State as greatly strengthening the evidence they propose to submit to the Scotland County Grand Jury in May in the Millspaugh investigation, the evidence being now direct instead of circumstantial and hearsay.

"It Would Ruin Me."

Myers, under oath today, said that after he told Millspaugh over the telephone that the bank was without funds and could not meet its own obligations, and in reply to a statement by him that because of this condition the bank would be required to close unless it could get funds immediately, Millspaugh exclaimed:

"For God's sake, don't do that. It would ruin me."

In response to a request that he relate as nearly as possible the exact conversations he had with Millspaugh over the telephone, Myers said:

"I called hi mup as many as six times and it was practically the same thing over and over again. I was just crowded to death by the Federal Reserve Bank because I didn't have the money to clear checks it presented, and I rode McCutchan and McNatt (John L. McNatt, St. Louis lawyer), all of them. They were always from three days to a week late, in sending money up there, and it got to be so tiresome that I was just worn threadbare with it, and I told Millspaugh that I wanted to get the thing straightened out; that I couldn't stand it any longer; it was too hot up there."

Promised to Get Togeth.

"Did he indicate to you in these conversations that he was familiar with the details of these transactions?" Myers was asked.

"Yes. He said that is all right and we will attend to it in a few days, and I would ask for an appointment and he would say, we will get together in St. Louis right away to straighten it out."

"Did you tell him any of the details over the telephone?"

"I told him I couldn't clear the checks until I had more money."

"What did he say to that?"

"He said we will arrange for it. What is Mac (McCutchan) doing?" I said. I don't know. He is just promising and that is all I am getting. I cannot do it on that."

"Then what did he say?"

"Well, I said, we have got to have money or we will have to close. He said, 'for God's sake don't do that. It will ruin me,' and I said it will ruin me, too, and that is why I want this money. And then I asked him a time or two to send some more money from these broken banks, but he said he didn't have it where he could get it to do that."

Rheumatism—Gout Lumbago—Sciatica

These troubles are a manifestation of an abnormal or acid condition of the blood largely depending on an inefficient action of the skin, kidneys and liver.

Rheumatism, etc., may be either acute or chronic, but the treatment remains the same. When rheumatism is thoroughly developed the pain is most severe and becomes excruciating upon the slightest movement. The urine becomes highly colored and scanty and the bowels constipated.

Warner's Acute Rheumatic Compound

possesses the power of stimulating the kidneys as well as the liver and digestive apparatus. The acids are consequently passed from the system in the usual manner and pain soon ceases.

Thousands of most severe cases of Rheumatism have been relieved from this painful trouble.

Sold by all druggists. Free sample sent if you write Warner's Safe Remedies Co., Dept. 245, Rochester, N. Y.

The DEAF HEAR PERFECTLY With this New LOUD SPEAKER

A noted Radio Expert has just invented a powerful little Loud Speaker which does for the small portable Ear Phone what the large Loud Speaker does for the Radio.

It greatly increases the volume of sound without loss of clearness and articulation when heard from greater distances than was heretofore possible.

With it, our small portable Ear Phone is made louder than any box instrument many times larger and much more expensive. Almost any make of portable Ear Phone can be used in this wonderful and inexpensive little invention.

PIMPLY? WELL, DON'T BE

People Notice It. Drive Them Off With Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets.

A pimply face will not embarrass you much longer if you get a package of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The skin should begin to clear after you have taken the tablets a few nights.

Cleanse the blood, bowels and liver with Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the successful substitute for calomel; there's no sickness or pain after taking them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do that which calomel does, and just as effectively, but their action is gentle and safe instead of severe and irritating.

No one who takes Olive Tablets is ever cursed wit a "dark brown taste," a bad breath, a dull, listless, "no good" feeling, constipation, torpid liver, bad disposition or pimply face.

Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; you will know them by their olive color.

Dr. Edwards spent years among patients afflicted with liver and bowel complaints and Olive Tablets are the immensely effective result. Take one or two nightly for a week. See how much better you feel and look. 15c and 30c.

TWO MEETINGS FOR COUNTY BONDS TODAY

Advocates of $5,000,000 Issue Figure the Cost at 21 Cents for Each $100.

An average annual tax levy of 21 cents on the $100 valuation will be sufficient to pay the principal and interest on the proposed $5,000,000 road bond issue to be voted on at a special election in St. Louis County Tuesday, April 28, officials of the St. Louis County Permanent Roads and Bridges Association estimates.

The estimate is based on a compilation of expert accountants, who reported to the association, which was organized to support the proposed bond issue, that an examination of records revealed an increase of $45,000,000 in taxable wealth in St. Louis County between 1919 and 1923. The total taxable wealth in St. Louis County in 1923 was $145,000,000.

The estimate of the cost of the road bond issue to taxpayers is made on the basis of a $5,000,000 valuation increase yearly during the 20-year period, an annual increase of approximately $6,000,000.

Sufficient for 300 Miles.

Sponsors of the bond issue estimate that sufficient funds to build 300 miles of hard-surfaced roads will be available if the bond issue carries, giving St. Louis County a network of hard roads extending to all parts of the county.

A large portion of the hard roads in the county now were built with funds from a $3,000,000 road bond issue voted in 1916.

Passage of the bond issue would make available approximately $400,000 received annually from township road funds for work on lateral roads, on which but little money is spent in upkeep at present, its advocates contend. This money is being used now for maintenance of the principal county roads but it is not considerad sufficient to keep them in proper shape.

An active campaign is being made by adherents of the proposed bond issue, an organization having been formed to carry on the campaign among the voters. August A. Busch Jr. has been made chairman of the finance committee and Mayor James M. Jensen of Richmond Heights is chairman of the roads and bridges' association.

Two Meetings Today.

Two meetings in the interest of the bond issue will be held this afternoon. John Malang of Joplin, former State Highway Superintendent, and Archbishop Glennon will address a meeting of the Grant's Farm Boulevard Association at 3:30 p. m. at Grant's Farm, on the Gravois road.

A meeting at 2:30 p. m. at Meramec Highlands will be addressed by John Nolan, legal adviser of the County Court; Julius Nolte, a former Mayor of Clayton, and Arthur V. Lashly, an attorney.

The election was ordered by the County Court after petitions bearing 550 signatures, 250 more than the required number, were submitted asking that it be called.

NEW COMPANY TO ESTABLISH TOURIST CAMPS NEAR CITY

Present Free Location in Forest Park to Be Abolished; Site Leased West of Wellston.

Incorporation of a company to establish and operate tourist camps in and near St. Louis was decided on by representatives of various civic organizations, meeting as the Associated Clubs Tourist Camp Committee, at the City Club Friday night. The present free camp in Forest Park, which has been declared inadequate, is to be abolished.

Organizations represented in the committee will be asked to approve the incorporation proposal. It is thought that camps should be established on all main highways leading into the city. The first one is proposed to be started on tree-shaded leased property on St. Charles road, west of Wellston. This is on the St. Louis-Kansas City route, part of the main east-to-west route in this section.

Stock in the company will be offered at $10 a share and a campaign for subscriptions is to be started at once. Those backing the movement, among whom are Convention Bureau and Automobile Club of Missouri officials, feel that the plan will benefit the city and will pay the stockholders.

BOTHERED WITH ECZEMA IN RASH

Face Was Disfigured. Healed by Cuticura.

"Some time ago I was bothered with eczema which broke out on my face in a rash. I took no notice of it at first until the trouble began to spread and the irritation caused me to scratch. My face was disfigured and the trouble lasted about three months.

"I tried different remedies but none seemed to do any good. I heard about Cuticura Soap and Ointment and purchased some, and after using three cakes of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment I was completely healed." DORRIS MOTOR CAR CO.
(In Voluntary Dissolution)
ST. LOUIS, MO.
TO BE SOLD TO THE HIGHEST BIDDER

Don't miss this unusual opportunity to purchase, in units or as a whole, the Dorris Motor Car Co., and complete equipment for the manufacture of busses, trucks and passenger cars, to be sold in voluntary dissolution, authorized by the stockholders.

The Auction will be held at the plant offices, Sarah St. and Laclede Av., beginning at 9 a. m., April 30, 1925. The following assets will be offered for liquidation.

1 Customers Notes Receivable
2 Customers Accounts Receivable

23 Woodworking Dept., Equip. & Stock
24 Drafting Room Equip. & Supplies (excepting Blue Prints & Patterns)
25 Service Department
26 Dorris Trade Name & Good Will
27 Sundry Items Not Otherwise Mentioned

Financial Statement of February 28, 1925, shows $580,955.15 net book value after reserves for depreciation in excess of $240,000 have been deducted.

High-grade Machine Shop Equipment, as appearing in said financial statement is represented by about $200,000 of the net assets. Another $100,000 represents Service Department stock and equipment.

Famous Dorris Distillator Included in Public Sale

The patents on our nationally known Dorris Distillator will also go to the highest bidder at the Auction. The Dorris Distillator is a successful device for trapping unvaporized gasoline before it reaches the cylinders and returning it to a central reservoir where it is vaporized by heat. The opportunity to obtain the Distillator patents alone makes this auction worthy of any car manufacturer's attention. Don't overlook this big opportunity.

Several Thousand Dorris Trucks and Cars in Operation

And every one of these trucks and passenger cars is still giving its owner complete satisfaction. From the standpoint of power, speed, comfort, and economy, the Dorris Motor Car has gained an enviable reputation in the motor world.

Right now there are twenty busses operating in California with regular Dorris valve-in-head, 6-cylinder motors. These vehicles have been in service for more than two years, climbing high into the snow and cold of the mountains, dropping down into the heat of valleys, seldom running less than 40 miles per hour. Most engines would be short-lived under such conditions, but the Dorris hums merrily on. The Dorris 4-cylinder motor is also rendering real service in busses and trucks over the country.

Remember the date—April 30, 9 a. m. at the Dorris plant, Sarah St. and Laclede Av., St. Louis. Don't miss this sale. Inspection April 27, 28, 29, 9 a. m. to 5 p. m.

Come prepared to make a cash deposit of 25% of your bid if accepted.

FACTORY BUILDING AND SITE FOR SALE

The properties occupied by the Dorris Motor Car Co., were not owned by this company and will not be auctioned. They are for sale, however, and consist of buildings having 130,000 square feet of floor space and 75,000 square feet of vacant ground adjacent. Negotiations for the purchase of these buildings may be opened with the owners, the Dorris Real Estate and Investment Co., St. Louis, Mo.

DIZZINESS, BAD TASTE, FROM LIVER TROUBLE

"I have been using Black-Draught for about forty years—have used it so long until when I go in the drug store they usually ask me if it is Black-Draught I want, and it usually is," says Col. W. A. Roark, a retired U. S. marshal and timber land owner, in Cleveland, Texas.

"I used to have very bad liver trouble," explains Col. Roark.

"I'd have dizziness, bad taste in my mouth, and I wouldn't feel like going around.

"After a few doses of Black-Draught, I would feel well and fit for any work.

"I believe Black-Draught is the best system-cleanser made. I am now 86 years old and feel like 40.

"I keep myself in shape with Black-Draught.

"If I let myself get constipated, my back aches; I get a bad, dull feeling in my head, and when I found that Black-Draught would relieve all this, I take it in time and do not suffer this trouble any more.

"I have taken it for hoarseness and colds, and found it relieved me. I take small doses and believe this is more beneficial for me.

"I gladly recommend Black-Draught to friends, and as for myself, I am absolutely satisfied that it can't be beat for indigestion, and for the liver it's the best medicine made."

Constipation, with an inactive liver, locks up poisons in the body and allows them to do their dangerous work.

Drive out these poisons with Thedford's Black-Draught, the purely vegetable liver medicine. In use over 75 years.

Taken in time, it has helped thousands of men and women to get rid of many dangerous poisons which otherwise might have caused them serious afflictions.

Sold everywhere. JA-13

ALTERATION SALE

THE extensive and complete alterations now in progress in the Conroy Building which, when finished, will transform our sixty-year-old piano corner from an antique to a modern store, force us to throw upon the market a large number of baby grands and player-pianos at almost unbelievable prices.

BABY GRANDS

Terms as Low as
$10.00 Per Month

The desirability of a Baby Grand in the home adds an air of completeness and satisfaction impossible to describe. The tone of a Grand Piano is admitted to be the most desirable.

For almost fifty years every instrument sold by Conroys, regardless of price or type, is still rendering satisfactory service.

Cuts are used for illustration purpose only. They do not reflect the true beauty of the instrument offered.

Fortunately, one of the largest manufacturers in America has demonstrated his gratitude for past orders by cutting his prices on deliveries to cost and the instruments offered you combine two savings—first, the factory's—second, our immediate need for space.

Do not let the prices lead you to believe these instruments are stencils or job-lot merchandise. Get this right! These beautiful players are brand-new and have just arrived from the factory. Owing to the excessively low amount these instruments are being sold for, Conroys have agreed not to advertise the manufacturer's name—but the instruments will be prominently displayed in our windows Monday.

PLAYER-PIANOS

Mechanical Specifications

Cases double veneered and finished in walnut, mahogany and oak. Motor five-point, self-lubricating and inherently balanced. Genuine Ivorine keys. All hardware solid brass. Scale even and without objectionable "breaks" from bass to treble. Tuning pins carefully bushed and made from selected steel. Unisons completely synchronized and adjusted to resonance. Actions improved. Double repeating. Type full bronze plate, copper-wound brass strings. "Hi-Grade" felt hammers. Hardwood backs. In fact, the entire job will delight the men of science along with the music lover.

BABY GRANDS

Mechanical Specifications

Are virtually the same as those incorporated in the players, omitting, of course, the player mechanism, the chief changes being patent sharps and rim construction, which is composed of seven-ply one-eighth inch cross-band "stock."

The instruments proffered you offer a wide variety of style and case design. Some are brand-new, others have been used a very limited number of times for recitals, some are floor samples, but every one is offered at $345 delivered.

PLAYER-PIANOS

Terms as Low as
$10.00 Per Month

Please understand the size of the Down Payment and Monthly Terms are absolutely a matter of minor importance. All we request is the certainty that the instruments will be paid for by the original purchasers and that they will not be resold to speculators

Mostil Safe at Third, After Working a Double Steal With Eddie Collins

Bush Batted Out of Box In Seventh

Three Doubles, a Single, a Pass and Crouse's Second Home Run Give White Sox Six Runs.

By J. Roy Stockton,

The Browns suffered their fourth straight defeat yesterday afternoon and it was a complete rout. Joe Bush appeared to be a good pitcher for six and two-thirds innings and the Browns looked like a pretty fair ball club and then out of the clear came disaster. A close, well-played ball game became a runaway and when the smoke had cleared the score was 14 to 5 in favor of the Chicago White Sox and a crowd of milling angry fans was massed on the field in front of the Browns' dugout, hooting Owner Phil Ball and giving cheers for William "Baby Doll" Jacobson.

For five innings the crowd desisted from mention of Jacobson's name. Bennett was doing well in center field, was hitting the ball hard and the Browns were out in front. And then in the sixth inning, after two outs, Joe Bush walked Willie Kamm. Crouse connected solidly with one of Joe's fast ones and the ball sailed on a line for left-center.

Fly Becomes Home Run

"Baby Doll" Jacobson is one of the greatest fly ball chasers in baseball. With the crack of the bat he is in stride and he has the intuition of the great outfielder and the sure hands to execute the catches.

Bennett was a bit slow starting for that line drive. He almost reached it, he put out a bare hand, but missed connections and the ball sailed on and crashed the fence. Bennett in his eagerness fell as he tried to check his stride, then as he sought to pick up the ball his fingers became thumbs and while he was fighting that harmless little ball, Crouse rounded base after base and turned the drive into a home run.

Immediately a thousand throats set up a yell for Jacobson. It did seem that Jake would have made the catch. At any rate, the fans decided that Jake would have made light work of such a drive and the howl for the holdout outfielder grew and grew.

Bush Weakens in Seventh.

Bush went to pieces in the next inning. Again he got the first two batters, but he never retired another. With two down, Collins doubled to left-center. Sheely passed a two-bagger to the same spot and Falk made it three doubles in a row. Harris lined a single to center and Kamm drew a walk. Sisler and Bush conferred. It was decided that Bush would pitch to Crouse. He pitched and Crouse hit the ball into the rightfield bleachers, scoring behind Harris and Kamm.

George Grant checked the attack, but Stauffer, starting to pitch in the eighth, walked the first three batters and before the inning closed, the White Sox got four more runs.

Home Run for McManus.

Hollis Thurston, formerly with the Browns, pitched for the White Sox and was hit fairly hard, the Browns collecting ten safeties. The Browns scored a run in the second on singles by McManus and Bennett and an infield out. Two more were produced in the third on a walk, hit batter, sacrifice, single and an infield out. Thurston then held the Browns scoreless until the ninth, when Williams started with a single and McManus parked the ball in the left field bleachers.

Bush's downfall in the seventh was as unexpected as it was sudden. He had yielded two runs in the first inning, but his support was poor and he had little trouble with the Sox from that inning until the unfortunate sixth, when Bennett failed to make that catch.

Police Disperse Crowd Jeering Ball for Failing to Sign Jake 500 Fans Assemble on Field After Browns' Game and College Boy Leads in Cheering for Outfielder and Jeering Club Owner.

Each time a base knock rang off a bat at Sportsman's Park yesterday afternoon, a howl for "Bill" Jacobson, holdout Brownie outfielder, arose, and when the ball game was over a crowd of 500 or more rushed out on the field and assembled in front of owner Phil Ball's box.

With Ball was Ban Johnson, president of the American League, and Walter Fritsch, vice president of the Browns.

A boy from college took the job of cheer leader, and there were organized cheers for "Jake" and boohs for the owner of the Browns.

Ball gamely held his place. Jeers and hoots meant nothing to him, except perhaps to make him more determined to make no compromise in the Jacobson case.

He stayed in his chair until police, summoned after 20 minutes, cleared the field of the disgruntled cash customers.

Ball Undisturbed.

"Anything to say about the demonstration?" Ball was asked after the crowd had departed and he was talking things over with Business Manager Bill Friel in the Browns' office.

"Oh, that little demonstration? That doesn't bother me," he replied. "Those were just the sort of persons who throw pop bottles at umpires."

"Will you be out there in your box, receiving tomorrow?" he was asked.

"Will I?" and the fire of battle gleamed in Ball's eyes. "I'll say I'll be there. I do wish, though, that I had my strength and health."

Pikers Shut Out Shurtleff, 14 to 0

Levy Holds Altonites to Two Hits; Washington Sluggers Chase Enemy Pitcher.

ALTON, Ill., April 18.—Washington University of St. Louis had an easy time with Shurtleff College here today, wonning by the shutout score of 14—0. Charley Levy, Piker hurler, let the locals down with two hits, both singles and well scattered.

Washington started a heavy scoring attack in the fourth inning when Stanford began the session with a homer over the right-field fence. The Pikers scored 10 runs and drove Kelsey from the hill.

Stanford, Conradus and Thym got three hits apiece for the visitors and led in the stick work.

At no time were the Pikers in danger of losing the game.

Johnson Expects Jacobson to Sign

American League Head Sees Browns Lose Fourth Straight Game.

Phil Ball, president of the Browns, and President Byron Bancroft Johnson of the American League conferred for several hours yesterday in Ball's offices in the Security Building and later at the Noonday Club, during lunch.

But what it was all about was not disclosed. President Johnson said that it was not about Bill Jacobson's case, although his name might have come up casually in the course of informal conversation.

"I expect Jacobson to sign a contract soon," Mr. Johnson said in answer to a question if the league would take any notice of the Jacobson incident.

"No. I have not been in communication with Jacobson and have not interfered in the matter at all. It's Mr. Ball's business. However, I think he will be in line before the limit expires."

Mr. Johnson stated that he had just notified all American League club presidents to attend the funeral next Tuesday of the late Charles Ebbets, president of the Brooklyn Club, who died of heart disease Friday night.

3 World Records Broken, One Tied At Kansas Meet

In Addition, Two Intercollegiate and Seven Meet Marks Are Shattered.

By the Associated Press.

LAWRENCE, Kan., April 18.—Three world's records were smashed, one was tied, and two American intercollegiate marks were shattered in an avalanche of remarkable performances in the third annual University of Kansas relay carnival in the Kansas Memorial stadium, this afternoon. In addition to the world's records, 17 records for the meet were cracked.

The carnival, with an entry of nearly 1000 athletes representing 100 universities, colleges and high schools, from 14 States was staged under weather conditions highly favorable for the record-smashing.

The new world's records established were:

440-yard university relay.
The 880-yard university relay.
The university medley event.

The University of Kansas quartet smashed all existing records for the 40-yard relay by covering the distance in the remarkable time of 42 seconds, clipping one-and-three-tenths seconds off the mark hung up by the University of Illinois team in the Drake relay carnival in 1923.

The record-breaking Kansas team was composed of Powers, Wongwai, Roney and Fisher, running in the order named.

Illini Team Wins 440.

The crack university of Illinois relay team, coached by the veteran Harry Gill, smashed the world's mark for the 880-yard event, established by a team representing the New York A. C. in 1921. The Illini flyers, consisting of Schoch, Yarnell, Hughes and Evans, clipped four-tenths of a second off the mark, covering the distance of 1:27.

The University of Texas team cracked the third world's mark of the day by stepping the medley relay in 7:35 6-10, beating its own mark of 7:38 2-10, hung up in the Kansas meet a year ago. The event was at 7-8 mile, the runners—Budd, Cockrell, Glass and Reese—covering 440, 220 and 880 yards and one mile.

Locke Equals Dash Record.

Roland Locke of Nebraska, after tieing the world's record of :09 6-10 in his preliminary heat of the 100-yard dash, captured the final in even ten seconds after a thrilling and close finish with MacAndrews, the Wisconsin speedster. Locke's performance in his preliminary heat will stand as a record for the Kansas relays, beating the old mark of 10 seconds established by Irwin of Kansas in 1924.

The American intercollegiate records to fall were in the pole

22 Hits for Rickeymen; Bell Poles Two Homers, Two Doubles and Single

Three Out of Three for Hornsby — Hartnett Chalks Up His Fifth Circuit Clout — "Pea Ridge" Day Has an Easy Time.

By Herman Wecke,
Of the Post-Dispatch Sport Staff.

CHICAGO, April 18.—It rained base hits all over the Cubs' park today, while 24,000 of the faithful shivered in the stands, but most of the raining came from Cardinal bats.

The Rickeymen showing that devastating punch for which they are noted, showered five Bruin pitchers for 22 hits and when all the details had been recorded it was found that the St. Louis club had won its second straight game. The final score was 20 to 5.

Chief among the sluggers for the Cardinal was Lester Bell, the young third sacker. He made five hits, including two doubles and a brace of home runs. Both of his circuit smashes came with men on the sacks. Hornsby had three out of three, while he drew three bases on balls.

Included in the safeties for the Rickeymen were six doubles, a triple and five home runs.

All told there were seven circuit blows, all of them into or over the convenient bleachers in left. "Gabby" Hartnett socked one for the Bruins in the first, his fifth in four days. Miller got one in the eighth.

Day Has It Easy.

While all this clubbing was going on, Clyde "Pea Ridge" Day, obtained from Muskogee, starting his first game of the season, had things. Easy. He pitched a good game, especially after the first inning, when the Bruins put over three of their markers. All told the Cubs connected safely 14 times against Day's offerings.

The contest started out well, each side scoring three times in the first round, with two home runs thrown in among the base knocks. For the Cardinals, Blades walked and Hornsby beat out an infield tap. Bottomley then connected for a drive that landed among the spectators in the left field bleachers. For the Cubs, Heathcote bunted safely, Adams was safe on Thevenow's boot and Hartnett poled one into the left-field seats.

Lester Bell Rings 'Em Up.

The third inning saw the end of Keen. Hornsby and Bottomley opened with doubles and then Bell singled for his second hit of the season. It finished Keen, and Bush came in. He walked Mueller, and on Golzales' tap, made a wild throw to the plate, which permitted Bottomley and Bell to tally. A bit later Heine Mueller was caught at the plate on Day's attempted squeeze bunt, and he protested so long and loudly that he was told he was through for the day by Umpire Pfirman.

More long and lusty socking by the Rickeymen in the fourth. Holm singled and Hornsby doubled for his third hit. Bottomley went out but Bell parked one into the bleachers in left-center, scoring two mates ahead of him. Gonzales singled and Thevenow tripled to put over the fourth run of the round. This incidentally was the last in which Mr. Guy Bush toiled. For the Cubs, singles by Friberg, Statz and Barrett, up for Bush, with a force-out thrown in, gave the Bruins one.

Blades Hits Over Bleachers.

Against Elmer Jacobs, once a Cardinal, in the fifth, the Rickeymen continued to crash. Blades greeted him with a smash that went over the left field bleachers. Holm followed with a single and Hornsby walked. Bell crashed a double to left on which Holm paid off. Douthit walked to fill the bases and Hornsby tallied on Gonzales' infield out.

More heavy artillery fire in the seventh. After Hornsby walked and Bottomley doubled, Bell hit over the left field bleachers for his second homer of the game and his fourth successive hit. Exit Jacobs and enter Jones. Douthit reached second on Miller's muff and scored when Flack, up for Blades, singled.

Shelling continued in the eighth. Two out, Bell doubled for his fifth straight hit and Douthit parked one in the bleachers. In the Bruin half, Miller put one outside the confines of the playing field for the seventh four-bagger of the contest.

A couple of passes, a single and a sacrifice fly gave the Cards run No. 20 in the ninth against Stueland.

Grover Alexander and Bill Sherdel are the probable hurlers for the second game of the series tomorrow.

22 Hits for 42 Bases.

REDS WIN FROM PIRATES IN OPENING GAME OF SERIES, 12-2

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CINCINNATI, O., April 18.—In the first clash of the season between the Reds and Pirates, which took place here today, the Reds romped home the winners, 12 to 2, by mauling Adams, Kremer and Koupal for 16 hits, while Donohue was holding the Pittsburgers to four hits.

Both of Pittsburg's runs were unearned, resulting from Red errors. Donohue sewed up the game, his second victory of the season, by hitting a triple with the bases full in the second, driving in the first runs of the contest. Score:

TWENTY MEET RECORDS ESTABLISHED AT OHIO STATE RELAY CARNIVAL

Hubbard Loses In Broad Jump For First Time

Eastern Schools Take Major Share of Honors in Track Meet.

GEORGETOWN VICTOR

Two-Mile and One-Mile Relay Events Go to Washington, D. C., Team.

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., April 18.—Track stars of the University of Michigan and Georgetown University were outstanding performers in the University section of the Ohio relays held at Ohio Stadium this afternoon. Inclement weather prevented the setting of any marks, although a score of meet records were established. The relays were inaugurated last year.

Michigan took first place in five field events and two in the triathlon. Ohio State, however, won all the events in the penthalon.

De Hart Hubbard, Michigan negro star, was a prominent factor in his team's victories, but lost by a margin of a quarter of an inch to Dowding of Georgetown in the running broad jump. This is the first time in Hubbard's college career that he has been defeated in this event.

The pole vault competition ended in a quadruple tie at 12 feet after Brooker, Michigan premier vaulter, had withdrawn with a stiff knee. Norton of Georgetown won the event and the cup on a toss.

Events Held in the Rain.

Winners of the other events in the University section were: Shotput, won by Dauber, Iowa, 44 feet 5½ inches; running broad jump, Dowding, Georgetown, 23 feet 2 inches; 120-yard high hurdles, Guthrie, Ohio State, 15.2 seconds; one-mile team race, Hicks, Michigan, 4:28:08; half-mile relay, Michigan, 1:30:20; two-mile relay, Georgetown, 8 minutes 6 1-10 seconds; high jump, Russell, Chicago, 6 feet ¾ inch; distance medley relay, Michigan, 10:51; 100-yard dash, Hubbard, Michigan, 9.8 seconds; one-mile relay, Georgetown, 3 minutes 23.9 seconds; triathlon events, shotput won by Manz, Michigan; javelin throw, by Shively, Illinois; discus throw, by Manz, Michigan; hammer throw, by Taylor, Pennsylvania.

More than 900 athletes were entered from high schools and colleges of the State as well as universities from outside Ohio. A crowd of 2500 braved the rain to watch the events.

The Summaries:

ONE MILE TEAM RACE—For the Thomas E. French challenge trophy, colleges and universities: Won by Michigan; first, Hicks, Michigan; second, Harnberger, Michigan; third, Ross, Ohio State; fourth, Kennedy, Ohio State. Hicks' time 4 minutes 28 8-10 seconds.

The tremendous advantage in size which Wayne "Big" Munn had over the aged Stanislaus Zbyszko is evident in this photograph taken just before their championship wrestling bout at Philadelphia. Zbyszko tossed Munn in eight minutes and then in four minutes, gaining the championship.

Turned 10,000 Back Handsprings And Landed Standing Up, a Champion

15-Year-Old David Sharpe, St. Louis Boy, Tells How He Learned Early to Do Cartwheels and Became Country's Best Tumbler.

Coach Al Treloar of Los Angeles Given Much Credit for His Success by Youth Who Won Title in Competition With Men.

By Dent McSkimming.

It is an accepted fact among gymnasts that a tumbler cannot perfect the "flip-flap" unless he has practiced the trick at least 10,000 times.

The "flip-flap" is what the uninitiated would term a back handspring.

In order to become an accomplished tumbler, an athlete must perfect not alone the "flip-flap," but many other tricks, most of them more difficult than any handspring, and almost every one must be rehearsed thousands of times before anything approaching perfection is attained.

This absolute necessity for rigorous training and practice for days, weeks and months makes the feat of David Sharpe the more astonishing.

At the age of 15, young Sharpe has won the National Amateur Athletic Union championship in tumbling. He won the honor after a 3000-mile trip from Los Angeles to New York, and it was necessary for him to win from full-grown men.

A St. Louis Boy.

David, the son of Harry S. Sharpe, boxing referee and sports authority, is in St. Louis today on his return to Los Angeles. He was born in St. Louis on Feb. 2, 1910, but he is going to school in California. He was asked what it is that has enabled him to accomplish in the short space of a few years what young men of many years' training had failed to do.

"I suppose 'most any boy could become a good tumbler if he had the desire and a good instructor," replied David.

"My coach, Al Treloar of Los Angeles, is probably responsible for my success. I did like to turn 'cart wheels' and, of course, I used to walk on my hands and do somersaults before I met Mr. Treloar, four years ago. But I know a lot of boys who can do those stunts.

"One day a friend of mine took me into the Los Angeles A. C. gymnasium. He asked me to show Mr. Treloar how I could turn my cart wheels and hand stands. I didn't know the names of the stunts but I did everything I knew and when I finished Mr. Treloar asked me to come in again. He told me later that he believed he could make a good tumbler out of me. Mr. Treloar, you know, was one of the greatest gymnasts in the world some years ago.

DAVID SHARPE.

Tried Stunts 1000 Times.

"Well, I was so glad to have the chance to work in the fine gymnasium under a coach that I chased right down there after school three days a week. It's a good thing I liked tumbling because pretty soon I was trying some of the stunts for the thousandth time.

"But Mr. Treloar has never let the practice get tiresome. He has always let me work longest on the kind of tricks I do best and we never specialized on one type. Tumbling has been great fun for me and Mr. Treloar seems to have enjoyed teaching me new tricks as fast as I could learn them. So Mr. Treloar and I got to be great pals and we worked for hours and hours.

Victor in First Competition.

"The first big test in competition came two years ago when I was entered in the Pacific Coast A. A. U. tournament. But I was fortunate enough to win and the victory gave me a lot of confidence. Last year, just when I should have started training for the district championship, I fell and broke my arm. That kept me off the mat for six or eight months.

"When I returned I found difficulty in doing some of my tricks but we worked harder than ever, with the national championship meet coming on, and we accomplished a great deal.

"At New York last week I had the good fortune to win the national championship. There was one other boy in the tournament, Billy Herman of Philadelphia. He is 14 years old. The other competitors were men, some as old as 40. Billy Herman, a fine tumbler and a good pal, had finished third in 1923 and second in 1924. Everyone expected him to win this year, that is everyone except Mr. Treloar, all the Los Angeles A. C. and my dad. I had heard of Billy and I certainly wanted to win. It was pretty close competition but I won out and Billy finished second."

"Hand Stand" First Stunt.

David was asked to tell what fundamental tricks were best for young boys who have a desire to try tumbling.

"The coaches say a tumbler must first learn to stand on his hands. That develops a sense of balance, they say, and gets a fellow fixed so he doesn't get dizzy. A boy can't start right in and turn 'flip-flaps.' And, just because he can't turn twisting sommersaults he shouldn't get discouraged. If he learns first the hand-stand and then the 'nip-up' and then front somersaults and then, perhaps, the 'flip-flap,' he will be getting right along."

The Los Angeles A. C. has presented David with an athletic membership and he has become the club mascot. His expenses to and from New York are borne by the club. He had company on the trip East, however. Coach Treloar and Mrs. Treloar and Paul Krempel, national champion on the flying rings, made up the party. Krempel and Sharpe won the team trophy, as well as two individual championships. Some clubs had as many as six entered in the competition, but the Los Angeles A. C.'s two entries carried off highest honors.

David is in his first year at high school. He intends to go to a university and he hopes to compete in the Olympic Games of 1928 or 1932. The games will be held in Los Angeles in 1932.

Babe Ruth Improved.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 18.—Although Babe Ruth, baseball's home run king, still had a slight temperature tonight, his physicians announced that virtually all signs of influenza and indigestion had disappeared. The physicians said Ruth still was in a weakened condition and it was not expected that he could return to the New York Yankee lineup for another month.

Zbyszko Agrees To Outdoor Mat Bout Here May 6

Opponent for His First Match Since Winning Title to Be Named Later.

Tom Packs, local wrestling show promoter, announced yesterday that he had received word from Stanislaus Zbyszko, the new wrestling champion, that he had agreed to wrestle here on May 6, outdoors. His opponent, as yet unnamed, is to be chosen by Packs.

Zbsyzko also said, in reply to Packs' wire offering him $40,000 for match with Joe Stecher, that he would accept the offer, provided that Stecher would add $10,000 to the purse.

Stecher previously had accepted the offer of a chance at Zbyszko. Stecher has been offering Munn $25,000 for a chance at the title. It is believed he will accept Zbyszko's offer.

PLESTINA TO WRESTLE ALL COMERS AT LOCAL SHOW HOUSE THIS WEEK

Marin Plestina, one of the greatest wrestlers in the game today, who has been frozen out of a title opportunity for nearly nine years by the various champions who have held the crown, will appear at the Liberty Theater, this week, in a new role.

Plestina is pulling a John L. Sullivan in guaranteeing any and all comers $200 if he fails to toss any one of them within 30 minutes. He also will give any man who throws him $1000. Plestina's manager says his man bars no one, and prefers that Jim Londos and Oreste Vadalfi be among those who take a chance with him.

Schwarze Puts Shot 49 10⅛.

Herbert Schwarze, giant putter of Wisconsin, smashed the intercollegiate mark for this event with a heave of 49 feet 10⅛ inches, bettering the former record of 48 feet 10¾ inches, made by R. L. Beatty of Columbia, also in 1912.

Schwarze, whose performances have improved remarkably since last season, gives promise of lowering the world's record of 51 feet made by Ralph Rose, California athlete, before the end of the 1925 campaign.

Dan Kinsey Falls.

Kinsey, winner of the 110-yard hurdles in the Olympics, fell in his lunge to the tape, sprawling flat in the cinders a few inches from the finish. He had no chance for victory before the spill, however, as Weir had the lead.

Lucke of Nebraska tied the world's 100-yard dash record of 9 3-5 seconds.

The summaries:

WRAY'S COLUMN

The Case of Dick Kerr.

TODAY, at the All-Stars (negro) Park, will be seen in action an example of what a baseball chattel really is. If you want to see what the baseball system can do to a player, take a peek at Dick Kerr, St. Louis boy and hero of the scandal series of 1919.

Dick today is pitching for the Shell team, a member of the municipal league group. He will hurl against the All-Stars at the negro team's park.

It was "holding out" that brought Kerr to his present pass—that of an outlaw under suspension by Organized Baseball, and deprived of the right to make his own living at his own profession, freely. He has stood suspended ever since 1920.

Hero of Bribe Series.

KERR, who was one of the honest pitchers of the scandal series and who won two games for the Sox, asked a raise in salary that winter. He was then new to the club and was not getting much. He was entitled to a raise.

He did NOT get it. He became stubborn. He went unsigned past the allotted limit and then drew a suspension. He played with an outlaw team and got himself deeper into the mire. Although he has made application for reinstatement, Landis has not yet reinstated him and will not, this year.

Thus, because he insisted on demanding what was his due, Kerr has been deprived of the right to take his wares to the best market, for nearly six years!

Today he is playing with a mere "house" team when he might be drawing his $16,000 or more a year.

Look Out, Jake!

WE commend this case of Kerr to the attention of Bill Jacobson, who is now within five days of precisely the situation in which Kerr finds himself—out of a job and no market to take his goods to.

It is the one weak spot of baseball that a player CAN not be permitted to peddle his wares when and where he will. Owners would find it impossible to keep clubs toether, otherwise, and baseball would become amere scramble and cut-throat grab for stars at the end of each season, if players were free to deal with rival teams.

Squire Ebbet's Legacy.

SQUIRE EBBETS, who rose from bookkeeper of the Brooklyn club to be its owner and able to spend his winters in Florida, is dead. Aside from sundry shares of stock in the Dodgers and other tangible convertible assets, he left another legacy—one which in life his fellow club owners declined as a gift.

This was a little bit of advice—which is seldom acceptable—and a few meteorological statistics concerning the comparative rainfall and temperature of the months of April and October, over a period of half a century.

Ebbets long contended that it would be better to let the baseball schedule run deep into October, than to start it in mid-April. His statistics proved most conclusively that October averaged many more clear days than April and seldom suffered in temperature comparisons. He therefore urged his point, but in vain.

Why, we never have been able to learn. For if ever figures won an argument, Squire Ebbets' dope scored a knockout.

They are still in his safe, doubtless, and perhaps the best thing they could do with the bequest of the Squire would be to put posthumously into force the Ebbets plan.

What to Do With It?

NOW that Zbyszko has won the championship at the ripe age of 50—some say 52—what's he going to do about it? The old man still has a great fund of wrestling science, but he's too old to last against the younger men of the game.

However, he will do a little kale-harvesting in the meantime—his third reaping as champion in Europe and America.

But Zibby doesn't need the money. So why not pass the title on to little brother Wladek, who trains with the Curley band? Wladek could use the title. Let's watch the idea grow.

Miller to Replace Kiel as Cardinals' First Ball Pitcher

A GOLDEN JUBILEE year celebration will mark the Cardinals' home opening at Sportsman's Park Wednesday, Secretary Hi Mason announces.

The band, of course, will be there as usual, and Victor J. Miller, who will take offcei as Mayor Tuesday, will pitch the first ball. Mayor Kiel, who will retire Tuesday as first-ball pitcher and as the city's chief executive, will be in the Miller party, but has declined to take part in the festivities.

But the special show Wednesday will be at the flagpole in center field. Before the game, President Sam Breadon of the Cardinals and President Garry Herrmann of the Cincinnati Reds will escort Miller to the flagpole, in a parade of the band and two ball clubs, for the raising of a pennant in tribute to the National League's 50 years of operation. Similar pennants are adorning the flagpoles at other National League parks.

Langford Was Hardest Hitter He Ever Faced, Harry Wills Declares

Negro Heavyweight Tells of Being Fired Out of Jack Johnson's Training Camp, When, as Sparring Partner, He Got Rough.

In this, the fifth chapter of the life story of Harry Wills, as told to a representative of the Post-Dispatch, the man who is generally recognized as Champion Dempsey's most dangerous challenger, praises Sam Langford as the hardest hitter he ever faced.

Chapter V.

(Copyright, 1925.)

Talk about hitting! Well, I've met some hard punchers in my time, and all I can say is that the hardest blows any of them ever landed on me were like a slap in the face from a woman compared with those bone-crushing wallops of Langford. They seemed to go right through you.

When Sam hit you in the body you'd kind of look around half expecting to see his glove sticking out of your back. When he hit you on the chin—well, when that happened you didn't think at all until they brought you back to life again.

Sam McVey was a good fighter, but he used a lot of tricks that many followers of the game considered unfair. He also had a left hook that was the best I ever saw. Langford could not whip over that blow with more speed or more accuracy and there was plenty of shock behind it.

As to Jack Johnson, he was a smart fellow in many ways, but in others he showed no sense at all.

About Jack Johnson.

But Johnson showed a great liking for the limelight. As long as he made people talk about him he was happy, and he never stopped to think that he was doing himself more harm than good.

If you were a young fellow trying to get along, Johnson would not show you anything. I recall the way he treated me when he was training to fight Jim Flynn at Las Vegas. I was a young fellow then who didn't know much, but anxious to get somewhere.

Jack Curley, who was promoting the match and looking after Johnson, offered me a job as sparring partner. I was glad to take it because I needed the money and thought I might learn something from the champion. There was a big crowd looking on the day we put on the gloves.

From the start, Johnson tried to make me look silly. Remember, at this time, although I was broke, I had something of a reputation, earned through hard fighting, and a boxer's reputation is his only asset.

Of course, I expected to be hit and be hit hard. I would not have minded that, for I was strong and tough, and it is all in the game. But when Johnson stopped straight boxing and tried to make me look bad, I got kind of sore.

A Test of Strength.

Johnson was proud of his strength. He thought there was no one in the ring his equal in that respect. One of his favorite tricks was to grab your arms, waltz you around and laugh, and then suddenly let you go and uppercut you.

Well, after he tried that on me a few times, laughing and kidding with the crowd at my exp decided I'd see which wa stronger of the two. The he grabbed my arms to sh back I set myself and thre across the ring. That wip grin off his face in a hurr the crowd began to laug instead of with him.

Having lost his goat, Johns gan to slug. That was playing into my hands, for I was and a harder hitter. After it for a few moments he be get the worst of it, so he cl and held on.

That was the only time I boxed with Johnson. He told C ley to pay me off and let me go.

Roosevelt and Yeatman Win High School League Contests

New Member of Circuit Defeats Soldan, 9 to 6, and North Side Nine Trims Cleveland, 7 to 4—Pitcher Readmon Strikes Out 14 Batters.

Roosevelt defeated Soldan, 9 to 6 and Yeatman downed Cleveland, 7 to 4 in the doubleheader of the City High School Baseball League, at St. Louis University field yesterday afternoon. None of the pitchers showed much stuff, though Readmon struck out 14 batters. Cleveland outhit Yeatman 9 to 6, but eight walks proved the downfall of two Cleveland hurlers, Vogt being the only one to find the plate.

Soldan maintained a three-run lead from the first inning up to the opening of the fourth. Roosevelt scored four runs in this frame. Wise had doubled, scoring Thomas, who had walked. Wise continued to third while Heil was being tossed out by Pulford. Robertson grounded to Christiansen, who held the ball watching Wise on third base. Finally Christiansen decided to get rid of the ball and he threw in an attempt to catch the Roosevelt first-sacker, who was safely perched on the bag. Meanwhile, Robertson had reached first. He then stole second. Instead of tossing out Frederic, who had driven a grounder along first base, Tobler elected to catch Wise at home, but his throw was wild, permitting Robertson to score behind Wise.

Fielding Is Erratic.

Frederic trotted to second. Christiansen donated first base to Haverstock when he permitted his grounder to bounce off his shins. Frederic went to third on the boot. Haverstock stole second. While Hemker was busy fanning Jarrett, Frederic and Haverstock worked the double steal, the former scoring and the latter reaching the far corner. Hill was thrown out by the Soldan shortstop to end the inning.

Failure on part of the fielders to think fast enough permitted many runs to score, which were not deserved. The outfielders in many cases would peg to homeplate in a vain endeavor to catch the man going home, thus permitting other runners to reach scoring position.

The only bright spot in the Soldan work was the hitting of Jones, outfielder and pitcher. Jones knocked out a single and a double in four attempts. Levy tripled to left to drive in two runs in the first inning. He was expected to continue his attack during the game, but he could not get the ball out of the infield after his first drive.

Wise supplied the batting punch for Roosevelt with two singles and a double out of five trips to the plate.

Wildness of Hurlers Nullifies Batting Punch of Cleveland Nine

The wildness of the Cleveland pitchers spoiled the batting attack shown by the team. Captain Joe Mowry led with four bingles, one being for two bases. Three of his blows went for naught, as his teammates left him stranded on the paths. Starkloff and Musgrove played a good brand of ball. These two lads were unafraid of the hardest hit grounders.

Hohn did not display the stuff yesterday, which he packed last week. The work of Nelgner cannot be criticised since he went in with two on and none out. Nelgner loaded the bases with passes, only to have them cleared, when Hobs threw past Starkloff on Spellmeyer's single through short. Vogt then went in and after walking Grant, he settled down to business, to toss out Long and to fan Wunderlich, both of whom were up for the second time.

Fahrenkrog made two of the six Yeatman hits. Long's double, which started the fireworks in the hectic fifth, was the only bingle for extra bases.

Athletics Defeat Walter Johnson

Slim Harris Holds World's Champions to 5 Scattered Hits.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., April 18. —Slim Harris pitched one of the best games of his career here today and shut out Washington in a 3-0 game, while 35,000 fans, the largest in the history of Philadelphia baseball, worked themselves into a frenzy over the tall Texan's work.

Harris allowed but five scattered singles and only one Senator reached third base. He was also given brilliant support by his teammates. The Athletics hit Walter Johnson for 11 blows and 17 bases, but the contest was undecided until the eighth, when Bill Lamar hit over the right-field fence for a home-run with Bishop on base.

ILLINOIS WINS FIRST CONTEST OF SEASON, DEFEATING IOWA, 4-1

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., April 18.—Kinderman twirled excellent ball for Illinois against Iowa this afternoon and the Illini won its opening Big Ten Conference clash, 4 to 1. The Illini twirler struck out five, walked three and allowed but two hits. Marshall, working for Iowa, was nicked for five hits, walked two and struck out two. Iowa started the scoring of the game in the fourth inning when Beardsley scored after being walked and taking second on a wild pitch. He came home on Scantlebury's double. The Illini annexed two runs in the fifth frame and repeated in the eighth. Margolis' triple in the latter was responsible for the two tallies.

Public Schools Pennant Race to Open Tomorrow

48 Schools Will Compete for Post-Dispatch Trophy and Medals.

The St. Louis Public School baseball season will open Monday in the race for the Post-Dispatch trophy and medals when the teams in Group B, Group E and two in Group H play their first elimination matches. The Harrison School squad won the trophy last season.

Altogether there are 56 schools represented in the race, including eight negro schools. They are divided into groups of six each for the whites and of four teams each in the negro group. The St. Louis Argus, a negro newspaper, has contributed a cup for the winner in the negro branch.

The 48 contenders for the Post-Dispatch trophy are divided into eight groups. They are grouped according to their proximity to baseball grounds in the public parks. When the present schedule has been fulfilled, the winners in each group will take part in the final elimination matches for the trophy.

CLEVELAND BATTERS SCORE 5 TO 3 VICTORY OVER DETROIT TIGERS

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DETROIT, April 18. — Cleveland had Detroit's measure at all stages of their series opening here today and 5 to 3 was the verdict favoring the Indians.

Wells and Smith, both portsiders, were the pitchers and the former had much the best of the argument, as he kept the Tiger hits well scattered until the seventh, when Cobb rushed in a brace of pinch hitters, Neun and Fothergill, who connected and threatened to start a stampede. When the regulars came to bat they fell as they had before and the storm was over.

KIRKWOOD WINS OVER COUNTRY DAY, 15-10, IN SLUGGING CONTEST

Kirkwood High School defeated Country Day yesterday morning in a slugging match on the Country Day campus 15 to 10. Kirkwood took an early lead and was never headed.

Three Country Day pitchers went down before the Kirkwood assault, none showing effectiveness except Ferguson, a recruit. Rex pitched consistently for Kirkwood.

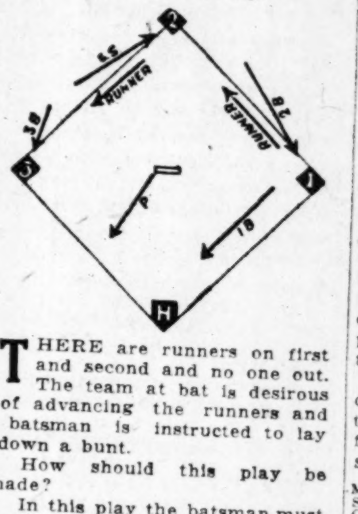
Eddie Collins TIPS ON INSIDE BASE-BALL

Diagram of Play.



THERE are runners on first and second and no one out. The team at bat is desirous of advancing the runners and batsman is instructed to lay down a bunt.

How should this play be made?

In this play the batsman must try so to bunt the ball that it will be impossible to make a play on the runners, other than himself. Of course, if he so bunts the ball that it is impossible to retire anybody, he has exceeded expectations.

On bunted balls that go dead almost directly in front of the plate, the catcher should make the play to the base best suited. Forcing the runner at third is most desired, while pulling a double play is the height of perfection.

On this play the pitcher and third baseman usually have an understanding. A good fielding pitcher always handles bunts down the third-baseline, and if he has a chance, makes a throw to third, that player covering. If the pitcher is a weak fielder, the third baseman comes in and makes the play.

The first baseman handles bunts down the first baseline, the second baseman covers first and the shortstop, second.

Central Shades St. Louis U. High In Close Battle

Mid-Cityans Gains Early Lead to Win 5-4 Victory Over Billiken Juniors.

Central High chalked up a close victory over the St. Louis University High baseball squad yesterday morning at St. Louis U. Athletic Field by a score of 5 to 4. Central's lead, acquired in the early part of the game, was too much for the belated rally of the young Billikens in the last three sessions.

The West End aggregation showed greatly improved form over their showing of last week and outhit the Grand avenue squad 9 to 5, but they were unable to bunch their hits.

Haferkamp and McTague proved effective pitchers, each issuing two passes and fanning 6 and 4 batters, respectively.

The Centralites utilized all chances to score and took advantage of four errors by Biliken infielders. The box score:

CHIEF UNCAS' JAMAICA SHOWING TO DETERMINE DERBY ENTRY

Busch's Horse Soon Will Run His First Race

St. Louis-Owned Thoroughbred to Get Test in First Week of Meet to Open April 29.

RUNS WELL IN TRAINING

In Any Event, Son of Omar Khayyam Will Not Start in the Preakness.

By G. F. T. Ryall,
Of the New York World Sport Staff.

NEW YORK, April 18.—Chief Uncas, August A. Busch's candidate for the Kentucky Derby, will make his first appearance under colors during the first week of the Jamaica spring meeting, which will open the metropolitan racing season here on April 29. He will have one more race over the New York track and then, if he gives a good account of himself, the St. Louis-owned horse will be shipped to Churchill Downs.

Chief Uncas is a big question and something of a problem. Not that he has not been training well—so far, he has done everything asked of him—but Harry Sanderson, his trainer, evidences a certain amount of uncertainty as to what the son of Omar Khayaam and Dark Water will do with colors up in a race. The colt has shown plenty of foot in his training trials—his best work being six furlongs in 1:15 over a deep, sandy track, last Wednesday. So far he has not been tried over a long distance, a slow mile on Friday, shading 1:50, being his first effort at more than sprinting distances.

Trained With Short Workouts.

Methods of training horses have changed in the last few years, especially with the younger trainers, of whom Sanderson is one. No more are horses drilled with two-mile gallops and mile and a half workouts weeks before a big race like the Kentucky Derby—rather, they are brought up to the race with plenty of foot and speed, and the trainer trusts to their natural stamina to carry them through the rest of the way.

It may be said in passing that Fred Burlew popularized this method in training Morvich, and Max Hirsch carried on with Sarazen last year. Some say that not so many horses are broken down getting ready for the big early tests this way as in other years, though enough of them go wrong at that.

Chief Uncas has a nice, easy way of going and acts in his gallops as if he knew how to handle himself in a race. However, real racing is quite another thing. Sanderson is going to try Chief Uncas in a race. The trainer believes that one race is better than two workouts, and these public trials with colors up will decide whether he has class enough to be sent for the $50,000 purse.

Not to Run in Preakness.

The colt will not run in the Preakness, at Pimlico, on May 8, although he has been nominated for that race, it being the intention of saving him, if he shows enough, for the race at Churchill Downs. Jus tnow Chief Uncas looks the picture of health and is as sound as when he came up from the farm as a yearling.

Wish-Ton-Wish, the filly, the other member of Busch's string, also has been training well, but she is on the small side and she will have to be pretty good to make her presence felt in such company as Mother Goose, Elf, Swinging, Blue Warbler and Beatrice.

Naturally Sanderson is more sanguine as to the chances of Chief Uncas than the filly. These are now stabled beside Atherstone, winner of the Coffroth Handicap, which arrived from Tia Juana last Tuesday, after a six-day trip.

Up to now, Chief Uncas has attracted little attention around here, as, with the exception of Finland, which Sande gallops in the mornings, no 3-year-olds of any importance were stabled at Jamaica. However, Master Charlie, a favorite in the future betting for the Kentucky Derby, arrived at Jamaica on Friday and from now on the clockers will be watching him gallop and incidentally will tab the other 3-year-old colts.

Master Charlie Well Liked.

Stimulus is out of all engagements for this season and those who took a flyer on him in the winter books have only the tickets as a reminder of what might have been. Naturally the absence of Stimulus will take some interest from the early classics for 3-year-olds, but there was always a question in the minds of many horsemen whether the son of Ultimus was anything more than a sprinter.

Master Charlie is the horse that everyone is talking about now, especially after his remarkable trial at New Orleans just before he was shipped North. It is said that E. R. Bradley, who dabbles more than a little in the Kentucky Derby, telephoned Tom Shaw the other day and told the big layer that in his opinion Master Charlie had both the Preakness and the Kentucky Derby at his mercy. Bradley might have been kidding a bit, for reports from Maryland are to the effect that American Flag is going to make things interesting for any man's horse in either or both of the races. Single Foot, too, is well liked, though there is no suggestion of it in the future book prices. Out in Kentucky Our General and Capt. Hal are getting much support, along with Lee O. Cotner.

Rowe Has Big String.

However, the Kentucky Derby is still four weeks away and much can happen between now and post time on May 16.

Jimmy Rowe is not so sanguine about his chances and judging by the form of one of his candidates, Candy Kid, his colts are not so good as his fillies. However, it is expected that Coronation and Chantey, the two colts that never started last year, will be heard from. Rowe has the advantage of a trainer with a small string, like Sanderson, who has a 3-year-old that never has started, for Rowe, with a big string at his command, can, and does, give his maiden colts as still trials as they get in any race.

U. S. Davis Cup Team to Face Its Severest Test Since 1914

Australia, France, Spain and Possibily Japan, All Able to Make Formidable Fight—Williams, Richards and Johnston Will Have to Be at Their Best.

By William T. Tilden, II.

It is still too early in the year to come down to a close analysis of the Davis Cup competition, since many of the teams have not yet been announced, but the official draw which placed twenty-five nations in action, sixteen in the European zone and nine in the American, gives an indication of the logical line-up for the closing rounds. For the first time since the zoning system was put into effect the American zone is more interesting than the European.

W. TILDEN II.

Notwithstanding the greater number of entrants in the Continental division, the real battle will be waged here between Japan, and Australia.

In glancing over the prospects abroad I should say that France dominates the European zone by a wide majority. England, if she musters her greatest strength. Belgium, Holland and Czecho-Slovakia might give the great French team a battle, but I see little chance of any nation defeating Lecoste, Cochet, Borotra and Gobert before the interzone final round.

I believe that in Cochet and Lacoste France has a team that may succeed in reaching the challenge round and even lifting the cup itself.

It is among the "big three" of the American zone that the battle will rage. On paper one regards the Australians as certain victors.

They have their greatest strength in singles, with Gerald L. Patterson and J. O. Anderson both on the team.

Woods Will Be Missed.

J. B. Hawkes is the third man possibly to be used with Anderson in doubles, although personally I consider Patterson the best doubles player of the three. It is hard luck that Pat O'Hara-Wood is unable to join the team.

Spain is sending Edouard Flaques and two other young players to join Manuel and Jose Alonso here.

Manuel Alonso looks to be the outstanding singles player in the Davis cup competition this year. I believe that he can defeat both Anderson and Patterson.

The great question will be if any other Spaniard can pull one match out of the fire against Australia. Neither Flaques nor Jose Alonso is in the same class with Manuel Alonso, Patterson or Anderson.

Japan is relying on Harada and Fukuda since Shimizu has fallen away off in his game and Okomoto is in India.

Japanese Have Improved.

I would hardly expect the Japanese to beat either Australia or Spain, but the two Orientals are greatly improved players and might succeed in pulling an upset.

Should Shimizu, by any chance, regain the form he displayed in 1920 and 1921 he will place the Japanese team on a par with the others as favorites.

I am inclined to believe that France will meet Australia in the interzone final, with the chances about even.

Somehow, I would not be surprised to see the young French stars nose out the veteran team from Australia.

It would add much interest to the challenge round if they did, yet one would deeply regret the defeat of our old and good friends, Anderson and Patterson. The ultimate result will be largely a question of the single abilities of Manuel Alonso, Anderson, Patterson, Lacoste and Cochet. Australia and France have the advantage of two stars of almost equal ability, while Spain must rely on the outstanding skill of one man, possibly the greatest of them all.

No matter whether France or Australia or Spain comes though to challenge the United States, the American team will face the sternest test it has met for many years.

Am of the opinion that nothing short of William M. Johnston, Vincent Richards and R. N. Williams II at their best can hold the cup against the challenger.

Ebbets Funeral To Be on Tuesday

Major League Games to Be Halted During Services for Brooklyn Owner.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 18.—Major League baseball games will be halted Tuesday afternoon for players and spectators to pay tribute to the memory of Charles H. Ebbets, president of the Brooklyn National League club, who died of heart disease here this morning. The cessation of play will be during the funeral services.

A great crowd saw Brooklyn play the Giants in Ebbets Field this afternoon but the renewal of the perennially popular interborough series was noticeably saddened by Ebbets' death.

Just before game time the two teams, each player wearing a mourning band on his left sleeve, gathered at the plate and stood, with heads uncovered, for a minute of silent tribute to the "Squire of Flatbush," as the Brooklyn magnate was known.

Ebbets launched into baseball as a printer of scorecards, which he produced on a little hand press, disposing of them to the fans before the ink was dry. For several years he was a vender but in 1886 he came to the attention of Charles K. Byrne, then president of the Brooklyn club, and was made secretary. Ten years later Byrne died and Ebbets succeeded him.

McGraw Rates Hornsby As Best Right-Hand Batter of All Time

NEW YORK, April 18.

TWO years ago when the Brooklyn Club vainly offered $275,000 to the Cardinals for Rogers Hornsby, John McGraw declared that the famous batsman wasn't worth that much money and that Frank Frisch, the Captain of the Giants was a more valuable player. McGraw's offer of $250,000 for Hornsby in 1921 had been turned down by Branch Rickey just as quickly as he laughed at the Brooklyn proposition.

"Hornsby is the greatest right-handed batsman the game has ever produced," said McGraw the other day. "I never thought that I'd see the superior of Ed Delehanty or Hans Wagner, but now I must admit that Hornsby is the best."

ELEVEN LOCAL SKATERS TO COMPETE HERE IN 'PRO" ROLLER EVENTS

Roland Cioni of Akron, O.; Cliff Howard of Los Angeles, Cal., and Rodney Peters of St. Louis are the favorites in a field of 22 professional roller skaters who will bid for world championship laurels in a seven-day series of races to be inaugurated tomorrow night at the Palladium. The championship final will be held on Monday night, April 27, over a two-mile course.

The local candidates are: Rodney Peters, Ray Davis, Al Cookson, Richard Molenauer, Harold Damerick, Harry Ricco, Eddie Burke, James Fleming, William Schwenk, Hal Pointer and Bob McDonald.

Drowsy Waters Works Out Like Real Derby Hope

Descendant of the Great Bonnie Scotland Works Mile Easily in 1:43 3-5.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 18.—Drowsy Waters, descendant of the mighty Bonnie Scotland, showed something at Churchill Downs today that puts him in the running for Derby honors. While this colt failed to win a race, in his three starts last year, he is unquestionably a different horse at persent. There never was a colt that ran with the even stride and determination shown by Drowsy Waters that did not prove a good one. While his trial today was a second or two off the miles of Lee O. Cotnor and Captain Hal, the manner in which he did his work was more impressive.

Coming on the Downs course after the track had been cut deep near the rail from numerous workouts during today, the son of Cataract had on blinkers and Jockey Clavor in the saddle. He broke at the stand and stepped the first eighth in :12 4-5, quarter in :24 4-5, three-eighths in :38 1-5; half in :51, five-eighths in 1:04 4-5, three-quarters in 1:17 3-5, seven-eighths in 1:30 3-5, and galloped out the mile in 1:43 3-5.

Clockers Like Colt's Showing.

Much favorable comment was heard on the colt's trial after he came back to his owner and trainer, Dan Lehan. The colt did his task as easily as ever a horse ran, showing he is rounding into fine form for his Derby engagement.

Johnny Ferris' Derby colt, Brave Bob, showed an even trial. The colt worked with Tharon, stepping the first quarter in :24 2-5, half in :49 4-5, three-quarters in 1:17 1-5, and galloped out the mile in 1:46. Tharon attended the Derby colt three-quarters of a mile, when he cracked.

Hamadan, the Widener hope, worked with the cup horse, Altawood. Hamadan went along for three-quarters. His time was half in :53 1-5, three-quarters in 1:20. Altawood galloped out the mile in 1:49 2-5.

Louis Rubenstein, one of the trio of Derby eligibles in the Cincinnati stable, stepped a half mile in :53. Baalbec worked a half in :51. Pol Roger, the Livingston Derby elibible, worked with Evelyn, an Oaks candidate in the same barn, for the full mile. They stepped the first half in :52, three-quarters in 1:19 and mile in 1:47 2-5. Pyroot worked three-quarters in 1:22.

Millwick to Go in Derby.

It was reported at the Downs this morning that Millwick, a bay gelding by Wrack-Caller 'Out, owned by C. A. Mills, and trained by Kim Patterson, would be shipped to Churchill Downs from Maryland in a few days to fill his engagement for the Derby. Millwick showed a sparkling performance last Thursday when he was beaten only a short head by Sweeping Away at Havre de Grace. Millwick raced well at Tia Juana this spring.

Due to the fact that most of them worked yesterday, only five Kentucky Derby eligibles were given trials at the Kentucky Association track. The weather was warm and the track good.

Step Along, Fred Grabner's colt, trained by Will Perkins, worked a mile and an eighth in 1:56 3-5, driving hard. Dr. A. L. Biggs was sent three-quarters in 1:16 2-5 handily. Mad Boy breezed a quarter in :25 5-5 while Fire On went a mile in 1:45 2-5 breezing.

Son of John, Dan Scott's Derby hope, developed a swelling on his leg and is thought to be a little over-trained. He will be let down easy for a while and may have to be fired unless the injury improves.

CENTURY RIDERS TOUR TO COLLINSVILLE TODAY

The third regular Sunday tour of the Century Cycling Club this season to be held today is to Collinsville, Ill., a ride of about 40 miles, round trip.

The ride to Upper Creve Coeur Lake last Sunday was called off because of an accident to Assistant Road Capt. Roy Ulrich, who was struck by a machine at Denny and Olive Street road.

Any rider wishing to make the tour today may do so by reporting at the club headquarters, 1523 North Grand boulevard, not later than 8:30 a. m.

NORTH HILLS C. C. SPRING TOURNEY OPENS

The qualifying round in the spring tournament of the North Hills County Club began yesterday and will continue throughout the week. Prizes will be provided for each flight.

Matches after the qualifying round will take about four weeks to run off, it is estimated. They are scheduled to start April 24.

Peoria Beats Illinois Giants.

PEORIA, Ill., April 18.—Peoria romped away with the first exhibition game of the 1925 season here today when they walloped the Illinois Giants, a negro team from Chicago, by the score of 16 to 4. The Tractors piled up a dozen tallies in the first two innings on eight hits, several passes and some loose playing by the Giants. A home run with the bases loaded by Andrea, a rookie outfielder, featured the contest.

Score:

Giants..	0	0	0	0	1	2	0	0	0	—	4	7	2
Peoria.	5	7	0	0	0	0	0	4	0	* —	16	15	6

Leopardess Wins Feature at Havre; Stars Withdraw

Big Crowd Denied Pleasure of Seeing Derby Candidates in Real Test.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

HAVRE De Grace, Md., April 18.—The Greentree Stable, which has been cutting quite a figure in the stakes this season, added another purse to its total here this afternoon when Leopardess, winner of the Inaugural at Bowie, captured the Philadelphia Handicap of $5000 added at one mile and a sixteenth.

The going was heavy at the Harford Association track this afternoon, and the scratching pencil played havoc with most of the races; but particularly with the impressive field named for the Philadelphia Handicap. Only the daughter of Dominant-Fresnay, Spot Cash, Moonraker, Martingale and Dr. O'Mara went to the post, Big Blaze, Ten Minutes, Transmute, Candy Kid, Sunsini, Single Foot, By Hisself, Cloudland, Setting Sun, Campfire Tales and Balboa having been withdrawn.

Leopardess Likes the Mud.

Leopardess, at home in the going, went right to the front and hung on gamely under a drive when Spot Cash challenged in the stretch, and won, under strong handling by Harvey, by a neck. Spot Cash beat Moonraker, a stablemate of the winner, ten lengths for the place. Spot Cash may have been best for he was away slowly and Jockey Scobie kept him in the deep going on the rail all the way, but he finished gamely in spite of this and would have won in a few more strides.

The time for the mile and a sixteenth was 1:47 2-5. Leopardess paid $3.40 straight and $2.10 place in the $2 mutuels. There was no show betting.

Nicholas a Bad Actor.

Nicholas is still on his bad behavior. He started a hot favorite in the Combat purse, at 5½ furlongs, and though he broke well enough today refused to extend himself in the going and trailed the field all the way. The Bat, from H. P. Whitney's stable, won the race. After getting away slowly, he moved up smoothly in the stretch and out-finished Edisto in the final drive to win by a head. He rewarded his backers well, paying $11.10 straight in the $2 machines. Edisto beat Fiuland for the place by about two lengths.

Sunny Man was down to make his first appearance under colors this season in this race but was withdrawn because of the heavy going. So was Candy Kid.

BANK TELLER DETECTS FORGERY; YOUTH HELD

Chauffeur Admits That Check for $550 He Attempted to Pass Was His Third Offense.

A bank teller's familiarity with the signature of one of the bank's customers resulted in the arrest yesterday of a youth who described himself as Victor M. Mains, 20 years old, a chauffeur, of the Park Hotel, as he attempted to collect $550.95 on a forged check.

Mains preesnted the check, signed by Benjamin Kranzberg of 808 Washington avenue, and made payable to "William Rodman," to Frank Milligan, a teller in the American Trust Co., Seventh and Locust streets, shortly before noon yesterday. Milligan, convinced that the signature was not that of Kranzberg, a customer at the bank, questioned the youth as to how he came into possession of the check and he replied: "I just sold Mr. Kranzberg an automobile."

Then Milligan called Kranzberg and he denied writing the check. Milligan engaged Mains in conversation while detectives were summoned. At Police Headquarters the youth admitted, police say, that the check was a forgery and said he obtained Kranzberg's signature from checks he had stolen last Thursday from the office of the Prudential Insurance Co. in the Liberty-Central Trust Co. Building.

A $400 stock certificate and two promissory notes, which were taken from the office, were found in Mains' room at the hotel. Mains told police that he forged two checks, one for $5 and the other for $10 at a floral establishment last week. He said he forged the checks to obtain money for living expenses, being out of employment. He also admitted serving three years in the Boonville Reformatory for forgery.

1500 Camp Fire Girls Meet.

'LLINOIS SHERIFF INDICTED AFTER 2 PRISONERS ESCAPED

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NASHVILLE, Ill., April 18.—As a sequel to the escape of two youthful prisoners from the county jail, the Washington County grand jury yesterday returned two indictments against Sheriff William H. May for allowing the youths to escape.

The prisoners were two of seven boys who several months ago were caught pilfering the cellar of the home of County Clerk Henry S. Heckert. Five of the boys were freed on probation under $200 bond each. Russell Rogers and Howard Wells failed to make bond and were held at the jail until about a month ago when they disappeared.

If found guilty of willfully permitting the prisoners to escape the Sheriff may be fined $1000, or be sent to jail for six months. If only negligent he may be fined up to $1000.

34 Donahey Vetoes Overriden.

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., April 18.—The Ohio General Assembly adjourned early today after passing 34 of 41 measures which had been vetoed by Gov. Donahey. The Chief Executive's veto was sustained only on one measure. Six other bills were withdrawn from further consideration, allowing the veto to stand. Among bills passed at the final session was one providing for a 2-cent gasoline tax and the Buchanan Bible reading bill, calling for compulsory reading of at least 10 verses of the Bible in the public schools daily.

S. B. Hicks Dies at Shreveport, La.

By the Associated Press.

SHREVEPORT, La., April 18.—Funeral services of Samuel Bailey Hicks, 65 years old, former Democratic National Committeeman from Louisiana, who died at his home here last night, will be held tomorrow afternoon. Mr. Hicks, who was connected with a number of local business enterprises, also was a director of the Kansas City Southern and the Shreveport & Houston Railroads.

Shoots Self After Writing Notes.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

FORT SMITH, Ark., April 18.—After writing seven notes, four of them to friends, one each to his mother and father and another addressed to "Mr. Coroner," Wood R. Davis, 35 years old, member of a Ozark (Ark.) family, walked into a bathroom at the Main Hotel here about 8 o'clock this morning and shot and killed himself. A hotel maid smelled the smoke from the burning clothing of the man and gave the alarm.

WELL-KNOWN FRISCO RAILROAD MAN INDORSES THE HERB JUICE

Wants All His Friends to Know About This Famous Medicine for Stomach Trouble and Constipation.

MR. ABE WALKER

Mr. Abe Walker of 855 South Campbell av., Springfield, Mo., who has been with the Frisco Railroad Co. for the past 18 years, is the latest well-known Missouri citizen to come out and publicly indorse the famous herbal remedy, Herb Juice. While in St. Louis, Mr. Walker makes his headquarters at the Railroad Men's Y. M. C. A. He says he will be glad to tell anyone in person how this medicine relieved him of a bad case of stomach trouble and chronic constipation, and in order that others might know about it, Mr. Walker gladly gave the Herb Juice man the following signed statement: "For the last three years," said Mr. Walker, "I suffered all the time with indigestion and stomach trouble, and, try as I did, I could not find a thing to give me any relief. Every bit of the food I ate seemed to sour as soon as it reached the stomach; gas would form, and I always felt swollen and bloated."

"Sometime ago I went to the hospital and stayed there for 17 days. While there I had X-Ray photos made, but they failed to show any direct cause of my trouble, thought it was caused from an ulcer. The pit of my stomach felt as though there was a heavy weight on it and would burn like fire. In addition to this trouble I was badly constipated, and with all the laxatives I used I could not find one to regulate the bowels. While in St. Louis one day it was my good fortune to hear about Herb Juice, and I want to say to you, it is the greatest medicine I have ever used, and the only thing that ever gave me any real relief. I can truthfully say that today I feel better in every way than I have for years, and you can tell any one that doubts the value of Herb Juice to come and see me, and I will gladly tell them how it relieved me of stomach trouble and made it possible for me to once more eat and enjoy my meals without suffering for hours after eating. No more gas, bloating or that heavy, burning feeling.

"Herb Juice has also proven to be a wonderful regulator, and through its natural action on the bowels has relieved me of the constipation trouble. It is indeed a wonder-worker and worthy of the highest praise."

The Herb Juice man has established headquarters at Judge & Dolph Drug Co., 514 Washington av., where he will meet the local public daily, introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy.

Low 1925	114.31	96.13

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

New York, April 18.—The Evening Post in its weekly copyrighted financial review says:

"A natural adjustment in the forces that rule industry and business, such as has been revealed in the orderly movement of the last month or two, is pretty likely to leave things in a beter shape than worse. Market operators always are and were this year quick to detect signs of price recession, curtailment in production and a change in money rates, but what they took as danger signals may prove to have been blessings in the form of warnings. Certainly the securities markets of the week gave no indication that anything is fundamentally wrong. liquidation was the natural expectation after the abnormal advance that culminated early in March, but in general it seems to have run its course for the time. Prices hardened. The market appeared to be on a better foundation than at any time since the down turn. Money remains plentiful and the rates low. Professional activities are reviving but have not extended far since the public is not now either buying or selling stocks heavily.

Motor Industry Condition.

"That Wall Street was disposed to ride on wheels this week might appear from the attention that the motor and railroad stocks got. It takes no great knowledge of the technical problems before the industry to see that the motor companies are in an easier position than a year ago. Early in 1924 machines were produced in large volume and were forced upon the dealers throughout the country. Dealers could not refuse the cars, but neither could they sell them. Output had been speeded up in anticipation of a demand that did not develop. The automobile manufacturers this year did not repeat their mistake of a year ago. They held production down to such a point, indeed, that they now are scarcely able to supply promptly the spring demand for cars. The industry actually is busier than it has been at any time since early last year. Probably the business already on hand and in sight, will carry the industry through the present quarter or even into the next. Drouth in the Southwest has not frightened the farmers so very much apparently, for they are buying cars heavily this spring.

Attention Given Rails.

"Opening of the formal hearings on the Nickel Plate merger may have focused attention somewhat on the railroad securities, for it begins to appear that we may yet enter the era of railroad consolidations so long talked about. The foreign trade figures published this week have significance. The large movement of goods revealed by them is "bullish" data for the carriers, but there is more to learn from these figures than that imports were the largest for any month except two in nearly as long. The point is that large imports mean in general a larger intake of raw materials. If historic precedent is a guide to the present situation, there is reason to believe that our manufacturers expect the continuation of a substantial demand for goods. Large exports at this season of the year would not always be so significant, but since cotton and grain shipments were heavy last fall it can mean but one thing in this particular year—a good movement to overseas ports of goods manufactured here. Undoubtedly foreign borrowings here in recent months have resulted in a larger shipment relatively of goods than of gold. The rate of gold outflow has been diminishing, whereas shipments of merchandise exports have been large.

Hand-to-Mouth Buying.

"Hand-to-mouth buying among dealers is the perfectly natural result of a number of things, among which are the present high productive capacity of industry and the unprecedented distributive capacity of our carriers. Every small merchant knows that production has caught up with consumption in general and that the railroads will make prompt deliveries. Price recessions are inevitable in such circumstances, but they need not be drastic. Indeed, the Bureau of Labor statistics index of wholesale prices for March, published yesterday, showed fractional advances over February. According to this authoritative compilation, which includes a selected list of raw materials and finished goods scientifically weighted to give each group its proper influence on the total, prices have been advancing since last October, but since December was at a smaller and smaller rate. The gain for December was 2.8 per cent over the previous month, but that for March, now reported, is but a small fraction.

French Exchange Feature.

"All through the week interest was concentrated to a great extent in the transactions in French exchange, partly because of the task presented in forming a new ministry and also in connection with continued reference to the financial situation in that country, as indicated by the plans presented by the former Premier. The resumption of business after the Easter holidays on Tuesday was marked by weakness in French exchange, checks on Paris selling as low as 5.12. But from then on accumulation was in progress and after the announcement of the formation of a new cabinet late on Thursday, buying increased in vigor and volume and before noon on Friday the rate moved up to above 5.29. At that level a supply appeared from the same quarter that has determined most of the movements in the exchange and part of the gain was lost yesterday afternoon. Strength was displayed in many other continental exchanges for special reasons, Norway, Denmark and Spain making new high levels for the year. Norwegian exchange moved up from 16.02 to 16.78, Danish from 18.40 to 18.50 and Spanish from 14.24 to 14.25. Greek exchange also made a new high, drachmas selling at 1.88 yesterday. The improvement in Greek exchange has been steady since the rate touched 1.42 on March 12, when there were heavy offerings on account of the Turkish tangle.

Sterling Stabilized.

"Italian and Belgian exchanges both moved within a comporatively narrow range, Italian exchange being well maintained with a help of Government supervision. Japanese exchange had an incentive for an appreciation in value in the reduction of the bank rate in Japan announced during the week and as well as for some time past were limited to those connected with commercial affairs. Demand sterling ranged from $4.77¾ to $4.78½ and showed little net change at the end of the week. Canadian exchange was firmer, moving up from 99.90 to 99.37.

Motors Strong Saturday.

"With klaxons shrilly sounding, the motor stocks led a strong advance in today's busy short session in the stock market today. New high records were established in several of the recently active favorites, while nearly all of the market leaders reached high ground in the present recovery. U. S. Steel crossed 118, Baldwin was close behind, while American Can scored a substantial advance and Savage Arms rebounded sharply. The motor stocks boomed along in high, and even several of the oil shares were in good demand. Utah Securities continued to attract much attention with another jump to a record high above $6. Not many years ago this sold below 10. Frisco featured the rails with a rise of more than a point in response to reports that the common dividend would be increased. Other rail shares also rallied firmly. Willys Overland was conspicuous by its weakness.

Shorts Driven to Cover.

"For the first time in more than six weeks the broad group of favorites which enjoyed the long rise of last winter and which suffered the severest breaks in the March reaction joined in an upward surge under the leadership of motor stocks driven forward by pool operators. Such familiar performers as Baldwin, American Can, the two Maxwells, Radio, Savage Arms, Pan American, Marland, Delaware & Hudson and Southern Pacific featured the upturn, indicating plainly to traders that shorts were hustling to cover commitments that had long been left untouched. Baldwin was more than 10 points above the year's low recently established, while Marland rallied easily. Maxwell B continued its sensational spurt into record high ground around 90, while the A stock also wrote history above 108. Nash Motors rolled smoothly along in the direction of the 400 goal now mentioned. Mack Trucks, another favorite in the winter boom, rumbled past 151 without stopping. On the whole, the day's movement provided an inspiring sight for those who have steadfastly been predicting a strong recovery for May.

Reaction in Francs.

Norwegian crowns were again in good demand, however, and reached a new high for the year, while renewal of reports that Greece was to obtain a loan brought a new high for the year in the drachma.

"Commodity markets were quiet with a generally steady undertone prevailing in the early dealings.

"The weekly Clearing House statement revealed a decrease in the surplus of $41,240,390, reflecting increased demand for call loans in connection with broader market activity. There was a de- [illegible]

Metal Review

NEW YORK, April 18.—Aside from a fairly active demand for structural material and more or less buying by railroads, the steel market during the past week was quiet. Buyers appeared to be well supplied and little disposed to make new contracts ahead during the present period of uncertainty. Producers were meeting the situation by reducing their output, and while prices were little changed, the undertone was only about steady.

Pig iron was dull with prices irregularly lower and the market generally was easy.

Copper lower. Unsettled conditions abroad combined with the heavy March production figures have had a bearish effect on sentiment and with buyers generally holding off, prices have been marked down to new low levels for the year. Offerings by both second hands and producers were reported at the 13¼-cent level and the week ended with no indication of any immediate improvement in demand. Finished products are said to be moving in about the normal volume, but the decline in the metal has been reflected by reductions of ⅜c to ½c in prices for brass and copper products.

Tin has moved up a full cent on buying by dealers and exporters. The weakness in other metals has been offset by the falling off in shipments from the straits and small in-sight supplies.

Lead has been reduced by the leading producer, but buying showed no enlargement. Producers seem inclined to accumulate stock at current price levels.

Zinc declined to new low records for the year under increased offerings and only a light demand.

Antimony showed further weakness early, due to increased arrival, but at the decline a little better inquiry developed for nearby metal and a steadier tone prevailed.

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, April 18.—Wheat closed 2½c to 3c lower and corn 1c to 2c higher at the week-end session on exchange. The wheat news favored the bears. The Argentine estimate of corn crop 32 per cent under previous year still was bullish factor in that market.

In the local cash grain market wheat was nominally unchanged. Very little soft or hard offered. Demand was narrow. Corn was ½c to 2½c higher and slow. Oats were ¼c to 1c lower. Trade was slow.

Liverpool wheat closed 2⅞ to 3¼d higher but this was considered by some in trade as only partial response to American upturn yesterday. More rain in winter wheat belt was reported. July wheat opened a fraction higher but soon was down more than cent. May basis also being lower. Wheat was lower early at Winnipeg. July corn futures here opened lower but recovered and sold higher.

July wheat opened at $1.38 and July corn $1.09.

The three northwestern markets combined had 225 cars of wheat, compared with 221 a week ago and 189 last year, Minneapolis receiving 35 cars, Duluth 24 and Winnipeg 166.

Local wheat receipts, which were 39,600 bushels, compared with 79,300 a week ago and 94,900 last year, included 17 cars local and 13 through. Corn receipts, which were 43,400 bushels, compared with 117,600 a week ago and 243,600 last year, included 15 cars local and 16 through. Oats receipts, which were 64,000 bushels, compared with 232,000 a week ago and 180,000 last year, included 26 cars local and 6 through. Hay receipts, were 24 cars local and 17 through.

Last week and last year, 2 days.

Primary receipts of wheat were 283,000 bushels, compared with 784,000 a week ago and 579,000 last year; corn receipts were 314,000 bushels, compared with 487,000 a week ago and 1,270,000 last year; oats receipts were 393,000 bushels, compared with 679,000 a week ago and 1,039,000 last year. Wheat shipments were 478,000 bushels, compared with 560,000 a week ago and 598,000 last year; corn shipments were 800,000 bushels, compared with 752,000 a week ago and 965,000 last year; oats shipments were 762,000 bushels, compared with 1,139,000 a week ago and 912,000 last year.

WHEAT LOWER AND CORN HIGHER IN CHICAGO TRADE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, April 18.—It was a week of declining prices on the wheat market and all efforts to rouse up bull feeling met with little success. There were spasmodic rallies, but confidence is lacking in the trade and these failed to hold.

The market today acted choppy and rallies were frequent as a result of short covering, but late in the day prices slipped off again because of the lack of support. Sentiment in corn is more bullish and the buying power there is greatly improved. Recent bullish advices from Argentine have changed the complexion of the trade and some influential houses were reported on the bull side. A lack of interest is noted in the oats trade, with just enough trading to change prices only slightly day after day. Provisions had a downward trend.

The outstanding feature in today's wheat market was the disposition of longs to run out of their lines on every bulge. Enough support developed on the breaks, however, to scare shorts into covering and this had a tendency to weaken the technical position of the market. The late decline was the result of lack of support. News of the day was largely in favor of the bears. Excellent rains over the Northwest and Nebraska and the prospects of considerable precipitation over the Southwest today and tomorrow have greatly improved the crop position. Advices from abroad indicate that wheat stocks are getting low and that buyers are disposed to take hold, but fear to anticipate their future needs because of the erratic trend of prices at Chicago. Domestic shipping sales were 18,000 bushels. At the close today prices were 3c to 4¼c lower than yesterday, and 4½ to 14⅞c lower than a week ago. May $1.47⅛ to $1.47½; July $1.38⅛ to $1.38½; September $1.30⅝ to $1.31.

Corn was under the influence of wheat the first part of the week, but in the last few days this market has shown independent action and firmness. The fact that the Argentine crop is 32 per cent less than last year leads the trade to look for some demand from foreigners for our small surplus. This is the basis of the later bull feeling. At the close today the market was ¼c higher to ¼c lower and 3¼c to 5⅝c lower than a week ago. There was good buying in evidence most of the day, but the late break in wheat caused some timid holders to unload and this was responsible for a reaction just before the close. Shipping sales were 120,000 bushels. May closed $1.06⅛, July $1.10 to $1.10⅝, and September $1.10⅝ to $1.10½.

Not much activity or feature was noted in the oats trade today. In fact, business throughout the week was colorless. At the close prices were ¼c to ⅝c lower than yesterday, and ⅝c to 1⅛c lower than a week ago. Shipping demand was better and sales of 200,000 bushels were made to the East.

The weaker hog market had a depressing effect on provisions [illegible]

HIGHER PRICE RANGE TO SECURITIES ON CURB

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 18.—Today's market on the curb exchange demonstrated an ability to resist selling pressure. Business was in smaller volume and price variations were generally narrow, as buyers were not inclined except in a few instances to advance quotations in acquiring stocks.

Most interest was attached to the further improvement in Electric Power, when issued, which rose to a new high, selling above 19. Dodge Brothers "A," when issued, was fairly active, selling from 24 to 25, and initial trading started in another newcomer, American Laundry Machine, with sales reported at 93.

Petroleum shares were slightly higher with most trading confined to the lower-priced issues. Columbia Gas and Electric three-year 5 per cent were admitted to trading.

Price movements during the week were in most cases to materially higher levels, some issues moving up from one to 10 points and a number making new records. Among these was Electric Power and Light to be exchanged for Utah Securities, the former issue ranging from 15½ to above 19. Nickel Plate also played an important part in the trading, the common moving up from 84¼ to 87⅞. Gillette Safety Razor rose from 64⅜ to 70⅞, making a new high record for the present issue. Duze Co. was one of the few weak features, falling over five points to 20½, a new low record. Dubilier advanced from 14 to 19.

Many utility issues showed strength in the first half of the week. Lehigh Power advanced from 102½ to 109 and National Power rose from 245 to 252, but yesterday reacted to 240.

The petroleum group showed good resistance to the announcement of cuts in gasoline and crude oil and to the further increases in production in the Smackover Field, but toward the end of the week these issues became heavy and some of them sold off to a material extent. South Penn had the widest range, falling about 10 points, and a loss of five points was sustained in Standard Oil of Nebraska on a few transactions.

Boston Wool Market.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BOSTON, April 18.—The week in the raw wool markets closed with prices holding fairly steady and with moderate small lot buying by mills for immediate use. Some lots of fine wools have sold at $1.25, clean basis and slightly less choice materials from $1.15 to $1.25. Shearing has begun in the Northwest and buyers have taken on small lots at 40c and 41c.

Metals at St. Louis.

Lead last quoted at $7.50 per 100 lbs. in St. Louis.

Slab zinc last quoted at $6.95 per 100 lbs.

New York Sugar.

NEW YORK, April 18.—The raw sugar market was steadier today but spot prices were unchanged at 4.40c duty paid, while shipment sugars were higher. The only sale reported was 5000 bags of Cuban for April shipment, at $4.40.

Heavy covering and increased outside buying, as a result of the steadier tone in the spot market, caused a higher ruling in raw sugar futures, final prices showing net advances of 3 to 6 points. May closed 2.74, July 2.91, Sept. 3.07, Dec. 3.15.

Refined sugar was unchanged at 5.70 to 5.85 for fine granulated. Refined futures were nominal.

HOGS AND LAMBS LOWER FOR WEEK

COMPARATIVE RECEIPTS.

	Last Week.	Prev. Week.	Year Ago.
Cattle and calves	19,452	21,134	19,351
Hogs	59,334	54,798	84,633
Sheep	2,825	5,920	7,838
Horses and mules	259	303	658
Totals	81,870	82,155	112,480

Declines were recorded at the St. Louis National Stockyards last week in hogs, lambs and some cattle. Sheep and horses and mules did not vary far from a steady basis. Combined receipts were not heavy, the six-day supply amounting to 81,870 head. This run included 19,452 cattle and calves, against 21,134 the previous week. Substantial advances featured the cattle trade the first two days of the week, although a reaction in the market succeeding days wiped out all of this initial improvement. Beef steers closed about steady for the period, although declines of 25c were shown in light steers and heifers and beef cows. Bulls held their own throughout the week and canner and cutter cows proved steady to possibly 10c to 15c lower. Steers carrying a beef covering bulked at $8.50 to $10 per cwt., and best available droves topped at $11.25. Light steers and heifers were most numerous at $8.25 to $10 and tops reached $11.25 and $11.50. The majority of beef cows made $5 to $7.25. The low end was quotable at $4 and tops reached $8 and better. Cutter cows varied mainly from $3 to $4 and canners from $2.25 to $3. Bologna bulls bulked at $4.50 to $5 and choice reached $5.25 and $5.50. Heavy beef bulls were available in a spread of $5 to $6.50. Veal calves started out lower, bulk Monday $9.50, but advanced to $10.50 midweek. The following days of the week experienced an easier market and best lights Friday were noted at $10 to $10.25. Stocker and feeder steers, in light supply and demand, proved steady on best and 25c to 50c lower on the plainer end of the run. Quality was rather inferior and sales ranged largely from $4 to $7.50.

Increase in Hog Supply.

Hog receipts showed a sharp increase this week over the previous six-day period, the increase in numbers marked by sharp declines in price. Total at 11 markets for the past week is 515,777 head against 453,920 the previous week and 602,220 for the corresponding week a year ago. Southern hogs continued to arrive in fair numbers, although quality as a whole was good throughout the week. Any hogs that were crop-eared and from Southern territory were very uneven in price with salesmen finding it almost impossible to move these grades. The packer outlet was closed against them and with only a limited outlet through order buyers and speculators the prices on them were from $2.00 to $3.00 per cwt. under natives of the same weight. Best native hogs showed declines ranging from 45c to 60c from last Saturday with the big end of the loss on big heavy butchers. These offerings averaging from 230 pounds and over closed 50c to 60c lower, sales at $12.60 to $12.75 mostly. The spread in price for medium and light hogs was very narrow with lightest averages selling at premium prices, however. Offerings from 150 pounds to 220 pounds average at $12.80 to $12.90 showed a decline of 45c to 50c largely. Pigs were very uneven throughout the week with some closing sales of these offerings nearly steady with the previous Saturday. Strong weight pigs have been selling as high as light hogs, weights from 130 to 150 pounds average quotable on the close at $12.50 to $12.90. The prices looked steady to 25c off. Medium weights from 110 to 130 pounds at $11.50 to $12.50 were steady with the light pigs and pee wees at $9.50 to $11.50 also steady. Stocker pigs were selling in a spread of $6 to $9, according to weight and quality. Packer sows showed a decline of 65c from last week, with stags around steady. Closing quotations on the different grades were as follows: Best heavy butchers, 230 pounds and over, $12.60 to $12.75; medium and light hogs, 150 to 220 pounds, $12.75 to $12.90. Strong weight pigs from 130 to 150 pounds average, $12.50 to $12.90; medium weights from 110 to 130 pounds at $11.50 to $12.50, and light pigs and pee wees from 110 pounds nad down at $9.50 to $11.50. Stocker pigs, $6.00 to $9.00. Packer sows quotable at $10.75 to $10.85, stags selling at $10 to $10.50 largely, occasional offerings making upward to $10.75.

Lamb Prices Down.

In spite of light supplies of sheep and lambs throughout the week the market showed sharply lower prices, reductions most severe on the wool grades of lambs. Receipts at 11 markets for the six-day period totaled 202,069 head compared with a run of 299,688 for the previous week. A year ago the corresponding week showed an aggregate of 186,040 head. Quality of lambs arriving locally has been running right fair although there was too much weight in most cases to suit buyers. Very few wool lambs were included in the six-day supply, shorn stock making up by far the bigger part of the receipts. Most of the wool lambs marketed here last week were from the local feedlots. A top of $15 was registered during the opening session on wool lambs, prices showing a markedly lower trend throughout the remaining days. Prices today show losses ranging from $1.25 to $1.50 lower than a week ago, both clipped and wool kinds sharing in the decline. Packer buyers paid up $12.50 on some clipped stock early in the week with a short load to butchers noted up to $12.75. Some good quality handy weight clippers were noted on the close at $11.50, choicest kinds nominally quotable as high as $12. Bulk of this class for the week sold from $11.25 to $12.50, some sales of heavy kinds downward to $10. After starting out at steady prices the sheep market declined 25c during closing sessions. Wool ewes occasionally made up to $9.25 for choice handy weights with the big end of the sales of medium to good kinds from $8 to $9. Clipped offerings when fat and light sold around $7 to $7.50 with heavy plain kinds downward to $6.

Good to choice wool lambs close quotable at $13.50 to $14.50, medium to good $12.50 to $13.50 and plain to medium at $11.50 to $12.50. Cull and common lambs at $10 to $11.50 and skips $3 to $10. Good to choice clipped lambs $11 to $12, medium to good $10 to $11 and plain and heavy kinds $9 to $10. Culls $8 to $9. Good to choice wool ewes $8.50 to $9.25, medium to good $7.50 to $8.50, plain to medium $6.50 to $7.50. Good to choice clippers $6.50 to $7.50, medium and good $5.50 to $6.50. Plain kinds downward to $4.50. Bucks $5 to $6, clipped choppers and bucks $3 to $4; wool choppers and wool canners $3 to $4, clipped canners $1 to $2. Fat Angora goats $3.50 to $4, fat Angora kids $6 to $7.50, fat hair goats $3 to $3.50 and fat hair kids, $5 to $6.50. Thin and common goats, $1 to $2.

Horses and Mules.

The horse and mule business fell off to a very light total here during the week, receipts at only 259 head being the smallest in some time. There was no material change in prices. Demand centered mainly in work horses, chunks and farm mules.

ST. LOUIS STOCKS

ST. LOUIS STOCK EXCHANGE, April 18.—The week just ended was a rather uninteresting one on the local exchange. The volume of stock sales was slightly under the previous week. There was, however, an increase in bond transactions. Missouri Portland Cement stock led in activity, but showed net loss in price for the week. On Friday the E. L. Bruce company common and preferred shares were listed for trading. The common immediately sold at a premium over the subscription price of that portion of the issue sold the public.

Total sales of stocks on the exchange during the week amounted to 4301 shares, compared with 4557 shares the previous week. Bond sales were $77,500, against $16,500 a week ago.

Following is a complete list of securities traded in on the exchange during the past week, sales, highest, lowest, closing prices and net changes being given:

Wall Street News and Comment

—SPECIAL DAILY—

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 18.—The buying movement on the stock exchange broadened out in today's two-hour session and a larger number of issues advanced to their best prices since the recovery from the March lows. The motor and related shares were again the leaders. The selling in the oils was checked, several industrial leaders of the type of Baldwin Locomotive and American Can gained further ground. Many railway stocks worked higher and numerous stocks of the specialty class rose sharply. In the second and last hour profit-taking proved effective enough to cause recessions from the early highs but the market ended as a rule appreciably above the previous day's close.

Nash Motors reached a new top and the Maxwell shares at their record highs were up 2 to 3 points on the day on heavy trading. Mack Trucks also ran up briskly to its best figures well across 150. General Motors ran up above 75 in the last hour on heavy trading. In the rubber and tire group Fisk Rubber was a feature around 15 and U. S. Rubber common sold at a new high for the current movement.

The oil shares were favorably influenced by the reports of the Marland Oil Co. and the Texas Co. The independent steels were not very active, while the sugars were unchanged as a rule. Most of the coppers were heavy, especially Anaconda.

Pennsylvania Railroad was heavy again, a few good sized blocks coming out below 44.

The Bond Market.

For the most part prices held firm in the bond market at the close of the week but there were enough exceptions to give the appearance of irregularity. In the foreign group, for instance, French 8s at 101 were selling at a new high on this recovery but French 7½s were below the initial transactions of Friday. French 7s sold around the best prices of the day before and so did French municipal and railway issues. Speculators who had sold French bonds short anticipating a much heavier break than occurred apparently had completed their covering operations and the market was awaiting announcement of the financial plan of the new regime in Paris. On the other hand, Greek bonds rallied on rumor of a new loan.

Something of the same irregularity appeared in the local tractions. In the rails Seaboard Air Line 6s were steady at their recent high point and International Great Northern adjustment crossing 68 were up over a point from Friday's low. Unusual activity was noted in Green Bay and Western Debenture B's, concerning which there have been merger reports.

United States Government bonds were practically unchanged. Missouri Pacific 6s sold at a premium above the price at which the new bonds were offered.

In Financial Field

NEW YORK, April 18.

Marland Oil Co. reports net income of $354,305 for 1924, equal to 22 cents a share on the capital stock. Total income was $9,258,017 from which was deducted $5,510,071 for depreciation and depletion; inventory adjustments, $1,077,166, interest, $1,148,574, and other charges, $1,167,901. Net for 1923 was $1,723,000 or $1.52 a share. Current assets increased to $23,478,166 from $14,707,248 the year before. Working capital also expanded to $20,833,672 from $5,941,574.

Net income from the Pere Marquette Railway for 1924 declined to $4,935,022, equal after prior preferred and preferred dividends to $8.33 a share on the common stock, from $5,202,810 in 1923, or $8.92 a share on the common.

Consistently good earnings since the first of the year are being shown by the St. Louis-San Francisco Railroad, gross having gained more than 5 per cent over the corresponding period of 1924. Net operating income for the first two months increased about 10 per cent. Allowing for seasonal variations, this was at an annual rate equivalent to $22 a share on the common stock.

New York Coffee.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 18.—Coffee futures unchanged to 13 points lower today under small offerings, which may have been promoted by reports that the mild grades were selling below the price of Santos, which might reach the Brazilian markets. July eased off to 16.95c, but there was a little covering by near month spots and the market closed one point net higher to 20 points lower. Sales were estimated at 46,000. Closing quotations: May, 18.28c; July, 16.99c; Sept., 16.12c; Oct., 15.95c; Dec., 15.61c; Jan., 15.45c; March, 15.02c.

Spot coffee quiet; Rio 7s, 20½c; Santos 4s, 24¼c to 24¾c. Cost and freight offers included part Bourbon 3s and 5s at 22.80c.

Rio exchange on London, 1-64d higher. Dollar buying rate unchanged. Rio market 175 to 275 reis higher; Santos 4s 100 to 150 reis higher. Brazilian port receipts, 21,000; Jundiahy receipts, 22,000.

Smackover Price Adjustments.

SHREVEPORT, La., April 18.—Reclassification of the grades of Smackover, Arkansas, crude oil and reduction in some prices and increases in other grades were announced today by the Standard Oil Co. and the Louisiana Oil Refining Corporation. The two companies have separate schedules. The Standard abolished the grade 28 degrees and above.

The Standard's new schedule follows: 27 degrees and above, $1.30; 26 to 26.9, $1.25; raised 5 cents. 25 to 25.9, $1.20; raised 10 cents. 24 to 24.9, $1.10; a new grade and below 24 as stated.

The Louisiana's new schedule follows, 28 and above, $1.45. 27 to 27.9, $1.30; cut 5 cents; 26 to 26.9, $1.25; unchanged, 25 to 25.9, $1.20; increased 10 cents. 24 to 24.9, $1.10; increased 10 cents. Below 24, 40 cents; cut 20 cents.

A comparison of these schedules reveals that the Louisiana is paying 15 cents more per barrel for light oil and 27 and above.

Turpentine, Flax, Linseed

Linseed oil quotations in lots of 1 to 4 barrel lots now $1.19 per gallon for raw and $1.22 for boiled.

SAVANNAH, April 18. — Turpentine firm, 89; sales 121; receipts 64; shipments 14; stock 2486. Rosin firm; sales 516; receipts 556; shipments 191; stock 53,810. Quote: B, $6.40@6.45; D, $6.60@6.65; E, $6.75; F, $7; G, $7.15; H, $7.20@7.25; I, $7.25@7.30; K, $7.55@7.60; M, $8@8.05; N, $8.25@8.30; WG, $8.40@8.50; WW, $9.75; X, $10.

DULUTH, Minn., April 18.—Pit operation below par and abstention of crushers limited flax seed trading and kept it within narrow range. April fell ½; May ¼; July and September closed unchanged. Close flax: April and May, $2.70; July $2.71; September $2.50.

MINNEAPOLIS, April 18.—Flax No. 1, $2.71½@2.74½.

COTTON PRICES ARE MIXED AT CLOSE

NEW YORK, April 18.—An early advance on prospects for continued dry weather in Texas was followed by reactions in the cotton market today under realizing. July sold up to 25.13c, or 15 points net higher, but lost the advance, closing 25c. The general market closed barely steady, net 5 points lower to 5 points higher.

The opening was steady at a decline of 4 points on May but generally 1 to 4 points higher. Lower Liverpool cables than expected appeared to attract little attention and the early market was firm on failure of the weather news to show rains in the Southwest and prospects for continued dry weather. Buying on the Southwestern crop situation was promoted by continued reports of better demand for cotton goods and reiterated claims of a steady spot situation in the South, the latter being colored by indications that new crop months were being brought here by houses with Liverpool and continental connections. Rumors also were revived that there might be shipments out of the local stock for Japan. The bulk of the demand, however, was attributed to covering and buyers seemed to find a better supply of contracts around the 25c level for October. This checked the advance, and after having shown net gains of about 15 points, with May selling at 24.80c and October at 25c, the market eased off under releasing. Notwithstanding the talk of possible shipments out of the local stock the May-July difference, which had narrowed on the advance on Friday, broadened out again this morning, amounting to 35 points at the close, compared with 30 points at the close of the previous day.

Cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 90,631 bales, against 75,698 last year.

New York Cottonseed Oil.

NEW YORK, April 18.—Cotton-seed oil closed easy; prime summer yellow, $11; prime crude, $10; April, $11; May, $11.18; June, $11.30; July, $11.58; August, $11.73; Sept., $11.87; Oct., $11.63; Nov., $10.75. Sales, 17,700.

St. Louis Spot Cotton.

Spot cotton was unchanged in St. Louis, quotations: good ordinary, 20.50c; low middling, 22.50c; middling, 24.50c; good middling, 25.75c; middling fair, 26.75c.

Dry Goods Market Review.

NEW YORK, April 18.—Print cloth sales this week were the largest in a month, reaching 150,000 pieces at least. Sheetings for bag manufacturing and converting were sold to the extent of 50,000 pieces. Other goods were quiet. Ginghams have quickened somewhat in wholesale channels and demand continues for novelties. Wool goods have weakened and some factors anticipate new lower prices on fabrics and clothing later on due to dull demand. Fine dress goods were in moderate call, linens quiet and burlaps firm. Silk fabrics continued in good call, especially prints for prompt shipment.

Big Size Carey Asfaltslate Shingle—more than fifty per cent larger than ordinary shingle, applied with full 5" exposure, gives a 3-ply roof. Ordinary shingle exposed 5" makes 2-ply roof. (No shingle should be exposed more than one-third of its total length.)

less nails; less time; less expense!

Of course, a shingle that is bigger covers a larger area. You don't have to apply so many to cover your home. The BIG SIZE of the Carey Asfaltslate Shingle, 10"x 15¾", permits a five-inch exposure and still gives a three thickness roof.

This BIG SIZE Shingle gives you a bigger dollar's worth for your roof investment. It is heavier, weighing approximately 300 pounds to the "square."

You want "The Shingle that Never Curls," of course. Get it in the BIG SIZE, and you get it at its best.

And we have the new "Silver-Green" color, too. You will say it's the most attractive shingle you ever saw. Also, blue-black and red.

Carey Ready Roofings and Shingles are on sale at Lumber and Building Supply Dealers. Ask your dealer first, if he cannot supply you, write or phone us.

POLICEMAN, TWO CIVILIANS KILLED IN STREET FIGHT

Triple Tragedy in East St. Louis Presumably Result of Quarrel Over a Day's Pay.

A quarrel between two men yesterday morning at the busiest corner of East St. Louis, Collinsville and Missouri avenues, resulted in their death and that of an interceding policeman, and led to the false report that one of the city's largest banks, at that corner, was being held up, which increased the confusion.

The policeman and a detective, who ended the affray, were attracted by it, and the exchange of shots from three revolvers brought five other nearby policemen on the run. These last shared the belief of the frightened crowds on the streets that a bank holdup was under way.

Some one telephoned this rumor to Police Headquarters, a block and a half away, and Chief Barry quickly marshaled about eight more officers, leaving only the desk Sergeant behind. He hurried them to the scene of the shooting, some by way of Missouri avenue and some dodging through the Arcade Bulding. Their idea was to surround the spot and head off the "bank robbers."

Streets Quickly Blocked.

Finding no one to arrest, the policemen all were needed to handle the throng which quickly gathered and blocked the streets, remaining even after the dead quarrelers and the dying policeman had been carried away.

Those who were killed, and their wounds, were:

Peter Totsch, 56 years old, of 1706 East Broadway, East St. Louis; business agent of Plumbers' Laborers' Union No. 62. Shot in the heart.

Christopher Columbus Gwaltney, 32, of 321 North Fifth street, of 729 Collinsville avenue. Sot in the heart and abdomen.

Patrolman David A. Mohler, 53, of 720 Collinsville avenue. Shot in the left arm and chest by one bullet, the abdomen and left hand by another and the left shoulder by a third.

Gwaltney shot Totsch, with whom he had quarreled; turned and shot Patrolman Mohler and then was shot himself by Detective-Sergeant George Byrnes.

Presumed Cause of Quarrel.

The quarrel presumably arose over the shortage of a day's pay from this week's wages of Gwaltney as an employe of the East St. Louis and Interurban Water Co., which had hired him through Totsch, or over the question of how much Gwaltney owed the union this week in view of the shortage.

Gwaltney had seemed satisfied when his foreman told him last night that the pay shortage would be made up next week. He remarked to his mother about the matter, but did not seem to her to by angry over it. He told her yesterday that he was going to see Totsch about it. She did not know he had taken her revolver and his own, which they kept in the house for protection.

Working under a permit from the union, Gwaltney had paid $6 towards the $25 initiation fee as a member. It was Totsch's duty to make collections from him, which usually were made on Saturdays.

The men's quarrel began in the busy lobby of the First National Bank at 9:50 a. m. Gwaltney had been making time payments on an automobile he had purchased in Minnesota through that bank, which may have explained their presence there. Bank employes heard their altercation.

Gwaltney Challenged Totsch.

"Come on outside and let's fight this thing out," Gwaltney challenged, but Totsch protested. "I don't want to fight." However, they went out together to the Collinsville avenue sidewalk, where the Saturday morning business of the commercial district was in full sway.

When they reached the sidewalk, Gwaltney drew one of his revolvers and fired at Totsch. The shots sent pedestrians scurrying for cover. Employes and customers of the bank, which is at the northwest corner, ran to the doors and windows. The false word spread that this bank was being robbed.

Detective-Sergeant Byrnes, who was not in uniform, was just leaving the Union Trust Co., at the northeast corner, where he had made a deposit. He heard the angry words and saw Gwaltney drawing his weapon. Patrolman Mohler was at one of the other two corners, which are occupied by cigar stores. He and Byrnes started to run for the quarrelers just as Totsch fell with the first shot.

Gwaltney turned in time to see Mohler and shot him, but the policeman fired back before staggering into the bank doorway. Byrnes ended the affair by shooting Gwaltney. As the detective approached to take Gwaltney's revolver, someone called to him, "Look out, George, he's got another one," and it was found that the laborer was trying to draw the other revolver with his left hand.

One of Men Unarmed.

Mohler fired one shot, Byrnes two and Gwaltney five; Gwaltney's second weapon was fully loaded. Totsch was unarmed. Patrolman Mohler died within half an hour after being taken to St. Mary's Hospital. The bodies of the others were identified at an undertaker's soon, by friends.

One wild bullet pierced a window of the bank and another was imbedded in the doorway. All interurban and some city cars pass this corner on Collinsville avenue and traffic is heavy there. The city hall is a block west on Missouri avenue.

Totsch, is survived by his wife, who became hysterical when told of his death, and insisted he hadn't had an enemy. Gwaltney was single and resided with his mother, Mrs. Mary Lucinda Gwaltney. Patrolman Mohler also was single. He was known for his large size. Until two years ago he was a street car man.

THE UNITED STATES SENATE:
Safeguard or Nuisance?

First of a Series of Articles by Former Senator Walsh of Massachusetts in Which He Discusses the Public Criticism Directed Against the Upper House of National Legislative Body.

Points Out That Senators Share Executive Duties With the President and "One-Man Government" Would Result if Powers Were Limited—Opposes Secret Sessions, Defends Two-Thirds Rule.

THE Post-Dispatch begins today a series of four articles on the United States Senate by a man who has just stepped out of that body, ex-Senator David I. Walsh of Massachusetts. Twice elected Governor of Massachusetts, Walsh achieved an even more notable distinction when he was elected to the Senate, the first Democratic Senator from that State in 80 years.

Ex-Senator Walsh has drawn from his own experience, and has endeavored to discuss the influence of the Senate, its relations with the President, its responsiveness to public opinion, its reaction to the political and social atmosphere of Washington, in the light of recent history.

By DAVID I. WALSH,
Former United States Senator from Massachusetts.

BOSTON, April 15.

IS the United States Senate losing public favor? Shall radical changes be made in existing rules of the Senate? Is the personnel of the Senate deteriorating?

These and questions of similar import have been conspicuously in the public mind of recent years. Vice President Dawes, in a challenging inaugural address, has dramatized the issue and stimulated the debate over the Senate's usefulness.

After six years of membership in that body I have formed certain opinions of my own regarding the Senate, and I now feel free to join in the discussion.

A seat in the United States Senate is the most important and responsible elective office in the gift of the American people, excepting only the presidency.

Even the President is deliberately left by the Constitution dependent upon the sanction of Congress for the performance of every duty intrusted to him. The President is commander in chief of the army, but he has no army except what Congress gives him. While he is the chief executive officer of the land, Congress has to provide the money to maintain all the active executive departments. He can appoint no one to important public office without the approval of the Senate. While the President may initiate and negotiate a treaty, he cannot make it binding upon the country without the approval of two-thirds of the Senate. While he is given power to veto the enactments of Congress, his veto is ineffective unless two-thirds of the members of both houses of Congress accept his reasons.

Reasons for Caution

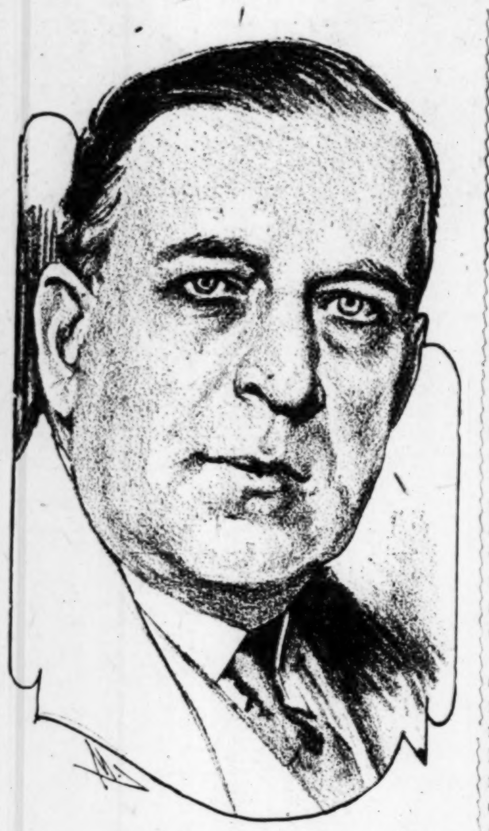
There is a why and a wherefore for this. Our forefathers did not want a one-man Government. Above everything else, they were determined that America should never have a "King." This modern world of ours is being perpetually influenced by currents of subtle propaganda. The American people must keep alert or they will wake up some fine morning and find their liberties gone. Congress exercises its constitutional prerogatives, and dares to do its duty, dares to oppose the will of a President. So there has arisen a persistent propaganda against Congress, especially against the Senate. If this propaganda were successful, Congress would be shorn of its power, and we would have in the United States a "One-man Government." The very worst fears of our forefathers would then be realized.

The whole fabric of our Constitution reveals the determination of the fathers to curb and restrain executive authority.

A United States Senator is given by the Constitution an independence in tenure of office enjoyed by no other elective officer of the Government.

Personally, I believe that the Senator's term is too long. I would reduce it to four years. My observation has been that Senators are more attentive and more industrious and more careful in the last session before election than during the first session following their election. However, regardless of my own views, the very length of the term given a United States Senator by the Constitution emphasises the intent of the framers of that document to recognize the importance of the office, and to make the Senate independent of the House and the executive.

It is well, also, to bear in mind that the



DAVID I. WALSH

Senate is not, as many people are inclined to think, merely the upper branch of a legislative body. In addition to all the powers and rights of enacting legislation, with the co-operation of the House, the Senate has other distinct and most important functions peculiar to itself. It has powers of an executive character. It shares executive authority with the President.

Status of Cabinet Officers

I have already referred to the fact that the President does not make executive appointments alone. He selects persons for various positions in the public service, but his selection is nullified when a majority of the Senate refuses to approve of that selection.

The Senate has very recently exercised its control over presidential appointments. It absolutely refused to give its approval to President Coolidge's first selection for the office of Attorney-General of the United States after Mr. Stone had resigned. It denied confirmation of the appointment of Mr. Charles Beecher Warren of Michigan for that office.

The public, I think, has a mistaken notion about the status of so-called cabinet officers. There really is no authorized cabinet or cabinet member. Cabinet meetings are merely a custom. Some time after our Government was established, a President called together certain department heads for a joint conference, and ever since then there have been so-called cabinet meetings. But the President could just as well call in the director of the Veterans' Bureau, the chairman of the Federal Trade Commission or the chairman of Tariff Commission into his cabinet as to confine its membership to 10 secretaries of various executive departments.

For years there has been a tendency for the Senate to ratify, after merely perfunctory consideration, the appointment of secretaries of the important executive departments. I am inclined to believe that "those good old days" are over. In my opinion, in the future the United States Senate will insist upon thorough scrutiny of important presidential appointments. Certainly this, if not mere partisanship, is in the public interest, and ought to receive the commendation of every thoughtful citizen. The Senate, in so acting, is not usurping authority; it is merely performing one of the important functions entrusted to it. Our forefathers equipped the machinery of our Government with a set of safety devices, and these instruments were intended to be used.

Recent Justification

There is a good explanation of the Senate's awakened interest in its responsibility for the appointment of honest and efficient executive officials. Has not the country recently had an unfortunate experience with a Secretary of the Interior, in control of the vast public domain of the nation, and with an Attorney-General, the director of the most vital department of the Government, and with a director of the Veterans' Bureau, which expends one-tenth of the enormous Government expenditures?

Is there not good reason why the Senate should hesitate about accepting the ipse dictum of any President when he submits appointments?

The Senate's action in the Warren case was not an attempt to embarrass President Coolidge. The Constitution presumes that a Senator, as much as the President, should perform his duty as he sees it. The best proof of the Senate's sincerity in the Warren case is that the action was taken finally by the President's own party. The minority in the Senate is numerically unable to defeat any appointment. Entering into the Warren decision was a feeling, which I have increasingly observed among Senators during my six years in Washington, a feeling that, for many years past, with a few rare exceptions, regardless of which party occupied the White House, the office of Attorney-General has not been filled by men of the legal acumen, experience and ethics that should guide the great national department of justice.

Repeatedly on both sides of the chamber, I have heard the opinion publicly expressed that the word "Justice," which America blazons high upon her escutcheon, has been dimmed. This department must be restored to the lofty and honorable position which the legal profession, as well as the public at large, believe it should occupy.

Mr. Warren's legal experience, his legal ethics, his economic associations attracted exceptionally close scrutiny. His record was distinctly that of a trust maker; the office for which he was named called for a trust buster. There was no personal animus in the Senate against Warren, but there was a determination that a man of unquestioned ability, freedom of action and old-fashioned sympathy with the duties of the Attorney-General should be at the helm in the Department of Justice.

Praise Due, Not Blame

There has been a singular attempt in some quarters to interpret the action of the Senate as ignoble. In my opinion, it was an action deserving of public approval, rather than public censure.

There are some who, because of differences that have arisen between the White House and the Senate over treaties submitted by the former to the latter, notably the Versailles treaty, would deprive the Senate of its present treaty-making powers.

Efforts have been made to change the provision in the Constitution requiring a two-thirds vote in the Senate for ratification of a treaty negotiated by the President. Resolutions have been introduced in Congress which aimed to reduce the necessary vote in the Senate to a mere majority.

It does not seem to me that we can afford to tamper with one of the most admirable safeguards that our forefathers, in their wisdom, bequeathed to this nation.

The framers of the Constitution recognized that the most delicate function of our Government is the direction of its relations with foreign countries. Treaty laws are the highest laws of the land. I believe it would be dangerous to make it possible for a treaty, that might nullify any domestic legislative enactment, to be sanctioned by the President and a bare majority in the Senate.

Under the present arrangement negotiations with foreign countries may be subjected to irritating delay and even cause vast inconvenience, but in my opinion it is better thus than to risk the chance of having a foreign policy fastened upon the country by a President and a mere majority of one Senator. When the Constitution makers provided that a treaty must have the approval of two-thirds of the Senators they implied that they considered it in the interest of public safety that every important question of foreign policy should be placed beyond the control of any one political party and should command a far broader and more national approval.

We should not forget, it seems to me, that treaty making involves, often remotely but sometimes directly, a policy of war or peace for a nation.

It is customary for the Senate, in the transaction of executive business both in considering appointments and treaties submitted by the President, to cloak its deliberations with secrecy by going into executive session.

I am opposed to secret sessions. I can

STRATEGY OF NEW POLICE BOARD, COMBATING CRIME IN ST. LOUIS, OUTLINED BY PRESIDENT ORRICK

To Make City Most Unpleasant for Known Criminals, to Make It Hard for Them to Enjoy Fruits of Wrong-Doing, and Break Up Breeding Places of Evil, Are Major Points in Plan.

Added Efficiency of Police Force Will Be Insisted Upon, and Patrolmen Will Be Expected to Arrest, and Then Re-arrest, After Liberation, All Habitually Inclined Persons Until They Decamp for Other Fields.

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON

IN the continuous warfare which organized society, through its army, the Police Department, wages upon organized crime, what will be the grand strategy employed on the public's side under the new Police Board?—Has the automobile enabled criminals to gain and hold an advantage in this conflict, and if so, how can the advantage be overcome?

What means are open to the police for reducing the volume of crime in this city?

These questions were put to Col. Allen C. Orrick, who as president of the Police Board is now commander in chief of the police army. From his answers it was learned that the general strategy to be used against organized crime will consist in the following main phases:

1. Make the police army as efficient as is possible, and give it the ablest available commanders.
2. Make the city so unpleasant for known criminals that they will go elsewhere.
3. Break up the breeding places of new criminals.
4. Afford the police every possible advantage in the pursuit and capture of criminals after crime has been committed, and in the collection of evidence with which to convict them.

To interview Col. Orrick is not an easy task. His aversion to personal publicity is deep and instinctive. He has been described as "hard-boiled," but that vigorous phrase is altogether too violent for the grave, courteous reserve of this quiet man. He is modest almost to shyness. In manner and speech he is retiring rather than aggressive. Nevertheless, one receives an impression of great strength of character. Certainly he will not be stampeded. He will decide questions carefully, but for himself. He will be firm, to the point of obstinacy, in this writer's opinion.

With his well-set-up frame and square shoulders, his iron-gray hair, his brown, deeply lined face and impersonal gray eyes, he is the very picture of a Colonel in "civies." His reticence also is characteristic of the military.

In the earlier days there was a practice of the St. Louis police in connection with recognized crooks which was known as "bringing them in bloody." It also was known as "bringing them in by way of the dispensary." What tactics will the police employ in making St. Louis an unpleasant place for known criminals? Col. Orrick was asked.

"Of course," he said, with a trace of a smile, "there are two ways of treating criminals—kindly and unkindly. Common sense would indicate that criminals would prefer a city that gave them kind treatment to one which treated them unkindly. I believe I have made 31 speeches to the police of the various districts since my appointment, and in every one I have told them to arrest known criminals every time they see them on the street. In the police lingo, 'don't pass them up.' We can hold a man 20 hours on suspicion. Naturally, a criminal doesn't like to be arrested every time he steps out on the street, and he dislikes spending every other night on a hard board in a cell.

"In making arrests, a police officer has legal authority to use all the force necessary to bring his prisoner in. And the officer must use his own judgment about what constitutes resistance on the prisoner's part. Yet," he added with native caution, "I don't believe that a man should be abused if he comes along peacefully. A citizen has some rights, even if he is a criminal."

The Business of Making the City Unpleasant for Crooks.

Criminals, it should be remembered, have an object in their crimes. The vocation of virtually all professional criminals is robbery, in one form or another. Sometimes they become murderers, too, but that usually is only an incident to the robbery and escape. A bank teller resists and is shot. A policeman runs toward the departing robbers' car, and receives a charge of buckshot. The killings were but incidents to the primary intention, which was to get the loot and make a getaway. The ultimate object of the criminal is pleasure, and he employs his loot toward that end. What constitutes his pleasure? It differs from that of ordinary persons only in the scale of respectability and good taste. He must have the companionship of others like himself. He demands his women and his liquor. Usually he gambles, and sometimes he uses drugs.

COL. ALLEN C. ORRICK

This state of facts furnishes the police with a key to the problem of making a city unpleasant for the criminal. While it may prove a fruitful field in which to ply his trade, he nevertheless may find it so disagreeable otherwise that he will leave it for a less harsh atmosphere. As the criminal might be expected to argue to himself: "Why risk life and liberty to rob a bank when I won't be permitted to enjoy the money after I get it?" Like all men engaged in highly hazardous occupations, the criminal must have his recreation, and he may be expected to go where he can get it.

"By constantly raiding their hangouts," said Col. Orrick, "I think we can at least make it impossible for them to enjoy their wine, women and cards. Of course, the battlefield is circumscribed for us; we can't go outside the city limits, but so long as they make their rendezvous inside the city, we should be able to break them up. It can be done legally, because the law is violated at virtually all such places, either the liquor law, the gambling law, the narcotic law or the vagrancy law. A criminal's amusements frequently are as unlawful as his trade, and it should be possible seriously to disturb his enjoyment of them.

"Precisely the same facts exist in the case of places which act as breeders of new criminals. Most, or all of them, are violating the law. By enforcing the law, the police can break them up and to a considerable extent stop the production of additional criminals.

"If we can succeed in driving the known criminals out of town, and stopping the breeding of new ones, no known enemies of society will remain."

"What about the gangs?" he was asked.

"I believe that most of the Egan gang has been put away," he said. "I suppose several of their henchmen and satellites are still at liberty, but if any of the directing minds are at large, I do not know it. Remember," he repeated, "that I'm not a policeman, I have had no previous experience with police work, and don't pretend to have much information about individual crooks. The police themselves have that information.

"There was the Cuckoo gang, but I don't believe it ever was a gang of organized criminals in the sense that the Egan gang was. It was composed of toughs rather than criminals, and I doubt if it ever had any strong recognized leaders. Most of its offenses were petty. I am not aware of any other gangs in St. Louis."

In its plan to raise the efficiency of the police force, the new board, immediately upon taking office, issued an order enjoining members of the department from engaging in political activity, beyond the bare function of casting their votes.

"Where there is politics there is partiality, and a partial force is not an efficient force," said the new president. "I think we have stopped the practice of dropping cases because somebody has a friend on the board. During my first week on the board I had numerous telephone calls from business associates, friends, and some from my own clients, asking that traffic cases against them be dropped. I don't think there will be much more of that," was his laconic observation.

Force to Make Its War Upon Organized Crime.

"That practice destroys the [illegible] the force. When a policeman makes an arrest and goes to court the next morning to testify, and finds that no complaint has been sent over, he naturally asks himself what's the use of making arrests. The men must be backed up."

In its endeavor to supply the police army with the ablest commanders, the board, as is known, already has installed a new Chief of Police, Chief and Assistant Chief of Detectives, and has ordered wholesale transfers of commanding officers. In addition, it has re-established the detective districts, and put more men in plain clothes.

Returning to the question of reducing the amount of crime, Col. Orrick said: "The only form of crime for which the police can justly be blamed is that known as organized crime, committed by known criminals. Sporadic crimes and individual crimes can rarely be anticipated or prevented. If a man in a bank decides to embezzle, he cannot be anticipated, not even if every other man in town outside the bank were a policeman. The information is concealed in his own brain until the crime has been committed.

"The same is true of the fellow who decides to kill his wife because he thinks she is unfaithful; it is true of forgers, except those who are known as professional forgers, and it is equally true of a vast variety of other miscellaneous crimes—there simply is no way that we can learn of the offender's intention in advance of the act. All the police can do in these cases is to make the pursuit swift and certain, and insure conviction by a thorough collection of the evidence."

This brought up the problem of the automobile. Every experienced crook knows that in planning a crime, the problem which requires the most careful attention is that of making a getaway. There are plenty of gunmen with enough audacity to shove an automatic under a cashier's nose and to pull the trigger if he makes a false move, but it takes more than nerve to insure that the band will carry off the loot in safety. It takes imagination.

It is common knowledge that in recent years almost every crime which required open violence and escape has involved the use of the automobile. It gives criminals the advantage of a sudden attack and a rapid retreat. Moreover, because of the number of automobiles on the streets, and their absence of individual marks of distinction, a car occupied by criminals can turn a corner and lose itself in traffic almost instantly. Many observers have seen in this development what appeared to be an almost insuperable advantage for the criminals. How can it be overcome?

"I can think of no way in which the police can be forewarned of such attacks," Col. Orrick admitted. "The police should be equipped with cars capable of overtaking any which criminals use, but speed usually doesn't mean anything, because the criminals invariably have disappeared before the police arrive. It seems to me that the solution of that problem lies in what I already have said, namely, to make the city so unattractive to professional criminals that they will choose another scene of operations. Of course, the more policemen there are, the more difficult escape is, but that is a matter involving increases in the size of the force, about which we can do nothing."

The Difficult Problem of Guarding the Payroll.

He cited some startling figures. Does the average St. Louisan know that there are 200 less patrolmen on duty now at any given time of day than there were 17 years ago? It seems inconceivable, but here are the facts: In 1908 there were approximately 1200 men available for beat duty. There are approximately 1200 available today. But in 1908 there were two 12-hour shifts, so that there were 600 available for each shift, while today there are three eight-hour shifts, with 400 for each shift. Thus, notwithstanding the huge increase in population, the present number of patrolmen on duty would have to be increased 50 per cent to equal the number on duty 17 years ago.

It is true that there have been increases in the size of the force, but all these increases have been absorbed by the growing Traffic Bureau, made necessary by the growth of automobile traffic, and by other special squads. The only real advance has been an increase in the number of detectives from 125 to 219.

It was this striking condition which determined the new board to stop furnishing police guards for payrolls and banks. This service required taking an average of 40 men from the day shift six days in the week, and the board felt it simply couldn't spare them.

"They complained bitterly about it," said Col. Orrick, with that faint smile. "We had a meeting with them. I pointed out that it was impossible for us to guard all the payrolls, and

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Disputes Pennsylvania's Statements.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

YOUR editorial of April 10, headed "The Pennsylvania Shows How," is evidently based upon the presentation of the case made by the Pennsylvania management. Employes of the Pennsylvania may not "elect anybody they desire, providing he be an employe of the road." And discrimination is made against union men "as employes" or as individuals duly elected to represent their fellow workers.

The Order of Railroad Telegraphers is a labor organization and a great majority of employes in the telegraph service of the Pennsylvania are members. On four different occasions during the last five years the employes of the Pennsylvania in our line of service were voted as to whom they desired to represent them in negotiations with the management of the Pennsylvania. The first of those elections occurred during Federal control, and three of them were conducted by the management under its Employes Representation Plan. On all four occasions members of the Order of Railroad Telegraphers were chosen as representatives—in only one instance was a solitary nonmember elected among the scores and hundreds voted on.

At the election held in February, 1924, none but members of the General Committee of the Order of Railroad Telegraphers, all of them employes of the Pennsylvania, were elected to represent employes in the telegraph service—and that happened in an election called, conducted and controlled by the management under the Employes Representation Plan.

Failure of the company and committee to agree led to talk of a strike, and thereupon the Railroad Labor Board intervened, ordered the status quo maintained and decided to take a vote of the employes in an endeavor to find out for itself whom the employes desired to represent them.

The vote taken by the Railroad Labor Board resulted in 4258 for the Order of Railroad Telegraphers and 318 for the Employes Representation Plan. Those figures are the official figures given out by the Railroad Labor Board.

The result of the election held by the board was declared on Dec. 8, 1924. On Jan. 10, 1925, the management of the Pennsylvania ordered all committeemen on each local division of the road to report to the superintendent. On reporting they were asked to sign a prepared declaration to virtually disassociate themselves from the Order of Railroad Telegraphers and, failing to do so, were thereupon removed from the committee, though one-third of them had another year to serve, while another third had been elected for a three-year term in the company's own election held during February, 1924.

Shortly after the members of the committee were removed, as above noted, the company ordered another election in which less than 1000 out of 7000 eligible voted, and fixed the qualifications of those who might enter as candidates, which qualifications barred union men from being candidates, for to accept the conditions laid down by the company in order to qualify as a candidate a man had to become traitor to his union. The committee then elected by that small minority of employes is the one recognized by the management, while the committee elected by an absolute majority of such employes is refused recognition by the management. Those are the facts. E. J. MANION, Pres.
The Order of Railroad Telegraphers.

SO the editor says that there is czarism in the army because one soldier was given 40 years and another was given 26 years and a dishonorable discharge for teaching radicalism and inciting people to overthrow the Government by any means possible. What excuse can the editor give when he says, they are not deserving of the punishment? Here are two men that wear the army uniform, agree to give up their life to protect their flag and country and to serve their President. Kansas City No "Hick" Town.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

BUCOLICUS' article insinuating that Kansas City is a "hick" town is just an example of the average St. Louisan's high-minded attitude toward any city with less population than St. Louis. As a resident of Kansas City for 15 years I cannot say that I have seen or learned anything particularly new or up-to-date since my arrival in the great "metropolitan city of St. Louis."

VACATION WORK BY CONGRESS.

Unless President Coolidge calls it into extra session the Congress elected last November will not meet until the first Monday of next December. It will meet then under the urge and admonition of the election which will be held in November, 1926. What it does or does not do will be governed more or less by political expediency.

Political expediency will press the party in power for action. The mid-term congressional election is a severe test which every administration has to face. In the present instance it will be pregnant with unusual political significance. A verdict favorable to the administration will probably mean Mr. Coolidge's renomination in 1928 and the shattering of the third-term tradition. Political history is in process of gestation.

All this is to be considered in connection with the plan of Representative Longworth, as Speaker of the next House, to have the Ways and Means Committee prepare, during the recess period, a draft of a new revenue bill, which the next session will be expected to pass, and also to have a good deal of work done on the appropriation bills. This preliminary work, done during vacation, will, it is hoped, save a lot of the regular session's time which otherwise would be lost and will enable Congress to make a record for service that will appeal favorably to the country.

Apart from its politics, the common sense of the plan is obvious. Whether it turns out well will depend, of course, on the manner of work that is done and the temper in which the Congress as a whole receives it. Certainly if a revenue bill is prepared in advance which is sound in principle, which will furnish further popular relief from burdensome taxation, its speedy enactment into law will evoke public approval and will be a valuable asset for the Republican party in the 1926 campaign.

At best, however, such procedure is a managerial strategy. It discloses the political acumen and foresightedness of Mr. Longworth, but is not a solution for the problem of removing Congress from the shadow of politics and empowering it to legislate in prompt response to campaign promises. If the Congress elected last November could have met, say, last January, as contemplated in the Norris resolution, and done its work, not from the viewpoint of the next election but according to the platforms on which the members were elected, there would be no occasion for the Longworth experiment.

The Norris plan for abolishing lame-duck sessions and putting Congressmen on the job while "fresh from the people" is the sensible solution. The Longworth plan, commendable as it is, is a makeshift.

CHILD VICTIMS OF POLITICS.

The failures of the recent Legislature are coming home to roost. Appropriations were trimmed to the bone and, if the word of State Superintendent Charles A. Lee means anything, so were the rural school children of the State. Last year, says Mr. Lee, 1668 rural schools had less than eight months of teaching and some had only two months. At this rate a child in one of several districts in the country would have to go to school 60 years to get as much schooling as the city pupil who goes 10 months a year for 12 years. And the school levy in some of the wealthier counties of the State was not as large by half as in some of the poorer counties.

This is not equality of opportunity for the children of the State or a just distribution of burdens. The Legislature adjourned politically complacent, having done nothing for the country schools. Morally it has on its hands the blight of illiteracy of the rural children of the State.

"NOTES TO THE GOVERNMENT."

Because some 400 voters in Denver did not know how to mark their votes or did not take the trouble to mark them correctly, Judge Ben B. Lindsey came near being defeated for re-election. He had been declared elected by 117 votes last November. The election was contested, and the court has given him the reduced majority of 35 votes, throwing out nearly 400 because, as the District Judge explained, although it was clearly the intention of the voters to cast their ballots for Lindsey, he allowed the technical objections by the opposing attorneys on that number of pencil marked and otherwise disputed ballots.

A good authority defined a ballot as "nothing but a written note or communication from an elector, addressed to the Government, expressing the choice of the elector, but which has not yet been delivered."

All of which bears on the St. Louis election contest and emphasizes the importance of voters being educated in the matter of voting and of exercising due care in keeping in mind the proper method of marking their ballots and then doing it.

HISTORY AND HEROES.

May something save us from our historians. They are robbing us of our best-beloved traditions. Dr. Archer Butler Hulbert, professor of history at Colorado College, tells the Missouri Historical Society that the vicissitudes of life on the Oregon Trail have been overestimated, especially with reference to annoyance from Indians along the way, and declares that the pioneers who trod the trail were no great shakes as Indian fighters for the simple reason that they were not often called upon to fight Indians.

The impression has prevailed that progress toward Oregon and California between 1835 and 1860 was achieved in the face of continuous resistance of the red men and at the cost of a great many lives. But Dr. Hulbert, after looking carefully into the matter, announced that this is all wrong, the facts of the case being that there were comparatively few encounters and negligible casualties.

The trouble, it would seem, is that a generation more credulous than critical has permitted the occasional sanguinary episodes of the pioneer period to color the whole picture, obscuring the greater intervals of peaceful progress.

It may well be that the historian is not only right in regard to the history that pertains to the Oregon Trail, but that he is pointing the way to a more correct evaluation of history at large. But it is hard on the heroes.

MORE DEMOCRATIC DIVISION.

So commonly has the Democratic party been rent by schisms or threatened by them that the party could hardly have fared worse in the hands of its professed enemies. Now there is reported to be on foot an anonymous movement, declared to have spent $20,000 to date, which deliberately undertakes to drive the axes both of religion and sectionalism into the side of old Democracy. It is hardly fair to pin the conspiracy on McAdoo, since he disclaims it and there is no proof to the contrary. It is noted, however, that the division is on the old McAdoo battle front of Ku Kluxism and the West and South openly hostile to the East.

The sectional issue, which would shut out presidential candidates of six Eastern states, including New York, apparently is aimed at Gov. Smith. The anti-Catholic note may also have been introduced for this purpose. Whether the motive is deeper must be left at present to conjecture. Certainly the effect would be sinister. It not only bodes ill to the party itself, but threatens to inject further the poison of religious bigotry and sectionalism into national politics.

As the national Ku Klux vote is generally regarded as having gone Republican last November, and as Republican success depends quite as much on Democratic division as on any other Republican asset, it is not inconceivable that interests thriving on the political wares peculiar to Republican auspices are already organized and at work on the next self-inflicted Democratic defeat.

SAFETY IN COUNTRY AND CITY.

In Letters From the People on Monday "Old Fashioned" asked, "Are hiking days over?" The question was prompted by two recent accidents. In one two men were killed by an automobile on a country road in Illinois. In the other, in St. Louis County, three young girls returning home from church at night, were struck by a motor car and one of them killed.

Our correspondent concludes that hiking for health or pleasure must be abandoned or we shall have to construct good sidewalks along the country roads. This is more than a conclusion; it is a sound suggestion. Concern for the pedestrian has not entered much into our vast program of highway construction. That is easily understood. Road building for motor traffic is costly. The biggest possible mileage with the funds available has been the first, indeed, the exclusive, consideration. But the pedestrian must be taken into account and his safety provided for. It is a phase of the subject that should enlist the interest of automobile clubs and other organizations active in promoting road building.

Other things must be considered. Grade crossings cannot be eliminated at once, but obstructions at both trolley and railroad crossings which prevent the motorist from seeing an approaching car or train must be removed. Further, the traffic problem of the cities must presently be attacked in a bold way, instead of the present nibbling process.

Solution of the urban traffic problem lies in rigorous enforcement of more effective regulations than have yet been undertaken. The safety of the pedestrian on the country road seems to be a problem of construction.

WAR-MAKING SCHOOL BOOKS.

When studies are made of school history texts in the different nations the wonder arises not that there are so many wars but so few. An instructive and convincing article on the subject of school history texts as related to war has been contributed to the April number of the Advocate of Peace by Donald R. Taft, professor of economics and sociology at Wells College.

To isolate the germ of fallacious history teaching Mr. Taft places in deadly parallel what French and German textbooks say on identical subjects. While, for instance, French children read: "The war was caused solely by German aggression" and "the Germans, believing themselves to be a superior race, have long plotted to exterminate the 'unworthy' French," German pupils are told: "Germany is guiltless; English jealousy and French desire for revenge were the chief among many causes."

French children learn that "the return of Alsace-Lorraine to France was an act of historical justice and no plebiscite was needed." And little Germans read that "Alsace-Lorraine is only 13 per cent French, and its possession gives France the keys to Germany." And what but jingo propaganda can we call the following exhortations? French: "Germans are beasts, and the German menace will never cease. Therefore, France, beware!" German: "German youth, this (Versailles) treaty must not be permanent."

Many more diametrically opposed statements with regard to the war and the treaty are quoted, together with biased versions of the League of Nations. Scholars who have given profound and impartial study to the causes of war seem less certain in their conclusions than textbook writers. But it is believed that the false teaching of the rising generations of children is most potent.

Would it not be more in line with the primary mission of the League of Nations to get the Governments together on school texts than to dabble in the field of general literature as recently told in the news?

Where the boy his paper cries,
I saw (if you still remember)
At the place we met, in December,
Your eyes.

The words we spoke said nothing;
In them the mystery lies,
And yet, my thoughts they intertwine,
Intoxicated with, like ancient wine,
Your eyes.

But a dream goes up in smoke (they say),
Or else on the pavement dies,
Yet still to me come hazy dreams
And I can see (or so it seems)
Your eyes.

CARL SANSBOURG IN MISSOURI.

(Monroe County Appeal.)

Miss Ruth Stone was on duty at the Clio Club Saturday night, to give readings from Sansbourg, a freak genius whose poems are considered sort of Browningesque because only those who have charts, diagrams and special directions can decipher just what he is driving at. The club devoted some time to a discussion of the various verses that had been read, all members agreeing that the one entitled, "The Whatness of the Whenceness" excelled all the others in merit, whereupon Miss Stone informed them that it was one of her own composition. Injunction proceedings will probably be instituted against her when Mr. Sansbourg runs across this item in the Appeal.

Sir: The average mother cannot restrain a sigh of hopelessness when she reads the statement made by Admiral Bradley A. Fisk, "With a few minor exceptions, virtually all the elements which constitute civilization have been brought into existence by men."

"Who," she asks, "brought the people into the world for which men have gathered together these elements which constitute civilization?"

Which is more important, man or civilization? Of what use is a civilization that destroys man for whom it was built?

Which should concern us more, the principle underlying a course of action or the expediency of it? We call ourselves Christians, but one looks in vain for practical application among so-called Christian nations of such principles as "Love thy neighbor" and "Whosoever man shall smite thee on the right cheek, turn to him the other also."

The efforts of the women's Peace Union are an attempt to make these principles something more than mere "mouthings." It would seem that anything worthy the name of civilization should be able to maintain the ideals which are the flower of the thought of man.

SIGNS OF SPRING.

April skies, gray or blue,
Sudden showers, glittering dew,
Flash of red bird in a tree,
Dandelions, gay and free—
Spring's own color, living green,
Fresh young leaves, a flick'ring screen,
Heady scent in puffs of air
Carrying madness, loss of care,
Drifting petals, mocking snow
Safely taunting distant foe;
But white, drowned worms upon the path
After earth's refreshng bath
Are surer signs than springing flowers
That spring's returned to leafy bowers.

EW "SPANISH PRISONER" VICTIMS FACE RIDICULE OF LEGAL PROSECUTION

Time-Honored Fraud Brings Steady Income to Swindlers Despite Repeated Exposures.

Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch and Chicago Daily News.

MADRID, Spain, March 25.—The rial swindle, more commonly own as the "Spanish prisoner" windle, is one of the most time- nored yet amazing frauds in the rld. Although exposed again d again in the newspapers all nations nothing stops it, for is based on a sound knowledge the frailties of human nature, en though it appeals to the best ntiments of mankind—the sense charity and chivalry. Many of victims deserve to lose their oney, but others like the aged dow who sent all her savings to cue the "prisoner's daughter" om a Spanish prison, deserve onuments.

For an outlay of nothing except me—always the cheapest com- odity in Spain—a few sheets of tepaper, some stamps and much ngenuity, the swindle brings to its perpetrators a steady income in dollars, pounds sterling, francs and marks. And the swindlers are un- commonly safe. Few victims want to prosecute. Already the crowd arrested a month ago is at liberty.

Process of the Swindle.

How does the swindle work? Very simply—on the writing of a few letters by the swindlers here in Spain. The first letter is usually like the following:

"Dear Sir and Relative! Although I have not the honor to know you rsonally, but merely by hints of deceased mother, your relative, ho said I belong to your family, d in this reliance I implore your rotection for my only daughter, ary Rose, of 15 years, being at resent in a boarding college, be- se I am a widower, and for this ason I want your aid and pro- ction to recover the sum of $185,- of my property, which amount have deposited in your country two banks, only known to me. the same time I wish to name my daughter's tutor, sending to your home to be under your e and protection, being I in pris- for a noble and just cause. If accept the sacred mission I rust you, as a just reward I will ld you the fourth part of the oresaid sum. My object address- g you is to assure under your elp the honest patrimony of my earest daughter. As my health tate is grievous I am imploring ou a soon reply, and then I will rite you my secret with every etails."

Second Letter More Specific.

Usually a second letter follows on after the first, for the "pris- ner's" health is supposed to be ailing rapidly and he hastens to nfide his secret, "which I intrust your honesty and wariness." efly, the story is that he is in ison for political reasons. The risoner" had fled abroad, where transferred his fortune. "My ife and daughter made them- lves ready by stealth to come and nsort with me," but, alas, "my happily wife fell sick, receiving I e painful news of her death. Mad grief and seeing my daughter ithout help, I reduced all my capi- l in bank notes and resolved to out to Spain to take my daugh- I thought it a large impru- nce to go again to Spain with so portant sum of money, and find- g in the midst of my giddiness ne sure means to leave my capi- l, I resolved to deposit $120,000 two good bands and the remain- r of $65,000 I resolved to con- al in a very artful secret of my unk, made in Paris under my di- ection. Well disguised, and with e security that nobody would agine where I had my money, returned to Spain."

Where the 'Chaplain" Comes In.

Unlucky and unfortunate man! "wretch enemy" recognized and cused him. Court-martial and a anish prison followed. The pris- er's baggage, including the unk, was seized and held by the dicial authorities. The daughter ned in a convent, while the fa- r pined in prison.

However, "explained the painful re of my daughter to the rev- nd chaplain of this prison, he came affected for my state and derstanding my life would be eaching on account of the deep onic suffering wearing me away offer me all his help. Then, anks to him, I can communicate th you."

After this confidence comes the first demand for pecuniary assistance: "I form the plan of sending my daughter to you, escorted by the reverend chaplain, and with the trunk, but for to release my baggage from the tribunal I must pay the expenses of the process outlays, amounting to $50. For this sum I have nobody to appeal in Spain for fear of being bewretchedly betrayed again. The venerable priest is ignorant of the place and manner my fortune is lodged. Only God, you and me knows the secret. As my wish is that you be guardian of my daughter, I will name you her tutor and her fortune trustee until her full age, and as a right reward I yield you the fourth part of all my fortune, $46,250."

Married "Mary of Your Family."

If this epistle fails to draw the money solicited, or if doubts are expressed as to the relationship claimed, answers are ready as follows: "With regard my relationship with you I say that my father, being a commandant of the Spanish army, he was trusted to study in your country army's organization and married there with Mary of your family shortly afterward coming to Spain, where by some unknown disgusts was cut off the correspondence with my mother family."

This by no means exhausts the swindler's resources. If the victim sends the first sum asked he is caught in a whirl. Profuse thanks and the information that the precious "equipages" were rescued just in time is accompanied by the sad information that there is not a cent for the traveling expenses of the priest and the daughter-heiress-ward. Happily the artful secret trunk is safe in the hands of the worthy ecclesiastic. But the failing health of the "prisoner" warns him that his end is not far off.

If money is sent for the traveling expenses, renewed gratitude, but another hitch. The nuns where Mary Rose is at school claim payment for her expenses, a year in arrears. If the "dear relative" proves obdurate a shock is reserved for him: the "prisone" dies. The sad news is conveyed in a letter from the "chaplain" accompanied by an imposing death certificate from the governor of the prison.

Generally this sad climax decides the "relative" to open his purse strings. Sometimes it prompts him to announce his intention of coming to Spain to fetch Mary Rose. This, of course, delights the "chaplain." Blesssings and instructions are showered on the foreigner's head. He will be met by the "chaplain" at Madrid or some other big railway junction.

Explaining About Mary Rose.

At the interviews which follow at some modest hotel the "padre" endeavors to obtain small sums under various pretexts. He even produces Mary Rose, but finally decamps, leaving his victim to explain to the police as best he can why he is in a hotel in the company of a Spanish girl, whose only explanation of her role is that she was sent for by the foreign gentleman, who, after greeting her warmly, seems to have changed his feelings toward her.

Only the boldest among the swindlers carry things to this extreme. In most cases, if the "relative" becomes too inquisitive, the correspondence lapses on the part of the "prisoner."

On the victim's part fear of ridicule often overrides his anger at being so easily gulled. Even if he endeavors to bring the swindlers to book he is up against the difficulty of legal proceedings in a foreign land against a person or persons unknown. All consular officers can do, as a rule, is to send the incriminating correspondence to the police, who sometimes make a lucky find, such as that ofa short time ago, and pick up letters, note-paper and foreign directories and make some arrests.

Who the swindlers are, to what class of society they belong, how they manage to move about over Spain, year after year, receiving registered letters and carrying on a heavy correspondence with countries all over the world, will probably always be a mystery. The Spanish authorities have little sympathy with the victims, who hesitate to throw good money after bad for prosecution.

WORLD THEATER FOR INTERNATIONAL PLAYS

New York's Newest Playhouse to Stage Six Dramas of Various Nations Yearly.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 18.—The World Theater, producing annually six plays from six different nations, will come into active being in New York next fall, it was announced yesterday. The project has been incorporated with a capital of $50,000, most of which is said to be in hand. A campaign for 5000 subscribers will be started soon.

Irma Kraft, playwright and novelist; Dr. Leon Bandler of New York and Harry Leopold of Philadeplhia are the incorporators. The advisory committee will include George Arliss, Edward Bok, Louis Untermyer, Lionel Atwill, John Galsworthy, Elmer Rice, Dr. Nathan Krass, Adolph Ochs, Frances Carson, Edna Ferber, Jose Ruben, Blanche Yurka, Roland Holt and Hatcher Hughes.

Miss Kraft is going to Europe to arrange for plays to be produced by the new group. At the start a Broadway playhouse will be rented. It is planned eventually to build a theater.

"The Subway," to Be First.

The first play will be "The Subway," by Elmer Rice. It will be presented as the American play of the program. Each production will be in English, although there will be no attempt to Americanize the play and the direction will be under a native of the land from which the play comes.

While the other five plays to be produced have not been selected, Miss Kraft has appointments to see Galsworthy, Schnitzler, Capek, Wervel, Copeau, Romain Rolland and Le Normand while she is abroad.

Present plans are to charge $12 for six tickets, one for each of the six plays, although it is hoped eventually to make the price lower.

"The World Theater will be a dramatic clearing house for the entire globe," Miss Kraft explained.

Not Commercial Venture.

"We are not going to put on foreign plays in the sense that commercial managers put them on. We will have guest directors, just as orchestras have guest conductors. Just as the Metropolitan brings to New York the operas of the world, so our theater plans to bring the drama of the world.

"Our effort will be toward Broadwayizing the box office successes of foreign nations and to be truly cosmopolitan. It is likely that our first season will include plays from Spain, Italy, England, Germany and, possibly, Ireland, as well as the American play with which we will open.

"We expect to co-operate with Piranello's international art theater in Rome, Reinhardt's international spielhaus in Berlin, the Theater Internationale in Paris, the International Theater in London and the Carl Theater in Vienna."

President Orrick on Combatting Crime Here

asked how we could decide which ones to guard. One contractor said he had a payroll of $4000, and he thought all payrolls of $4000 or over should be guarded. I asked him what I could tell the man with a $3900 payroll, who wanted it guarded. It would require a discrimination which I do not possess to fix a figure at which payrolls should be guarded or left unguarded. Also, I pointed out that every man spared for such duty must be taken off a beat, and I asked what I would say to the 1000 people living on that beat if a crime were committed there during that patrolman's absence.

"Some of the banks kicked. They can have all the armed and licensed watchmen they want, but they said the police uniform inspired a fear which private watchmen's uniforms do not inspire. Well, they can get uniforms with as much gold braid as an Admirals's, if they desire." Indeed, for that matter, they could dress them in full armor, with coats of mail, helmets, shields, and let them stand full panoplied before every teller's window.

Another important element enters the punishment of criminals after they are captured and charged with specific crimes. Everybody has observed how ably they usually are defended in the courts. This is because there are many criminal lawyers who have made a life study of means by which to save defendants from the penalties of the law. They know every loophole and technicality, and criminals get the benefit of this knowledge. The police, on the other hand, have no legal advisers of their own. For opinions on legal questions they must call upon the City Counselor, who has a multiplicity of duties, one of which is to cope with the skillful legal department of the public utility corporations, a task alone sufficient to demand all his faculties. For advice on what constitutes competent evidence against criminals, they must ask the Circuit Attorney, who also has plenty to do prosecuting cases.

Would it not be of great assistance to the police in their warfare with criminals to have a legal bureau of their own, a bureau whose sole and undivided duty would be that of co-operating with and assisting the police in their fight on crime?

"The constant assistance of a criminal lawyer certainly would help," said Col. Orrick. "The Police Department once had something of the sort in a Judge-Advocate of the Police Department, a position which since has been abolished. Three members of the present board are lawyers, but their practice has been mostly civil, and criminal law is a study in itself. Besides, the members of the board can hardly be expected to give all their time, although," he added grimly, "they have been doing it for the last week."

He thought it might be possible for the Police Department to employ legal assistance of this kind under the provision of the law empowering it to obtain all necessary "clerical" help.

"Our problem with the crooks always is complicated," he interjected, "by the fact that as soon as we arrest them they get out on bond—and commit another crime to get money to pay the lawyer."

This, then, about summed up the strategy of the new Commander in Chief of the police army, upon which rests the defense of St. Louis against its perpetual enemy, crime. To make the city too warm for the "red hots," to smash the incubators which hatch young criminals, to maintain an efficient force, ably led, to be prompt and relentless in the pursuit and conviction of offenders—these are the new general orders, this is the strategy. As for the tactics, Col. Orrick, like all experienced military leaders, knows they should be left largely to the field commanders, men who have learned the detail of the business in actual combat. He isn't telling any grizzled Sergeant how to clean up his district, he merely tells him that it must be cleaned up. If the Sergeant knows his business as he should, it will be done. If he doesn't there are men who know the business who would be glad to have the Sergeant's chevrons. And that goes for all of them—from the Chief down.

Forest Week in Missouri.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 18.—Gov. Baker issued a proclamation today designating the week of April 27 to May 3, inclusive, as "Forest Week" in Missouri and calling upon the citizens of the State to assist in preserving and increasing the "wooded areas" of the State. National forest week will be observed at the same time, by proclamation of President Coolidge.

HIGHER FREIGHT RATES IN STATE PROPOSED

Advance Ranging From ½ of Cent to 11 Cents Between St. Louis and Kansas City Sought.

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 18.—Increases in freight rates ranging from one-half a cent to 11 cents are sought by railroads operating between St. Louis and Kansas City and intermediate points in applications filed today with the State Public Service Commission. The applications ask for authority to deviate from the commission's tariff rules in filing new class rates between the various points.

The changes propose an increase of one-half a cent in first class, 11 cents in second and third class rates and 5½ cents for 100 pounds in fourth class rates, with slight changes in the carload rates. A conference of shippers and carriers relative to the applications has been called by the commission at its office here, Monday, at 2 p. m. The commission expects numerous communities of northern Missouri will be represented.

Several months ago the commission refused to permit increases in the second, third and fourth class rates between St. Louis and Kansas City, of about half of those now proposed by the railroads. These changes, it was announced, are a part of a general plan of rate reconstruction in western trunk line territory and are proposed as temporary rates pending complete investigation by State commission and the Interstate Commerce Commission. They are a result of a compromise, it was explained, reached by shippers and carriers by submitting both sides for arbitration to Director of Traffic Hardie of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The U. S. Senate, Safeguard or Nuisance?

conceive of only rare instances, as, for instance, when the country is on the verge of war, where an executive session might be advisable.

But what useful purpose is served by secret debates on presidential appointments?

I have seen confirmations of public officials made in executive sessions of the Senate that never would have been made had the sessions been open. If appointments are considered in secret, there is a splendid opportunity for the exercise of that subtle Washington social and political influence that is always active at the capital and which I propose to discuss in a later article.

I know of one case—the confirmation of an army officer who was vigorously opposed because of alleged Prussian methods and cruelty to civilian soldiers during the war—where the social lobby was exerted to the limit. The Senate voted for that confirmation. I doubt very much whether that officer would have been confirmed had the sessions been open and the discussion made public.

Social Influences Bad.

Dinner parties were held, and Senators were invited to attend for the sole purpose of influencing their action as public officials, in the matter of this confirmation. To the credit of the Senate, the number influenced in this manner have been comparatively few; yet the few have sometimes been able to turn the tide.

I have never been able to recognize any good argument for secret discussions and secret balloting on appointments to public office. I can see no more reason for them than for secret campaigns and secret elections. A prospective elective officer of the Government submits his record to the electorate. Why should a man seeking appointment to office not do likewise? Is there any reason why a man named for the Supreme Court, a life tenure office, or a Secretary of War, who may have either pacifistic or militaristic views, or the directorship of the Veterans' Bureau should not have his qualifications openly and publicly discussed?

From a strict administration standpoint executive sessions are, of course, desirable. No administration likes to go through such an experience as the Warren case. Yet there were enough Senators of the majority party willing to go into open session to bring that about. As a principle, certainly the public interest and not partisan expediency, should govern.

The article next Sunday, by former Senator Walsh, will consider the subject: "Was Dawes Right?"

AMERICAN TO WRITE OPERA

Director of Metropolitan Declines to Name Composide Commissioned.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 18.—Gulio Gatti-Casazza, general manager of the Metropolitan Opera Co., announces that he has commissioned an American composer to write an opera expressly for the Metropolitan. He would not divulge the composer's name, saying the work cannot be completed until the fall of 1926.

Announcement of the production next season for the first time of the ballet "Skyscrapers" by John Alden Carpenter, an American composer, was made by Gatti-Casazza. Igor Stravinsky's "Le Rossignol," in French, will be produced next season for the first time in America.

COL. CLAY MACDONALD DIES IN SANITARIUM

Went to Firing Line in France After Son Fell—Stormy Police Career in St. Joseph.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., April 18.—With the death in a Kansas City sanitarium early today of Col. Clay C. MacDonald, soldier, lawyer and public servant, Missouri loses one of its most conspicuous military figures. Col. MacDonald, who was 71 years old, had been in the sanitarium a month, following a breakdown which he suffered here early in the winter. The body was brought here late today for burial. One son, Angus, survives.

Col. MacDonald saw service in the Spanish-American war, in the border trouble with Mexico in 1916, and in the World War, in which he was cited for bravery in action at the front, where he was the oldest American officer in active combat.

At Cheppy, France, during the Argonne offensive, when his son, Lieut. Malcolm MacDonald, had been killed, Col. MacDonald was serving as Postmaster for the 35th division, having not been given a command on account of his age. He asked for a front line command and got it. Col. MacDonald took his command to the firing line, and saw hot fighting.

Following his discharge from the army, Col. MacDonald was drafted for police chief to curb a crime wave sweeping St. Joseph. From the very beginning the veteran was a stormy petrel. The Police Department became at once a military organization. Inspections were frequent and rigid. As the older men resigned or failed of reappointment, Chief MacDonald filled the department with younger men and whenever possible soldiers of the World War.

A spectacular event of his administration came in October, 1921. It cost the death of the veteran chief of detectives, Tom Johnson. A negro sought by the police on a trivial charge refused to give himself up and barricaded himself in a house near Seventh and Monterey streets, Oct. 26, 1921. Col. MacDonald sent an attacking squad to surround the house and ordered it to take the negro dead or alive. The negro was taken—dead—but not until Johnson and Albert Hall, a police clerk, had been mortally wounded.

Col. MacDonald's "military rule" of the police department continued with increasing force, finally resulting in a series of promiscuous shootings, which led to a police shakeup. Col. MacDonald being dismissed and the Police Commissioners soon after retiring.

700 TO BE IN PAGEANT OF ST. LOUIS TURNVEREIN

Event at Open-Air Theater, Forest Park, a Feature in Diamond Jubilee Celebration.

More than 700 persons will participate in a pageant in the Municipal Open-Air Theater in Forest Park, May 15, as a feature of the celebration of the diamond jubilee of the St. Louis Turnverein. A banquet May 12 and a physical education exhibition and carnival May 23 at Turner Hall, 1508 Chouteau avenue, will be other features.

The story of the achievements of the St. Louis Turnverein will be told to various city organizations during the celebration by a large corps of speakers from the Turnverein.

"World Trip" at Y. W. C. A.

The World Fellowship Committee of the Young Women's Christian Association will conduct a "Tour Around the World" Tuesday at 8 p. m. at the Central Y. W. C. A., Fourteenth and Locust streets. All departments of the association will be represented in the 21 countries visited. Mrs. A. M. Dow will speak on "Conditions in India," and Miss Mary McElroy, general secretary of the St. Louis Y. W. C. A., will speak on "The Melting Pot of the World."

ATTORNEYS ACQUITTED OF CONCEALING MAIL LOOT

kansas Men, Freed by Federal Jury at Little Rock, Face Trial in Chicago.

the Associated Press.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., April 18.—Wallace Davis and Tom Poe, attorneys, were acquitted by a Federal Court jury here today of charges of possessing and concealing $100,000 worth of stolen bonds, part of the loot of the $2,000,000 Rondout, Ill., train robbery. The jury was out an hour and 15 minutes.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 18.—An indictment charging conspiracy to receive and conceal $100,000 in bonds, part of the loot from the $2,000,000 mail train robbery at Rondout (Ill.) last June, is pending here against Wallace Davis and Thomas Poe, Little Rock, Ark., attorneys, who were acquitted of a charge of receiving and concealing the loot in that city today.

Although the conspiracy charge here was brought under a different statute and constitutes a distinctly different charge than that under which the two men were tried in Little Rock, the two cases rested on much the same evidence. The question of removing the two men here for trial on the conspiracy indictment has not been decided.

SIGMA NU CONVENTION PLANS

Clark Chapter, Sigma Nu Phi Legal Fraternity, will entertain delegates to the first national legal fraternity conclave held in St. Louis, the Sigma Nu Phi convention opening here May 1.

Delegates to the convention are expected from 25 states. Headquarters for the meeting, which will last two days, will be at Hotel Chase. Entertainment features planned for the delegates include automobile tours of the city, a dinner-dance and a banquet at Hotel Chase. Principal speakers at the banquet will be Congressman Harry B. Hawes and Senator James A. Reed. Clark Chapter was organized at St. Louis University three years ago through the efforts of Kevin Clark and William Bray. It is the oldest legal fraternity connected with the university.

This Wall Paper consists of small lots and patterns that have been discontinued—but which are no less desirable. They are printed on perfect stock—and both the designs and colorings are up to date. The savings afforded are most extraordinary—in some instances amounting to two-thirds the usual selling price! This is a most unusual sale, offering values that are not likely to be available again for a long time. Profit by selecting now!

There are both American and imported Papers—ranging from simple chintz effects to hand-blocked parchments for formal rooms.

Bring room sizes with you when you come to this sale. The limited quantities of some styles make accurate purchasing very necessary.

If you desire, we will arrange for the hanging of any Paper purchased here. This service is a feature of our Wall Paper section.

WIFE SHOOTS AND KILLS HUSBAND TO SAVE OWN LIFE

Jacob J. Olander, 48, Madison Steel Worker, Slain at 4:30 A. M. at His Home.

WOMAN EXONERATED BY CORONER'S JURY

She Tells of Repeated Ill-Treatment and Threats—Says Man Once Stabbed Her.

Dragged from her bed by the hair of her head at 4:30 a. m. yesterday, Mrs. Laura Olander, 37 years old, seized a revolver from the shelf of a nearby folding bed and fired four shots which ended the life of her husband, Jacob J. Olander, 48, a chipper employed by the Commonwealth Steel Co. at Madison, Ill.

A Coroner's jury late yesterday afternoon heard the wife's story of the killing and returned a verdict of "justifiable homicide." Mrs. Olander was at once released from custody.

The shooting occurred at the door between the bedroom and the kitchen of their home at 1821 Collinsville avenue, East Madison. Four bullets passed through Olander's body. The wife immediately summoned police and the wounded man was taken to the residence of Dr. L. C. Harlan, not half a mile away. But before surgical assistance could be given he was dead.

Woman's Story.

In a statement made to Deputy Coroner Tate while she was held in the Madison jail to await the verdict of the Coroner's jury the woman told of repeated ill-treatment beginning with an attack in which she said her husband stabbed her in St. Louis, in 1914, and continuing until the tragedy of yesterday.

In her testimony before the Coroner Mrs. Olander repeated her story of the mistreatment leading up to the tragedy.

"We were married in St. Louis in 1903," she said, "and have had eight children, four of whom are living. The youngest, a boy of 6, was at home last night.

"For two weeks my husband had not spoken to me except to say he would kill me. My sister and her three children were visiting me. I was afraid last night and she slept with me.

"Muttering to Himself."

"About 11 o'clock, when we went to bed ,my husband took a flashlight and wandered all about the house muttering to himself, like a maniac.

"Sister and I went to bed. Then about 4:30 I was awakened by a pull at my hair.

"My husband was standing over me. 'I am going to kill you,' he said.

"He dragged me from the bed and I struggled to my feet. He was trying to drag me to the kitchen and I could hardly resist.

"As we passed the folding bed I saw the revolver lying on its shelf. I seized it. Then as he tried to pull me through the kitchen door, always saying he was going to kill me, I fired."

Daughter Was Threatened.

A daughter, Mary Olander, 18, who testified that her father had within two weeks driven her from home with a hatchet with which he threatened to kill her, and Mrs. Olander's sister, were the only other witnesses called.

The latter, Mrs. Mary Wichlinski of Royalton, Ill., told of Olander's gestures with the searchlight in the earlier part of the night.

"Then," she said, "I was awakened when he came to our bed and dragged my sister out. It was dark, I couldn't see him, nor her, but I heard him cursing and swearing he would kill her and then I heard them threshing around toward the kitchen door. After that came the shots and my sister turned on a light and said, 'I've killed him.'"

Gen. McCoy Returning to U. S.

By the Associated Press.

MANILA, April 19.—Brigadier-General Frank R. McCoy, who for the last four years has been assistant to Governor-General Leonard Wood, departed for the United States via Egypt on the steamer President Monroe. He probably will be assigned to duty with troops. Brigadier-General McCoy will be succeeded by Brigadier-General Halstead Dorey.

LIEUT.-COM. BRECK TO SPEAK AT LUNCHEON

Sports Authority Is Aiding Campaign Against Non-killing Steel Traps.

Lieutenant-Commander Edward Breck, U. S. N. R. F., author, historian and authority on sports, will come from Washington to speak at a luncheon Friday noon in the ballroom of Hotel Statler under the joint auspices of the English-Speaking Union, the Shakspeare Tercentenary Society, and the St. Louis Humane Society. Mrs. Fiske and other well-known theatrical folk, who are members of the all-star cast of "The Rivals," will be guests of honor at the luncheon and each will speak briefly.

The luncheon was originally planned by the English-Speaking Union and the Shakspeare Society in commemoration of the birthday of Shakspeare, and Mrs. Fiske had been invited to be one of the speakers. She replied that she had pledged all her time, apart from her dramatic work, to the National Humane Society, in which she has been interested for many years. Accordingly, the Humane Society was invited to co-operate with the luncheon plans. In deference to Mrs. Fiske, the program will be divided between brief Shakspearean addresses by the theatrical people, and an address by Lieutenant-Commander Breck, who is aiding Mrs. Fiske in her national crusade against the non-killing steel traps used in capturing fur-bearing animals, which sometimes imprison them for days in torture until the trapper reaches them on his rounds.

The luncheon is open to all interested and tickets may be obtained from the Humane Society; Mrs. Charles H. Hoyle, secretary of the Shakspeare Society, 5702 Cabanne avenue, or at the office of the English-Speaking Union, 1333 Syndicate Trust Building.

Lieutenant-Commander Breck has been in the diplomatic and naval services, and during the Spanish-American War volunteered for secret service in Spain, for which he received the naval medal for "dangerous and distinguished service." He has been decorated by the French Government as a Chevalier of the Legion of Honor, has received the Italian War Cross, and is a Commander of the Order of Avis and Order of Christ of Portugal. He was at one time editor-in-chief of London Life. He has served on the staff of the Encyclopedia Britannica, and has written a number of books on naval subjects and sports. He is an expert golfer and swordsman. He is considered an authority on hunting, fishing and forest life questions. He is about 60 years old and was born in San Francisco, his father having been a Commander in the United States Navy.

Youth Falls Under Train.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SEDALIA, Mo., April 18.—Attempting to board a westbound passenger train here this morning, Harry Jones, 22 years old, of Brazil, Ind., fell and his left leg was crushed off below the knee. Foster Trader, also of Brazil, was with him. Jones was taken to a hospital.

Last Week Showed the Greatest Volume of Business in Our Entire Seventy-five Years

WE TAKE this opportunity to express our appreciation for the marvelous response to our announcements of our Jubilee Celebration.

¶ Our purpose was to celebrate seventy-five years of service by giving the greatest values in our history, and we planned a three weeks' celebration.

¶ The second week starts tomorrow. Practically every department will offer brand-new opportunities never shown before and just as attractive in price as any offered during the past week. Every day of this three weeks' celebration will present the greatest buying opportunities ever seen in St. Louis.

Mail Orders

DURING the past week we have received mail orders from twenty-seven states for hundreds of Diamond Jubilee Specials.

¶ We maintain a separate department that gives undivided attention to mail inquiries. Our handling is particularly systematized so that the same personal shopper is assigned to your inquiries, thus gaining a thorough understanding of your desires and insuring individual satisfaction.

¶ You will enjoy shopping at Vandervoort's by mail. Whenever the purchase amounts to $3 or more we will forward free of charge garments and general dry goods. On other items the small parcel post or express charge is more than compensated by the savings afforded and by the advantage of selections possible through our mail order service.

A NEWS ITEM
April 13, 1850

FINE CARRIAGES. Our city is somewhat celebrated for the splendor of the equipages which are turned out from our livery stables. One of them in particular attracted our attention yesterday at the stables of Mr. John Knapp, on Locust between Third and Fourth streets.

It is the most complete carriage which we have seen in the city—not so large as to be cumbersome, but commodious enough for the purpose for which it was specially designed. It is light, airy and elegant, the inside richly finished, and the spring seats making it a real luxury to ride in it. He has received other carriages of the most approved styles, and his buggies are unexceptionable.

Miss Lousita Moser Becomes Bride at University Chapel

Married to Gerard McMahon in Presence of 300 Guests—Engagements of Miss Marjorie Brown and Miss Mildred Lyon Announced.

AN array of weddings, with their attendant parties, gave a brillancy to the first post-Easter week, just passed, which contrasted sharply with the lack of gayety preceding it. The series ended Saturday morning with the wedding of Miss Elizabeth Lousita Moser, daughter of Mrs. Leo Moser, 3725 Lindell boulevard, and the late donor of the St. Louis University Oratorical Medal, and Gerard McMahon, son of Mrs. John F. McMahon of 4936 West Pine boulevard. The ceremony took place in the chapel of the University, adorned with Easter lilies and smilax, the Rev. Father O. J. Kuhnmuench officiating. About 300 guests were invited and later motored to the Moser home for a reception.

The bride was simply gowned in white callot satin, made with a tulle court train edged with a broad band of rose point lace. Orange blossoms held in place the real lace veil and adorned the end of the train. She carried lilies of the valley. Miss Catherine McMahon, sister of the bridegroom, who was maid of honor, wore lace shading from pale yellow to orange, veiling yellow satin, and made with a side drapery. Her hat was tan hair braid, trimmed at either side with pink roses. She carried blue delphiniums. Clarence Maloy was best man and Edgar Roy and Eugene Kilgen ushers.

Mr. and Mrs. McMahon will pass three weeks in the East on their wedding trip and will make their home in St. Louis. The bride attended Eden Hall in Torresdale, Pa., and was introduced to society several years ago. Mr. McMahon is an alumnus of St. Louis University

Mrs. Daniel S. Brown of the Kingsbury apartments was hostess at an informal tea Wednesday afternoon for 50 guests, when announcement was made of the engagement of her daughter, Miss Marjorie Douglas Brown, and Pierce Crosby Bryant, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bryant of Clarksville, Mo. The engagement is of much interest to society, and the wedding, which will take place in the fall, will be conspicuous among a number of similar events.

Miss Brown was graduated at Mary Institute and Briar Cliff Manor, New York, and later attended the French School in New York City. She has traveled abroad extensively. Mr. Bryant has made his home in St. Louis for three years. Miss Brown's sister, Miss Sidney Brown, who, with Miss Carolyn Fowler, has had a bungalow in California for the winter, is expected home May 1.

The engagement of Miss Mildred Lyon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Montague Lyon of 5865 Cates avenue, and Joseph A. Nolan, formerly of Chicago, was announced yesterday at a bridge luncheon given by Mrs. Lyon for her daughter. There were 25 guests, including Mr. Nolan's sister, Miss Johephine Nolan, of Chicago, who is Miss Lyon's guest for the week-end, and Mrs. Randolph Lyon, formerly Miss Susie May Woods, a sister-in-law of the prospective bride.

The announcement was made during the Capital Extends Its Hospitality to Cuba's President-Elect

Luncheon by President and Mrs. Coolidge Heads List of Functions Held in Honor of Gen. Machado; Navy Colony at Wedding of Miss Mary M. Hammond of St. Louis.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, April 18.

OFFICIAL hospitality this week has centered around the President-elect of Cuba, Gen. Gerardo Machado who arrived here on Monday.

President and Mrs. Coolidge entertained in his honor at luncheon Thursday. The President-elect's daughter, Miss M. Machado, and his Secretary of State, Carlos Manuel de Caspedes, former Cuban Minister to the United States, also were present and the other guests represented official and diplomatic society. In the absence of Secretary of War Weeks, Acting Secretary Dwight W. Davis and Mrs. Davis represented the War Department.

Other functions for the President-elect during stay were a dinner Thursday night at the Pan-American Union building given by Secretary of State and Mrs. Kellogg at which all the diplomats from Central and South America were present; a reception on Wednesday by Mr. and Mrs. Rafael Govin of the winter colony; a dinner by the Belgian Ambassador and Baroness De Cartier on Tuesday and a brilliant reception by the Charge d'Affaires of Cuba and Madame Padro.

Mrs. Coolidge occupied a box at the concert of the Bach Choir at the New Auditorium on Thursday which was a gala event both socially and musically. The choir appeared under the auspices of the World Fellowship of Music, which has been in convention here this week and of which Mrs. Coolidge is honorary chairman.

The Navy colony attended the wedding in Annapolis of Miss Mary Margaret Hammond of St. Louis and Lieut. William George Devens. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Father Watson of St. Mary's Parish. Lieut. Devens is a Naval Academy graduate and played star full-back on the Navy football team some years ago.

Many St. Louisans Back From Winter Trips Abroad

A GROUP of St. Louisans returned last week from winter trips abroad. Included in the party were Mr. and Mrs. Frank P. Crunden of Westminster place, and their daughter, Miss Catherine Louise Crunden, and Miss Marie Christy Tiffany, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George S. Tiffany. Mrs. Francis C. Case, who, with Mr. Case, sailed with Mr. and Mrs. Crunden in January, has joined Mrs. George Warren Brown of Portland place in Paris. Miss Crunden met Misses Mary and Margaret Carter, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. L. Ray Carter, Miss Arline Lonsdale and Miss Louise Church, daughter of Mrs. Rolla Wells, in Constantinople. They were enroute to Sicily and later toured Italy. Miss Tiffany studied designing in Paris for several months. Mr. and Mrs. Tiffany will give a dinner dance tomorrow night at the St. Louis Country Club.

Mrs. Oliver Filley of Boston, who has been visiting at the home of her sister-in-law, Mrs. John T. Davis Sr., of 17 Westmoreland place, is now the guest of Mrs. John Dwight Filley another sister-in-law, of 40 Westmoreland place.

Mrs. Thomas J. Drummond of 4943 Lindell boulevard has returned to St. Louis after an extended tour. She left St. Louis by way of Miami and Key West for a cruise to the West Irdies and South America on the Reliance. She passed 10 days in New York en route home, and stopped at Syracuse and Cleveland to visit her married sons.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wiggins of 17 Portland place have returned home from Pasadena, Cal., where they have been since January. They have leased a house there, and will return in July.

dessert courses. A top couple in Colonial costume was put in the center of paper engagement rings placed upright in hearts of ice cream, and back of them were notes bearing the names of Miss Lyon and her fiance. Spring flowers were used in the decorations.

Miss Lyon is a graduate of Mary Institute. Mr. Nolan served with the army overseas during the war. The wedding will be a fall event.

Miss Gertrude Heil, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George L. Heill of 3112 Allen avenue, has chosen Wednesday, June 3, as the date of her wedding to Velda Harold Wrape, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Wrape of 5605 Enright avenue. The ceremony will take place at 11 o'clock in the morning at the Immaculate Conception Church. Mrs. Edward Rowan will be matron of honor, and Miss Audrey Wrape, sister of the bridegroom, maid of honor. The bridesmaids are to be Misses Sabra Lewis of Indianapolis, Carol Heil, sister of the bride; Barbara Wendler and Virginia Bergs. Miss Heil is a graduate of National Park Seminary in Washington and Mr. Wrape is an alumnus of Notre Dame University.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Candler Dobbs Jr., whose marriage was an event of Wednesday, are in Atlantic City on their honeymoon trip. After two weeks they will go to New York to take possession of their apartment on Park avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Candler Dobbs Sr. of Atlanta, Ga., parents of the bridegroom, who came to St. Louis for the ceremony, have departed. Mrs. Dobbs returned home and Mr. Dobbs went to Alaska on a three months' hunting trip. They were the guests, while in St. Louis, of Mr. and Mrs. William C. D'Arcy of Hortense place. Mrs. John Snyder of Joplin, Mo., who also came for the wedding, has returned home, as has Bishop Warren A. Candler of Atlanta, who performed the ceremony. Mrs. Dobbs Jr. was Miss Marjorie Frampton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds Craig Frampton of Westmoreland drive.

The wedding of Mrs. Ida Young Hill, daughter of Mrs. Samuel Hart Young of 6837 Pershing avenue, and Clifford Crouch Jones, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank . JJones, took place quietly at 11 o'clock yesterday morning, the Rev. Dr. Henry Stafford of the Pilgrim Congregational Church officiating. The bride wore powder-blue georgette trimmed with Venetian lace, and carried pink roses and lilies of the valley. The couple were unattended. After a week's honeymoon in the East they will make their home at 6837 Pershing avenue.

Announcement was made last week of the engagement of Miss Raydell Thomas, daughter of Mrs. M. Louise Thomas of Lenox Hall, and Dillard J. Watson of Indianapolis. The news was told at a luncheon given by Mrs. Thomas for her daughter. The wedding will take place June 10.

Miss Virginia Cabanne Link, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Cary Link of 5660 Cabanne avenue, is visiting her uncle and aunt, Captain and Mrs. William F. Saportas, in Fort Riley, Kan. Capt. Saportas has been ordered to Fort Dodge in Des Moines, Ia., and will assume his new duties in June.

Homer Sweetser of Boston has joined his wife and family at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Nagel of Hortense place, where they have been visiting for several weeks. The visitors will remain 10 days longer.

Charles Luxton-Lowney of Australia and his daughter, Miss Ethel Luxton-Lowney, will come to St. Louis April 24 for a visit. They have taken a suite in Hotel Chase. Mr. Luxton-Lowney formerly lived in St. Louis and was an usher at the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas W. Robert. His daughter was presented at the Court of St. James last year.

Private Garden Open to Public.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene H. Angert of the Kent and Clayton roads have announced their garden will be open to all persons interested in flowers, Saturday, April 25, and Sunday, April 26, from 2 to 6 o'clock.

Mrs. C. M. Rice to Give Tea.

Mrs. Charles M. Rice has issued invitations for a tea which she will give tomorrow at 3 p. m. at her country home, Clayton road and Pennsylvania avenue. Weather permitting, tea will be served in the sunken garden, which is one of the features of the Rice estate. The invitation list for the tea includes the women who are working with the recently-established Women's Committee of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra. CAPITAL EXTENDS HOSPITALITY TO CUBA'S PRESIDENT - ELECT

Mrs. Selden P. Spencer, wife of Senator Spencer, who is honorary chaplain-general of the D. A. R., has returned to Washington to attend the annual sessions of its congress next week in the new auditorium.

The polo ball of Tuesday night was festive and exclusive. Many of the guests wore polo costumes and the ballroom of the new Willard was decorated to resemble a polo field. Assistant Secretary of War Davis and Mrs. Davis were at the head of the receiving line and not only the polo set, but many social notables were present.

Mrs. John Cecil, who was Miss Cornelia Vanderbilt, daughter of Mrs. George Vanderbilt, has arrived in Washington with her infant son. She called upon Mrs. Nicholas Longworth soon after her arrival and Paulina and little John Amherst Cecil were shown to one another. Great interest still attaches to Paulina Longworth and crowds gather outside the Longworth residence each day to watch the baby leave in its market basket for its daily outing.

Social as well as organization interest is felt in the meeting of the International Council of Women which will be held May 4 to 10. The Marchioness of Aberdeen, the international president, will be feted on her arrival this week from London to preside over the sessions. She will be the guest of honor at many social functions. Mrs. Philip North Moore of St. Louis, the national president, will give a reception on May 4 to the Marchioness of Aberdeen and the other delegates from foreign lands.

On Thursday Mr. Coolidge received the delegates to the annual convention of the National Assembly Society of the Dames of the Loyal Legion who met here last week.

Cordial welcome has been given to Major-General and Mrs. Douglas MacArthur, who have been spending the week here. Mrs. MacArthur was formerly Miss Louise Cromwell, daughter of Mrs. Edward T. Stotesbury of Philadelphia. Gen. and Mrs. MacArthur have been in the Philippines for several years and they are in this country on leave for a few months.

Princess Bertha Cantacuzene, great-granddaughter of President and Mrs. Grant, whose engagement was announced to Bruce Smith of Louisville, Ky., this week, has arrived in Washington to visit her grandmother, Mrs. Frederick Dent Grant. The Princess made her debut in Washington three years ago and has been popular among the younger set. No date has been set for the wedding, but it is thought that it will take place in the fall.

The Missouri Society will be host to visiting D. A. R. from that State at its meeting tomorrow at the Hotel Roosevelt. This will be the last formal meeting until next fall and will be presided over by Mrs. Bessie Parker Brueggeman, vice president.

Mrs. John B. Henderson entertained at dinner on Monday night in honor of the Italian Ambassador Signor Di Martino, and later took her guests to witness "The Barber of Seville." Among the guests were former Secretary of State and Mrs. Robert Lansing, Count de Sartiges, Assarsson Counseller of the Swedish legation and Miss Beatrice Henderson.

A Woman's Appreciation to the Women and Men of St. Louis and Vicinity

Last Wednesday the Lane Bryant St. Louis store opened at Sixth and Locust Streets.

We announced in advance in a quiet and dignified way, by radio and through the press, that we were coming to St. Louis, confident that we could be of service by supplying stylish, slenderizing apparel to women who wear the regular and larger sizes.

That confidence was backed by years of specialized experience and success in other large metropolitan cities in America.

The welcome accorded us was magnificent.

More than 20,000 people passed through our doors.

I never was so happy or cried so hard in my life.

You can well appreciate that statement when I tell you that twenty-five years ago in the City of New York I was penniless with a small child to support, and had to borrow a few dollars in order to get material to make a wrapper for a woman who was so large she could not buy a dress big enough to fit her.

Since then I have seen a Lane Bryant ten-million dollar mail order business become a reality.

I have seen magnificent Lane Bryant retail stores mount to the sky in New York, Brooklyn, Chicago and Detroit.

And somehow I have in recent years taken all these things as a matter of course, more or less.

But when I saw over 20,000 intelligent men and women pass through our doors on opening day in a few short business hours, it was too much for me and the only thing I could do was to sit in a corner and cry.

I simply want to thank you again.

I want you to know I will always love and do my best for St. Louis women.

In closing I want to leave this thought with you:

No matter what you buy from Lane Bryant, it is guaranteed.

If your Lane Bryant garment does not wear to your satisfaction, or come up to your expectations in every way, bring it back, or we will send for it, and we will feel that we caused you an annoyance.

If you are pleased with us, we would appreciate a word of encouragement from you.

We are here to please you—to serve you—and we want your patronge only if we can earn it and give you full value for your money at all times.

Sincerely yours,

Lane Bryant

P. S.—I want to publicly thank our employes, all St. Louis people, for the way in which they worked for us on opening day and since. Hardly one left the floor even for a cup of coffee. Such wonderful co-operation is simply marvelous.

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Marge Flynn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. N. Flynn of 2704 Alhambra court, and Henry T. Mueller, Saturday evening, April 11, in St. Catherine's Church, the Rev. Father Westhus officiating. Mr. Mueller, who is the son of Mrs. B. Mueller of 3438 Halliday avenue, attended St. Louis University.

The marriage of Miss Rae Katz of Benld, Ill., and Dr. Samuel Wolff of 7277A Manchester avenue took place March 19 in St. Louis. The couple will make their home here.

A recent wedding was that of Miss Ruby May Gilmore, daughter of Mrs. J. Jantzen of 4344 Neosho street, and Robert P. Koester, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Koester, 4020 South Broadway, on April 11, at the Christy Memorial Methodist Church, the Rev. Mr. Crowe officiating. The bride wore a gray satin gown with hat to match and carried white roses and sweet peas. Miss Lena Feeney, bridesmaid, wore a powder blue gown and hat and carried red roses and sweet peas. Walter Koester served his brother as best man. The couple will make their home at 3730 Ohio avenue.

Miss Lucile Ludwig, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Ludwig of 4949 Wabada avenue, announced her engagement to Alphonse H. Bocklage at a bridge luncheon for 18 of her friends given yesterday at her home. Miss Ludwig is a graduate of the Sacred Heart Academy. Mr. Bocklage is an alumnus of St. Louis University. The wedding date has not been set.

Announcement has been made of the engagement of Miss Ruth Levy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Levy of 5111 Waterman avenue, and Harvey Frohlichstein of 4261 McPherson avenue. The wedding date has not been set.

The engagement of Miss Lillian B. Doubek, daughter of Mrs. Anna Doubek of 3104 South Pennsylvania avenue, and Leo J. Gahn, son of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Gahn of 2920 Virginia avenue, has been announced. The wedding will take place July 1.

C. Robert Wolff of 4625 Lindell boulevard will sail May 27 on the Berengaria for Europe, where he will spend several months visiting England, Germany, France, Spain, Italy and Monte Carlo.

Miss Gladys Langwith of the Romaine apartments, 5305 Delmar boulevard, left last Monday for Los Angeles and San Francisco, where she will be entertained by Mrs. E. J. Mulligan, formerly of St. Louis, and Seattle, Wash., where she will be entertained by Mrs. G. Hoefle, formerly Anne Bates of St. Louis. Before leaving St. Louis Miss Langwith was entertained by Miss Loretta Galley of 3459 Pestalozzi street, with a bridge party.

THE WEEK'S PARTIES, DINNERS, DANCES

The women students of Washington University will give a benefit bridge party for their proposed Women's Building next Saturday at 2 o'clock at Hotel Chase. Miss Leota Diesel is in charge of arrangements, and will be assisted in receiving the guests by Misses Louise Butler, Gertrude De Witt, Imogene Haller, Blanche Klein, Elinor Walters, Alice Sager and Forrestine Wilson, gowned in Colonial attire. Guests will include many wives of faculty members and those interested in university affairs. Reservations may be made with the chairman.

Miss Ruth Elizabeth Heckert entertained with a bridge luncheon and surprise shower, Saturday, April 11, at the Forest Park Hotel, in honor of Miss Katharine Doellner, who will be an early summer bride. Covers were laid for 16 guests, including several young women from Missouri University, who spent the Easter vacation with parents and friends.

On Friday the St. Louis alumnae of Western College, Oxford, O., entertained eight girls who are contemplating entering Western in the fall, at the home of Mrs. T. L. Toney, 25 Windermere place.

Mrs. H. M. Blank of 4961 West Pine boulevard will have as her guest next week Mrs. George H. Lynds of Kansas City, Mo. Several parties have been planned for the visitor.

Mrs. E. R. Fuhr of 5631 Pershing avenue gave a bridge luncheon Tuesday afternoon at the Forest Park Hotel in honor of Mrs. W. J. Burns of Kansas City, who is visiting her. There were 16 guests.

The Kirkwood Country Club formally will open its summer season with a dinner dance next Saturday evening. There will be a golf tournament in the afternoon.

Miss Marie Robert entertained 100 guests at her home, 1965 South Grand boulevard, Friday night, at an informal dance in honor of Miss Jean Busses of Cincinnati, who arrived in St. Louis several weeks ago to spend the Easter season as her guest. A number of Miss Robert's friends also have entertained for the visitor.

man, Ruth Morgan, Dorothy Rivels and Masters Arthur Ruling, Robert Chapman and Chester Rivels.

A birthday dinner was given recently in honor of Miss Florence Viola Ruling of 3923 Page boulevard. Easter decorations were used and baskets filled with Easter eggs were given as favors. Those present were: Misses Mar-

SONNENFELD'S

Everywhere, everybody is talking about Sonnenfeld's. They are saying it's a Store that watches style developments and has new styles first. And yet things here aren't very expensive.

This is evidently what people want. New styles, good, dependable quality, and moderate prices.

And so our business has gone ahead with rapid strides, through a policy of giving more to get more. And with our growth, our service, too, has become constantly better and better.

Our relationship with the public is a reciprocal one of the highest type because the more we get the more we give, which is really the greatest business-building policy we know.

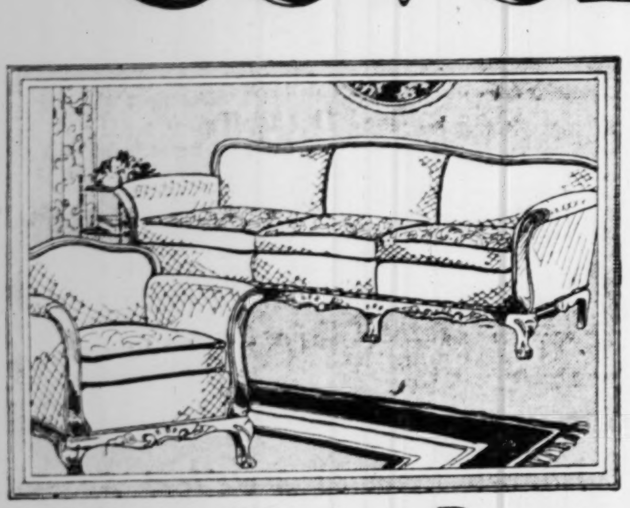
Monday—at 9 A. M.—We Launch a

Seven-Day Furniture Sale

WHEN Stix, Baer & Fuller announce a sale patrons know what to expect—and this Seven-Day Furniture Sale is a sale in every sense of the word. A page advertisement is as inadequate to tell the story of this event as a scrap of mohair to reveal the beauty of a living-room suite. Carloads of new Furniture—fresh from well-known factories—have been marked at exceedingly low prices along with the slightly shopworn floor samples. Only by careful comparison and personal inspection can the true merit of these sale offerings be fully appreciated.



Mohair Living-Room Suite—Carved Frame

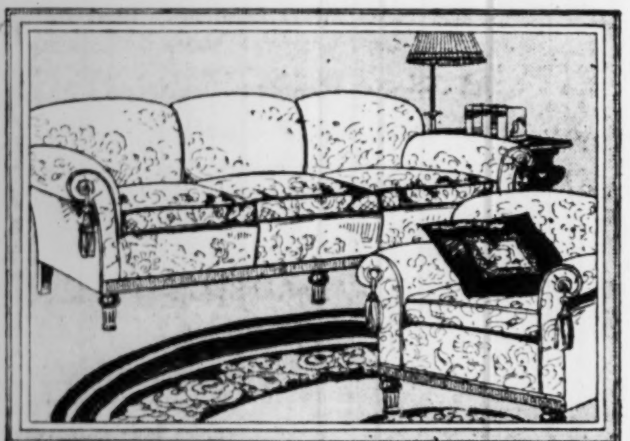
$187.50

THIS two-piece Suite consists of a davenport and armchair, beautifully made with carved frame and loose spring-filled cushions, which are reversible, with silk brocatelle on one side. May be had in taupe mohair, plain or figured. (Wing chair, extra, $69.75).

Four-Piece Walnut Bedroom Suite

$197.50

THE ever-popular Queen Anne period lends grace and charm to this large dresser, bow-foot bed, vanity dresser and chifforobe or chifforette. This Suite was purchased at a substantial discount—which discount we pass on to our patrons.



Davenport & Armchair of Figured Velour

$99.50

AS comfortable as it is attractive, this two-piece Suite is made with loose spring-filled cushions and is upholstered in Jacquard velour. The base is carved and has dull antique finish. Wing chair to match—$39.75.

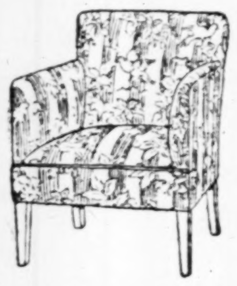
Attractive Day Bed Mahogany Finish

$44.75

WELL made Day Bed which opens into a full-size bed, is upholstered in rich velour, your choice of patterns. Frame is finished in mahogany and has cane ends. A very unusual value at this special price.

Chairs and Rockers, $16.95

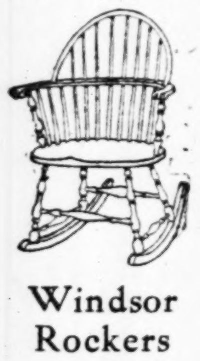
THESE are artistically designed with cane panel in back and fluted legs. The seats are upholstered in attractive patterned velour.



Overstuffed Chairs

$19.75

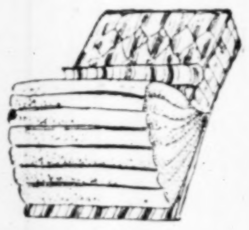
For the living-room or bedroom, this Chair is comfortable and attractive. Covered in mohair cretonne — which is a good wearing fabric.



Windsor Rockers

$10.50

Artistically designed Windsor Rockers can be used in most any room. These Rockers are exceptionally good values.



Felt Mattresses

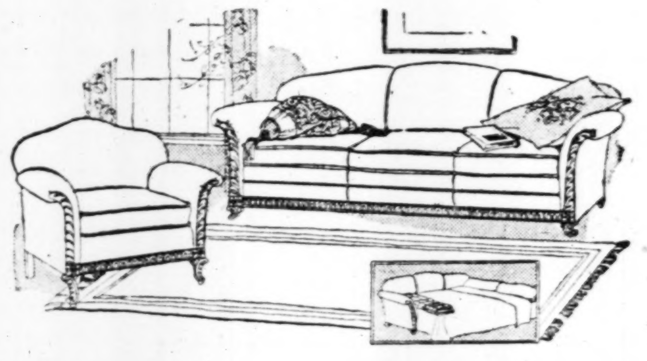
All layer Felt Mattresses with roll edge, well stitched and tufted; made of selected cotton-felt—choice of tickings.

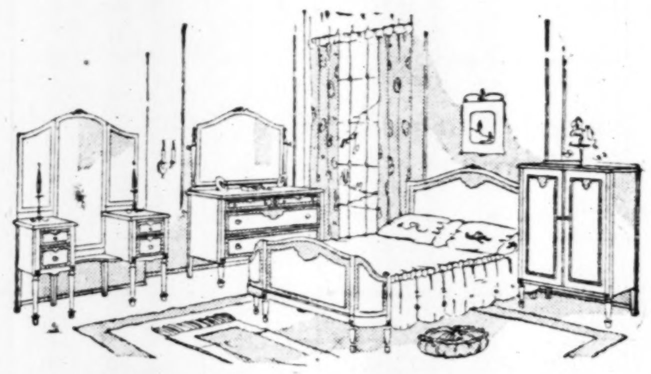
Brides and brides-to-be will find much to interest them in this special sale and will profit by anticipating their needs while prices are so tempting.



Bed Davenport & Chair Covered in Mohair

$187.50

THIS Suite consists of a davenport, which opens into a full-size bed and a comfortable armchair, both upholstered in a good quality of mohair and made with loose spring-filled cushions. The frame is interestingly and artistically carved.



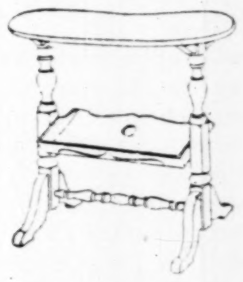
Four-Piece Bedroom Suite of Walnut

$159.50

THIS salient value is sturdily built with dustproof construction and the dull finish is very attractive. Dresser, bow-foot bed, vanity and chifforobe are included at this price—and are all well-proportioned and graceful pieces.

Our Plan of EASY PAYMENTS

—enables everyone to participate in this sale—making it possible for homemakers to buy the most desirable Furniture on a dignified systematic payment basis. Do not hesitate to inquire about this helpful arrangement.



Book Trough End Tables

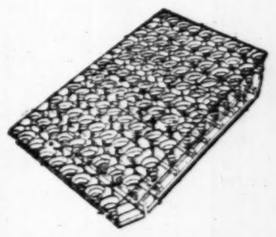
Kidney shape end table measures 24x11x24 inches; antique finish. Comes with book trough below at this price; without book trough $3.95

Tapestry Chairs

$29.75

High back Chair, upholstered in tapestry, outside back to match, has a frame finished in antique mahogany, high lighted.



Coil Springs

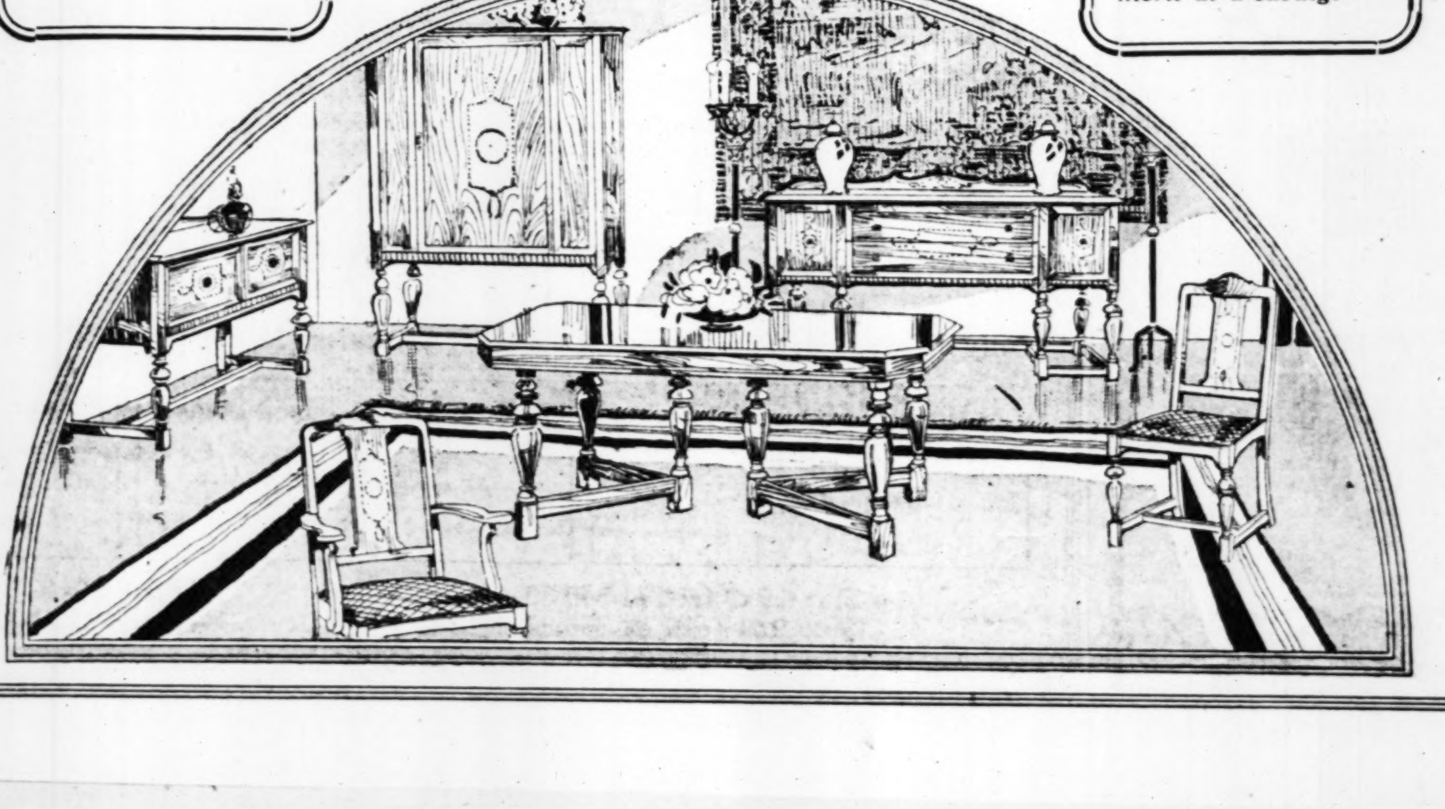
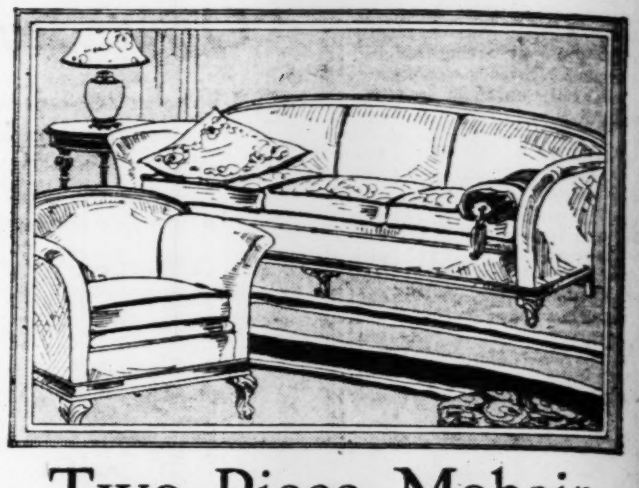
This Spring is made of heavy gauge tempered wire enameled in gray. All sizes at this very special price.

Furniture selected now will be held for future delivery without charge for storage. We have made it easy for you to secure Furniture of merit at a saving.

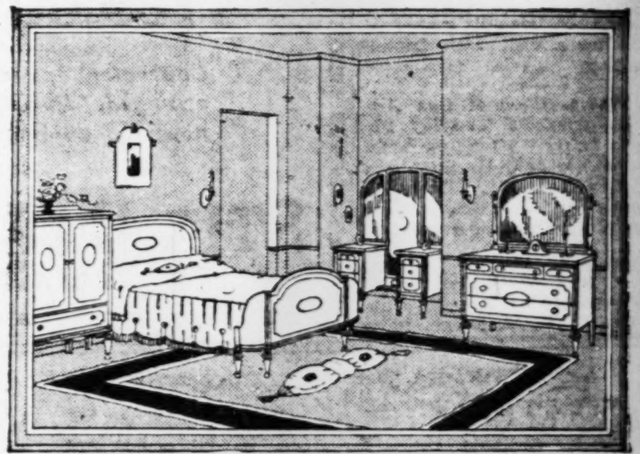




Two-Piece Mohair Living-Room Suite

$227.50

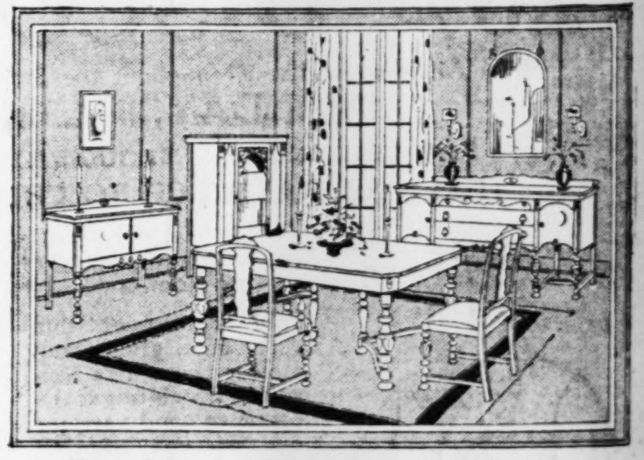
DAVENPORT and armchair, the stylish thin-arm type, covered in rich taupe mohair with rose back. Exposed wood parts are antique mahogany finish. Loose spring-filled cushions are reversible. Web construction—hair and moss filling.



Four-Piece Walnut Bedroom Suite

$297.50

FOUR pieces include 54-inch dresser, large vanity dresser, bow-foot bed, choice of chifforette or chifforobe. Dustproof construction—onlay of walnut on each piece excepting vanity. Of Louis XVI adaptation.



Italian Dining Suite Nine Pieces—Special

For Sagging or Hanging Cheeks and Chin

Flabbiness of cheeks, chin or neck was considered very difficult to correct, until the discovery of what has proved to be a veritable wonder-worker for such conditions. The preparation is so simple and harmless any woman can easily make and apply it. It is all the more remarkable in that its beneficial effects are apparent even after the very first application, both as to appearance and the feeling of comfort.

The formula is: One ounce powdered saxolite, dissolved in one-half pint witch hazel. Use as a wash lotion. The solution tends to contract and solidify the loosened, baggy tissue, smoothing out the folds, creases and wrinkles, besides having a refining influence on skin of coarse texture and large pores. As witch hazel and saxolite can be had at any drug store, anyone can try this successful recipe.

CLUB ACTIVITIES OF ST. LOUIS WOMEN

Following Alexander Woolcott's lecture, "Behind the Scenes," on April 14, the Wednesday Club held an informal reception in the club parlors at Taylor avenue and Westminster place. Mmes. Thomas C. Young, E. W. LaBeaume, Elias Michael, Harry Sprague, Carl F. G. Meyer, Horton Watkins, Archer O'Reilly and George Ittner presided at the tea tables.

The history and literature section of the Wednesday Club will meet Wednesday, April 22, at 10:30 a. m. By request Mrs. Ida B. Cole will repeat her talk on "Utopias in English Literature." There will be brief reviews on current and recent novels by Mrs. Philip A. Shaffer, Mrs. Walter Schmitz and Mrs. Frank Blelock. Miss Ellen Brooks Johnson is chairman of the section and Mrs. Frank C. Belser is secretary. Luncheon will be served at 12:30 p. m.

The last meeting of the art section will occur on the same day at 1:30 p. m. A special musical program has been prepared and will be given as follows: Paper on Musical Art Centers of America, Mrs. Charles M. Rice; piano solo, Mrs. F. W. Schaberg; vocal solo, Mrs. Wesley Becker; violin duo, Mrs. Esmeralda Mayes and Miss Ethel Knobloch; cantillation, Miss Elizabeth Morse and Mrs. F. C. Papendick; piano solo, Mrs. Frank Habig. Miss Matilda F. Slater is chairman of the section and Mrs. Mansfield Bay the secretary.

The St. Louis Tercentenary Shakspeare Society and the St. Louis chapter of the English Shakspeare, and the celebration luncheon, April 24, in the ball room of Hotel Statler at 12 o'clock in commemoration of the birthday of Shakspeare, and the celegration of "Mother Tongue day." Members of Mrs. Fiske's all star cast to play "The Rivals" in St. Louis this week will be guests of honor.

The next meeting of the St. Louis Tercentenary Shakspeare Society will be held Tuesday, April 21, in the assembly room of the Public Library and will begin with the study of "The Merry Wives of Windsor," under the leadership of Mrs. Donald MacDonald.

The Matthew Fontaine Maury chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, Mrs. A. C. Meyer, president, was entertained last week at the Forest Park Hotel, with Mmes. E. F. Skillen, J. B. Smythe and Mrs. C. E. Hipolite as hostesses. Plans were formulated for the Chapter's third birthday celebration, which will be in the form of a luncheon in the Colonial room of the Chase Hotel Friday, April 24. An informal reception in the foyer will precede the luncheon. Mrs. Meyer will be assisted in receiving chapter members and their guests by the executive board. The special guests of honor will include Mrs. Roy Weaks McKinney of Paducah, Ky., a past president-general, the presidents of local chapters, and the members of Camp 731, United Confederate Veterans. Mrs. E. T. Miller is chairman of arrangements for the luncheon and Mrs. O. S. Wilfley will have charge of the program.

The Twentieth Century Art Club held its annual election of officers last Monday at the Jefferson memorial. The following were inducted into office: Mrs. H. M. Whelpley, president; Miss Ida Heltzell, first vice president; Mrs. A. D. McKinney, second vice president; Miss Hazel Howe, recording secretary; Mrs. A. E. Reton, corresponding secretary; Mrs. F. R. Amlar, treasurer; Mrs. John D. Rippey, auditor, and Mrs. H. A. Frielingsdorf and Mrs. T. B. Teasdale, directors.

Mrs. T. E. Francis, in a resume of the year's activities, gave interesting notes from the Scrapbook. The retiring president, Mrs. W. L. Michener, was presented with a framed painting by Emily Suma. Monday, April 20, at 3 o'clock, the club will meet at the Art Museum to hear Prof. E. H. Wuerpel give a talk on the exhibition of work by students of the St. Louis School of Fine Arts.

Miss Mabel Westlake of 5511 Pershing avenue, entertained the executive board of Jefferson Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution at luncheon Monday, April 13. Later there was a discussion of matters to be brought before the continental congress, which will be held in Washington, D. C., April 20, 1925. The chapter will be represented at the congress by Mrs. Lon V. Sanders, chapter regent, and Mrs. T. L. Horn, Mrs. Theodore Moreno, Mrs. Robert Craig and Mrs. William D'Oench. The monthly meeting of the chapter will be held April 20, at the home of Mrs. Norman Lincoln, 5167 Waterman avenue. Mrs. S. T. G. Smith and Mrs. Burns will assist Mrs. Lincoln.

The Fortnightly Club of Kirkwood held its regular meeting Thursday afternoon in the new Episcopal guild rooms. Mmes. May Steinhauer and William Conway acted as hostesses at the luncheon. Mrs. R. N. Stubbs presided. The paper for the afternoon on Geographic Readjustments and New World Problems in Political Geography was read by Mrs. H. N. Henderson. Roll call was answered by editorials.

The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. George Meeks, with Mrs. Victor Hoester assisting.

The International Relations Round Table of the College Club will meet Monday, April 20, at 4 p.

Sure Way to Get Rid of Dandruff

Girls—if you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to comb or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it; then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. Four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you may have. This simple remedy never fails.

This model in Patent, Satin, Black Kid, Tan Calf $11.50. Similar styles $10 and up. Sizes to 11. Widths AAA—EEE.

ADAPTO SHOES for STOUT WOMEN

An Exclusive Service

Under the direction of Dr. BYRON SCHINDLER, Foot Specialist, upon request foot examination will be given to Adapto Shoe wearers and those who suffer with their feet. This service is free.

ADAPTO Shoes relieve and tend to strengthen fallen arches by means of ADAPTO'S exclusive high arch feature.

ADAPTO Shoes relieve the pressure upon bunions and help to prevent their future re-appearance.

Before ADAPTO Shoes were perfected by Lane Bryant, the Stout Woman, no matter how refined her tastes might be in the matter of clothing, had to resort to outlandish-looking shoes, or suffer the foot tortures of unnatural, improper footwear.

But now the Stout Woman can obtain ADAPTO Shoes to go with any costume and still have the foot freedom and comfort so necessary to the full enjoyment of her daily activities.

m. The topic for discussion is to be "Latin America and the League Versus Latin America and the Monroe Doctrine," led by Mrs. Raymond S. Davis. A short talk on "Greece and Her Refugees" will be given by Miss Susan Coultas. On Tuesday, April 21, a literature program will be given at the College Club meeting. Standard biographies of famous men will be discussed by Miss Mathilde Watson, who will speak on Charnwood's "Theodore Roosevelt," and by Miss Annabelle Remnitz, who will speak on Garland's "Ulysses S. Grant" and Bradford's "Robert E. Lee."

Members of the College Club will entertain their friends at a dinner and bridge at the clubhouse Friday evening, April 24, at 6:30 p. m. One of the features of the evening will be an original vaudeville skit, "The Prince of Wales' Last Fall," coached by Miss Gertrude Walther. Reservations must be made with Mrs. Francis Puogh, who is in charge of the dinner arrangements, before 6 p. m. Wednesday, April 22.

The Betty S. Robert Chapter, Children's Chapter of the United Daughter of the Confederacy, was entertained by the mother chapter, the Margaret McLure Chapter, Saturday, April 18, at 2 p. m., at the home of Mrs. Griswold, 5245 Washington boulevard. There were 20 members present. Many mothers and members of the board of the McLure Chapter also were among the guests. Posters and essays for the contest, which closes in June, were received.

The teen-age children of the Betty S. Robert Chapter are organizing a chapter for all members of the present chapter who have reached the teen-age. All children of the teen-age who are not members of any children's chapter of the U. D. C., but who are eligible, will be admitted upon filling out necessary application balnks, which can be had by calling upon the directress, Mrs. Esther G. Spaulding, 5710 Maple avenue.

Chapter E. B., P. E. O., met April 10 with Mrs. Earl Adams, 627 Clark avenue, Webster Groves. After the luncheon, the regular business was quickly dispatched in order that full time could be given to a discussion of the program for the coming year. The choice was made in favor of "representative modern drama."

The annual guest day meeting of the Cultus Club, M. F. W. C., was a delightful event given April 9 at the home of the club's president, Mrs. E. P. Crawford, of 4135 Flora boulevard.

The feature of the program was Mrs. E. C. Taylor's most interesting paper on "Lorenzo de Medici, Patron of Literature." Mrs. Taylor's article revealed careful study and an intimate knowledge of her subject.

The roll call was responded to by current events, the interest of which was augmented by a full membership.

Two piano numbers by Miss Margaret Reid, concluded the program. Miss Reid's selections were: On the Wings of Song, Mendelssohn-Long. Rhapsodie No. 11, Liszt. Encore by request, To the Rising Sun, Tojussen.

The St. Louis Parliamentary Law Club will hold a regular meeting of the beginners' class tomorrow at 10 a. m. in the assembly room of the Public Library, Thirteenth and Olive streets.

The twelfth annual meeting of the Town Club will be held on Thursday, April 23, at 8 o'clock. The meeting will be preceded by a dinner at 6:30 o'clock.

Reports will be given by the officers and directors of the Town Club, and by the president of the Investment Board.

The report of the Committee on Nominations and Elections will be made and the new officers and directors installed.

The Tuesday Club will meet April 21. Mrs. D. R. Parman will give a talk on French Music, illustrated by Mrs. Frank Habig, pianist, and Mrs. Esther Peabody Walker, contralto. Mrs. Walker was, until recently, a member of the Chicago Grand Opera Company.

Members of the St. Louis Council of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers are asking their friends to attend the New Grand Central Theater during their benefit week, from April 27 to May 1, inclusive. The council is sponsor for the St. Louis Parent-Teacher Scholarship Foundation. The tickets for the benefit may be obtained from members of Parent-Teachers associations belonging to the council.

The annual meeting and election of officers for the Colonial Daughters of the Seventeenth Century was held recently in the reading room of the Missouri Historical Society. Officers elected for the ensuing year were: President, Miss Antoinette P. Taylor; first vice president, Mrs. William Bagnell; second vice president, Mrs. Shelby Curlee; recording secretary, Mrs. Harry D. Payne; corresponding secretary, Mrs. B. R. Foster; treasurer, Mrs. Lida Vincent; registrar, Mrs. W. L. Kline; historian, Mrs. Lon Sanders; chaplain, Mrs. Loraine Jones; council, Mrs. Senter Gettys Mrs. F. C. Harrington, Mrs. L. J. Kupferle, Mrs. Nelson Rehnquest; Membership Committee, Mrs. Cabell Gray, Mrs. William Crowe, Mrs. S. H. Curlee, Mrs. Ben Gray, Mrs. William Bagnell. Mrs. Theodore Shelton, retiring president, was elected honorary president for life, and Mrs. A. W. Southward, retiring vice president, was made honorary vice president. A council meeting of the newly elected officers was held at the Wednesday Club Friday, April 10, at which much business was transacted and plans for the year discussed.

The Jeffersonian Women's Club commemorated the birthday of Thomas Jefferson April 13 with a tea at the home of its president, Mrs. Robert A. Crabb, 5922 Enright avenue.

The urgent need of studying our Constitution and injecting the Jeffersonian principles into our policies was the subject of Mrs. Mary E. Ryder's talk to the body. Mrs. Max F. Ruler, secretary, gave a detailed report of the activities of the club during the recent campaign.

Coincident with this tea is the fact that the present home of the president is the former dwelling of the late Mrs. Mary Barber Jefferson Edwards, daughter of Robert Randolph Jefferson, nephew of Thomas Jefferson.

The Alpha Chapter of the Delphian Society held its regular meeting Tuesday, April 14, at Cabanne Branch Library, Mrs. W. H. Dickey, president, presiding. Mrs. E. A. Hood led the discussion of the lesson, "English Art Galleries." Those having texts were Mmes. Heerich, Bridges, Sager, Brooks, Krail and Thompson.

Mrs. Emily Grant Hutchins, editor, art department, Globe-Democrat, will give an outline of the development of art in America and

THESE ROOMS ARE LIVABLE

It is a notable fact that patrons of the Belmont, who entertain a great deal, do most of their entertaining in their own suites. This in spite of the acknowledged charm, comfort, taste and informality of the public rooms for that purpose.

The rooms at the Belmont are livable. They are large. All of them are outside, of course. They are so arranged that any number can be thrown together en suite. Housekeeping suites are completely and comfortably equipped. They are not stereotyped. Their furnishings are carefully designed to avoid any suggestion of that rigidity so often associated with hotel rooms.

GROUND TO BE BROKEN FOR FRATERNITY HOUSE TODAY

Tau Tau Chapter of Sigma Chi to Erect $45,000 Quarters at Washington U.

A ground-breaking ceremony, preparatory to the erection of a chapter house for Tau Tau Chapter of Sigma Chi Fraternity will be held at 3:30 p. m. today on the Washington University campus.

On the program will be Chancellor Herbert S. Hadley, Congressman Cleveland A. Newton, W. C. Henning, J. Porter Henry, Martin Lyall and Clifford Dunn. Col. Alex A. Sharp of Chicago, grand trustee of the Sigma Chi Fraternity, will make the dedication speech and will dig the first spadeful of ground. The Rev. W. E. Sullens, pastor of University Methodist Church, will pronounce the invocation. Daniel A. Reubel, president of the Fraternity Building Association, which is erecting the chapter house, will preside at the ceremony.

The Sigma Chi house will be erected in Fraternity Row on the campus. It will be a 3-story building and will accommodate 31 men. The building and furnishings will cost approximately $45,000. It is expected that the chapter house will be ready for occupancy shortly after the opening of the university in the fall.

"ATLANTA LIMITED" FROM ST. LOUIS TO START APRIL 27

L. & N. Announces New Through Train Which Will Reduce Time to Southern Points.

A new through train, running between St. Louis and Atlanta, Ga., by which mail facilities from St. Louis to the Southeast and rapid passenger transportation will be affected, is announced to start April 27, by G. E. Herring, general passenger agent of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad in a letter to P. W. Coyle, traffic commissioner of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce. Establishment of the new train follows a series of conferences.

The new train will be called the "Atlanta Limited." Mail written in St. Louis and posted in the forenoon will be delivered in Atlanta the following day, instead of second day delivery as is the case now. Passengers on the new train will leave St. Louis at mid-afternoon and arrive at principal points in Georgia and North and South Carolina the following day, having been only one night en route.

The "Atlanta Limited" will leave St. Louis at 5:36 p. m., arriving at St. Louis at 3:36 p. m., arriving at lowing morning, and Atlanta at 10:59 a. m.

U. R. REPORTS $21,544 PROFIT, FIRST SINCE NOVEMBER, 1924

Manager Perkins Attributes Balance to Rigid Economies Effected to Meet Bus Competition.

For the first time since November, 1924, the United Railways Co. of St. Louis has issued a monthly financial statement showing any earnings. This is in the statement for the month of March just issued, setting forth gross operating revenue of $1,626,795.93 and non-operating income, which is returns on the company's investments, amounting to $21,044.04, or a total income fro mall sources of $1,647,839.97. Deducting from this figure total operating expense and taxes, interest and miscellaneous charges of $1,626,295.54, a net balance of $21,544.43 in total profit for the March period is left.

In October, 1924, the company's net earnings were $51,540.44 and in November it was $14,011.05. The financial statements for December, January and February showed decreases.

Manager Perkins said the profit was due to drastic economies recently instituted by all departments to offset losses in revenue due to motor bus competition.

LOCAL CANCER RESEARCH BASIS OF LONDON THESIS

Biological Effects of X-ray on Cell-Growth and Disintegration to Be Explained.

Results of experiments made at Barnard Free Skin and Cancer Hospital, 3727 Washington boulevard, by Dr. Edwin C. Ernst and Dr. M. T. Burrows, local physicians, will form the basis of a thesis to be read by Dr. Ernst at the International Congress of Radiology June 20 at London.

The treatise will deal with the biological effects of the X-ray on cancer and other cell growths. It will explain what types of cancer are most effectively cured by the X-ray, and will deal with the actual prosess of disintegration of cancer under the X-ray, as seen in work done at the hospital by the two physicians.

The Congress of Radiology comprises authorities on this work from all parts of the world. Dr. Ernst has been requested by a committee from the organization to report on the work being carried on at the Barnard Hospital.

MUSIC AT WEDDING COSTLY

Chinese Take Jewels From Party Violating Mourning Order.

By the Associated Press.

CANTON, March 23.—Disregard of the Government's order forbidding all music for one month, in respect to the late Dr. Sun Yat-Sen, recently cost a wedding party, money and jewelry said to have been worth $500,000.

The wedding party was parading one of the principal streets of Canton, to the customary din of a Chinese band. They were stopped by soldiers who forced them to surrender their valuables.

While this law enforcement was going on, more than 50,000 students, merchants and workers were attending a memorial service to Dr. Sun.

GIRLS! THROW AWAY YOUR FAT! LOOK YOUR BEST THIS SUMMER

Start To-day, Take Off from 10 to 50 Pounds, as I Did—Simple, Easy, Harmless Way—HERE IT IS.

If you are ashamed of your figure, especially in a bathing suit, decide to take off all that extra fat and look your best on the beach this summer. You can do it. I did. I am glad to be able to explain to you how to go about it—I am not going to tell you to go through strenuous exercises or weakening diets. I will not recommend you to rub your body with absurd creams or wear reducing girdles or garments, as I KNOW THEY ARE ABSOLUTELY WORTHLESS. I am giving you here the secret I found out in Paris and which is the most marvelous discovery ever made to easily and safely take off fat. I suffered for years with all the troubles well known to fat people—time after time, I deprived myself from all pleasures—bathing, dancing, riding or golfing, because of my ridiculously fat figure. I turned down parties and friends to avoid the dreaded, "Here comes fatty," until one day, after I had tried everything known to reduce and failed, I hit upon the secret with which I made myself over. It is called SAN-GRI-NA, the discovery of a French scientist who has solved the problem of obesity. SAN-GRI-NA is put up in small tasteless tablets. You take two before each meal and watch your weight go down. With this simple, easy, marvelous new way, I reduced from 180 to 130 pounds in eight weeks and have never regained since. The reducing I went through was gradual and easy—did not leave me flabby or wrinkled—with every pound of fat lost, I felt a steady increase in strength and vitality. Now my health is splendid and I look and feel years younger. SAN-GRI-NA is guaranteed absolutely harmless, and is sold with money-back guarantee. Nothing like SAN-GRI-NA was ever before offered to you.—Try it Today.

NOTE: Since I have given out this wonderful secret to the American public, the demand has been so tremendous, that every good drug store is supplied with SAN-GRI-NA. Get your package to-day and watch your fat disappear.

MRS. CROWE DISCUSSES LEAGUE'S ELECTION

Retiring Head of Women Voters Tells About the 52 New Members, Outgeneraled.

Mrs. A. B. Crowe, retiring president of the University City League of Women Voters, has issued the following statement, clarifying the events leading up to the outgeneraling of a group of newcomers in the league by the group of older members, of which she is one, at the league election on last Tuesday.

"Our meeting was the regular one for April. The by-laws provide that prior to each election a Nominating Committee shall be appointed, which committee shall make nominations for the offices to be voted on; this committee had been duly appointed in February and had met and submitted a report of a list of candidates. The report was unanimaus from the committee, but to the surprise of the committee, a minority report suggesting other candidates, two of whom were not members of the league, also was submitted. These two reports were voted on. The minority report received only one vote.

"In deciding who was entitled to vote at the meeting the records of the league, as kept by the recording secretary, were used to determine same and each member whose names appeared in the recording secretary's membership list and who was present, was allowed to vote.

52 New Names.

"Now it does appear that some persons, with a view of surprising the meeting and controlling the election, sought to enter the names of some 52 persons for the purpose of voting as members. These names were first given to the treasurer at her home on Monday night, April 13, between the hours of 9 and 10 p. m., being the day prior to the election, without an opportunity for the treasurer to report this matter to the league, and without an opportunity to the league of passing upon these applications for membehship.

"These 52 women presented themselves at the place of meeting, entered the house and through the leadership of one or two persons, who were carrying out a pre-conceived plan, attempted to act and vote as members of the league.

"So far as the officers of the league or anyone connected with the league's affairs knew, only three of these persons had ever been members of the league, but their memberships had lapsed. Certainly the officers and members resented such an attempt to wrest control of the organization from them and in this manner to take over its voting power.

"Our league has been in existence five years and has kept up its work and its obligations to its own organization, as well as to the county, State and national organizations of the league. We welcome all persons who present themselves for membership in our league, who do so for the good of the organization, but the league, as in any other organization, must have some control of its membership and must have some rule by which to determine when an applicant becomes a member.

Standing of New Officers.

"Our officers elected on Tuesday are all women who have been members for years and who have efficiently and faithfully worked for the league, and about whose membership and standing there is no question.

"No one elected to office in the league in this election took any part in the meeting other than that of voting, or in any of the discussions, and I deem this statement necessary in view of the fact that it has been published that Mrs. Howard Clark, our new president, took the floor and engaged in discussion and the making of certain motions."

Rugs
We have ever held

We are pioneers in the Oriental Rug trade, enjoying long established buying connections in all the principal producing centers of the Orient. Our special agents have had a lifelong training in the selection of Oriental Rugs. They are familiar with the history, language, customs and traditions of the people with whom they deal, and are thoroughly intimate with all the processes of dyeing and weaving—the qualities of the wool employed and the symbolism of the various designs.

Purchases made under such extremely advantageous circumstances assure both a large monetary saving and the choicest specimens obtainable.

Therefore, when you know that our recent purchases of Oriental Rugs now on display far exceed in value, beauty and number any previous collection in our entire history—this event assumes an importance worthy of the consideration of everyone who appreciates the unrivalled beauty of these world-renowned products of Persia and China.

Rugs of all sizes from tiny mats to the largest made are included: Kashans, Sarouks, Kirmanshahs, Kurdistans, Lillahans, Laristans, Araks, Kashan Silk Rugs, Dozars, Isphans, Mossuls and Chinese Mandarin Worsted Rugs.

This is an occasion of decided interest to those who appreciate the fascination of Oriental Rugs and their decorative and artistic value in the home.

Best Routes to Various Sections of Missouri, Illinois and Nearby States, and Vacation Regions of the East and West, North and South.

WITH hundreds more miles of all-weather roads available than last year in Missouri, Illinois and adjacent states, the touring season is starting early, with indications that the number of motorists who are not content to limit their driving to city streets is increasing beyond all expectations.

For the guidance of motorists and business men who wish to travel the so-called St. Louis territory, and the thousands who want to take longer trips, a summary of best routes and road conditions has been prepared by George Drummond, head of the Touring Bureau of the Automobile Club of Missouri, and the Automobile Editor. It would be well to clip and preserve this summary, for lack of space will prevent printing it weekly.

Generally speaking, roads west of the Mississippi River are dirt, and so travelable only when dry, although Missouri is rapidly building all-weather roads. Highways east of the Mississippi and north of the Ohio River, as a rule, are hard-surfaced, and Illinois has concrete roads radiating from St. Louis. When trips over dirt roads are contemplated it would be wise to seek last-minute information at the Automobile Club of Missouri, 4228 Lindell boulevard, or telephone its Touring Bureau—Lindell 8220. Such information is free to club members, while a charge is made to nonmembers.

Routes and Road Conditions.

Study of the following road conditions summary, and of the accompanying box reporting St. Louis highway conditions, should enable one to plan almost any trip:

TO CAIRO—See route to Memphis.

CENTRAL AND NORTH CENTRAL MISSOURI—See routes to Kansas City and Macon via Moberly.

CHESTER, ILL.—South from Free Bridge on No. 3, through East St. Louis, Dupo, Columbia, Waterloo, Red Bud, Evansville to Chester. Concrete.

CHICAGO—Illinois No. 4 via Edwardsville, Springfield, Bloomington and Joliet (306 miles). Shortest, most congested route. ALTERNATIVE ROUTE—No. 11 via East St. Louis, Troy and Effingham to Marshall, Ill., then north on No. 1 (342 miles). ALTERNATIVE—No. 4 to Springfield, No. 24 to Peoria, No. 29 to Depue, No. 7 to Joliet, then No. 4. Most attractive route, but 366 miles long. A gravel detour near Depue. ALTERNATIVE—No. 11 via Collinsville and Troy to Effingham, north on No. 25 through Urbana to Kankakee, then either No. 17 to Momence and No. 1 to Chicago, or No. 44 to Joliet and No. 4 to Chicago. Or one can use this same route to Decatur, which is on No. 10, and there turn north on No. 2 to La Salle, and then take No. 7 to Joliet and No. 4 into Chicago. ALTERNATIVE—No. 4 to Springfield, then No. 10 to Decatur or Urbana and any combination of the above routes. There is still another variation, by which one goes on No. 11 to Vandalia, then on No. 2 to Bloomington and over No. 4 to Chicago or continues on No. 2 to La Salle and then uses No. 7 and No. 4 to Chicago. No. 4 is the popular route, but No. 11 to Effingham, then No. 25 to Kankakee and No. 17 and No. 1 via Momence is fully as good. All these routes are concrete, except in some of the cities and towns, and a gap in No. 2 in De Witt County.

CONDITIONS ON MAIN SURFACED HIGHWAYS IN ST. LOUIS COUNTY

Following is a report on the general condition of the main highways in St. Louis County as reported to the Automobile Club of Missouri and the Automobile editor.

LEMAY FERRY ROAD—Open; concrete to mile and a half beyond Meramec River; then gravel via De Soto to Farmington.

TELEGRAPH ROAD—Good.

GRAVOIS ROAD—Detour at Sappington over Denny and Watson roads to Fenton. Graded and rough beyond Fenton.

MANCHESTER ROAD—Concrete to Franklin County line. One way bridge just west of Pennsylvania avenue. Better enter it over North and South road or Denny road. Look out for Brentwood boulevard stop.

CLAYTON ROAD—Closed from city limits to Bellevue avenue. Rough in spots to North and South road. Good rest of way.

OLIVE STREET ROAD—Concrete to Denny. Good from Denny to Missouri River except rough in spots near Chesterfield.

ST. CHARLES ROAD—Concrete.

FLORISSANT ROAD—Open; good.

NEW HALL'S FERRY ROAD—Good; open all the way.

BIG BEND ROAD—Open; pretty good.

NORTH AND SOUTH ROAD—Fair.

PRICE ROAD—Fair.

DENNY ROAD—Open; good.

KEHR'S MILL ROAD—Fair, but narrow in places.

EATHERTON ROAD—Fair.

BELLEFONTAINE ROAD—Open; good.

ANTIRE ROAD—Good as a whole; rough in spots.

CLEVELAND—See route to Indianapolis. From Indianapolis, go west on National Old Trail to Columbus (424 miles), then north on "C. C. C." Highway through Lovdenville, Mt. Vernon, Ashland, Wooster and Medina to Cleveland (580 miles). Hard surfaced road all the way.

Choice of Ways to Go to Chicago Almost Bewildering—Several as Good as Springfield-Bloomington Highway Generally Used.

DAVENPORT, IA.—Through Edwardsville, Ill., on No. 4 to Springfield, Ill., No. 24 to Peoria, No. 29 to Depue, and No. 7 to Rock Island and Davenport (306 miles). Concrete all the way, except in some towns and a short gravel detour at Depue.

DENVER—See routes to Kansas City. From Kansas City, go West on Union Pacific Highway, via Topeka, Salina, Colby, Burlington and Limon to Denver (800 miles).

DETROIT—See route to Indianapolis. From Indianapolis, go east on National Old Trail to Dayton, north on Ohio No. 6 through Piqua, Lima, Findlay and Toledo, then Michigan No. 10 to Detroit (569 miles). Concrete all the way. ALTERNATIVE—See route to Michigan resorts. Follow this to Benton Harbor, Mich., then east on No. 17 through Kalamazoo, Battle Creek, Jackson and Ann Arbor to Detroit (574 miles). Virtually all concrete. All detours gravel.

FORT DE CHARTERS—State park around restored ruins of fort built by the French in 1719. No. 3 south from Free Bridge to a point a few miles south of Waterloo, where follow road to right (marked "Ste. Genevieve Ferry") to Prairie du Rocher, then signed road to the fort. Concrete through Waterloo.

State Engineers Are Trying to Complete St. Louis-Kansas City Road by End of 1925

Plan to Finish Paving Route No. 2 Except 30 Miles Now Graveled From Calwood to Columbia and to Pave That Early in 1926—Just What Is Being Done on State's Most Important Highway.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 18.—State Highway No. 2, the trans-State "airline route" from St. Louis to Kansas City, will be completed and paved with concrete by the end of 1925, or early in 1926, with the exception of a 30-mile stretch from Calwood west to Columbia which now is traversed by an all-weather gravel road, Chief Highway Engineer Piepmeier said today.

Sections of the Calwood-Columbia stretch will be placed under concrete contracts, possibly by next spring, it was said. A provision in the present State road law requires that no State highway be completed until funds are in sight for completion of all other State routes.

Much Concrete Already Laid.

This trans-state road, rapidly nearing completion, will be the crack traffic way of the 7640 mile State highway system, and is expected to carry a greater volume of traffice than any other route in the system. It is 246 miles in length from the St. Louis postoffice to the Kansas City postoffice, 37 miles shorter than the shortest railroad line across the State.

Territory tributary to Highway No. 2 contains 44 per cent of the population of the State and 49 per cent of the registered motor vehicles in Missouri. As now laid out, the route has only one grade crossing, at Boonville, and that may be eliminated when the route is finished. The completed road will cost more than $5,500,000.

Both terminals of the route now have long stretches of concrete paving open to traffic. At the St. Louis end, this broad ribbon of high type road unrolls from St. Louis westward for about 45 miles into Warren County. At the Kansas City end, the road is concrete paved from Kansas City east to the Jackson County line.

Abolish Grade Crossings.

A stretch of about 70 miles from the Jackson County line east to Lamine, near Boonville, is under contract for paving and work is under way on most of the sections. This stretch will be finished by the end of the year, barring prolonged adverse weather conditions.

Numerous other short stretches of concrete paving are under way on the eastern half of the route, or placed under contracts on which work will be started soon.

How Work on No. 2 Is Going.

In laying out Route No. 2 the Highway Department sought to remove as many obstacles as possible to repid movement of traffic. Many relocations were made to reduce the length of the road and to eliminate grade crossings. In many instances the road skirts towns instead of passing directly through them. This eliminates traffic jams in towns and the inevitable "slow downs" when motorists must drive through the main streets of towns.

The present construction status of the road is as follows:

From St. Louis through Wellston, St. Charles and Wentzville to a point near Wright City, a distance of about 45 miles, paved with concrete and open to traffic.

From Wright City west through Warrenton to a point near Jonesburg, about 18 miles, concrete paving under construction. A dirt

The new Hupmobile Eight makes a great and valuable contribution to motoring, since it brings a freedom and an ease heretofore no more than approached.

Four body types, not excelled within $1,000 of their prices in beauty, finish and equipment. Five-passenger Sedan, $2875; Four-passenger Coupe, $2325; Touring Car and Roadster, $1975. Prices F. O. B. Detroit; tax to be added. Equipment includes ballon tires, bumpers front and rear, winter-front, snubbers, transmission lock, automatic windshield cleaner, rear view mirror. ¶Hupmobile four-cylinder cars, in a complete line of popular body types, at prices which make them the outstanding value in their field.

Gone are the tenseness and the strain. In their place, a sense of relaxed and restful ease and comfort; a sense of the buoyancy of swift flight.

THE HUPMOBILE EIGHT

There is in some cars a steadiness that comes from sheer weight alone. But here is the steadiness of fluid power—power so free from sound and shock that you are literally unconscious of a moving mechanism. There now is a fresh delight in motoring, but you will not discover it in its finished form until you have spent an hour with the Hupmobile Eight. Why not a demonstration? A phone request will bring a Hupmobile Eight to your door.

RECOMMENDS ELSAH CUTOFF ROUTE TO CHAUTAUQUA, ILL.

A St. Louisan who has been driving over the roads to Chautauqua, Ill., reports that the best route is via the Elsah Cutoff. This route goes through North Alton, across the Piasa Valley, then left on the Elsah Cutoff over a graded dirt road that is in better condition than ever before. There is a hard hill going toward Chautauqua on this road, but the route permits a saving of five miles and offers no more dirt than sticking to the concrete to Newbern and then having to use dirt roads.

Another Very Pretty Motor Tour

A 145-Mile Ramble Over Concrete, Gravel and Picturesque Dirt Roads Reported by Party in Chrysler Car Who Toured Via St. Clair and Lonedell.

A 145-MILE tour that traverses picturesque country, and can be made easily between 8:30 a. m. and 5:00 p. m., goes out the Manchester road to Union, then to St. Clair, then over State Highway No. 30 to Lonedell, and north on country roads to Robertsville, Catawissa, Pacific, Eureka, Glencoe, Ellisville and back over the Manchester road. Nearly half of the distance traveled is over concrete. About 40 more miles are over fair to good gravel roads. The balance is over dirt roads that range from very fair to various stages of roughness. The country roads on stretches are narrow, are full of curves and have many grades. But the trip is so attractive scenically that it is well worth taking. Such good times can be made on much of it, that the worse roads can be driven leisurely. A party who made this tour Saturday in a Chrysler car found it delightful.

First Stage of the Tour.

Because few motorists travel the same route from their homes to the Manchester road, the speedometer was reset at 00.0 at Denny and Manchester roads. Most motorists in St. Louis are familiar with the concreet of the Manchester road to the St. Louis County-Franklin County line and the pretty country it traverses. From the end of the concrete to Union, the road is rock and gravel, jolty in places and occasionally rough, but permitting good speed. At 23.2, where there is a splendid view over and into a valley to the right, a party of surveyors was busy Saturday preparing for improvement of the road. The road stays on the ridges and there are fine views all the time. At 26.4, an especially fine view to the left, then a second-gear hill down into Gray's Summitt.

The Chrysler party turned around at the school house, near the bottom of this hill, and went back up the hill in high to see how the car was pulling, and went over the top at 26 miles an hour. At 29.8, a beautiful panorama in all directions. At 36.6, a most attractive sweep down and over the Meramec River. Two miles farther on, a pretty wood region. The road becomes better. At 40.0, a very pretty ravine to the right. At 41.7, a grade crossing, and then, at 42.0, Union.

Very Pretty County.

Swing left on No. 14 for St. Clair. The road is fine gravel. Just outside the town, a bridge over the Meramec, then a bridge over a brook. At 44.7, the road runs through a fine avenue of pine trees. The country is very fair to see, the road running along over low ridges.

At the outskirts of St. Clair, swing left on No. 30, which eventually is to be improved by the State as a secondary highway from Cedar Hill on the Gravois road to St. Clair as a connection with Highway No. 14 to Springfield and Joplin. At 49.5, a grade crossing and at 50.8 another. The road is good, smooth dirt with some gravel. It dips up and down through a pretty countryside.

For some distance from 51.6 the road winds along the side of wooded ravines and a lovely valley. There are few houses, but plenty of picnicking places. This is the prettiest part of the trip thus far. The road grows rougher in stretches and would be mean if wet. At 53.2 the road is narrow and rough, but the country it traverses continues very pretty. At 53.6, a charming bit of pine country. The road is very rough for a way but at 54.0 smooths out again.

At 55.3, along the river, then a very sharp curve over a bridge, then sharp right on a shelf road above the river. A most attractive picnic place. At 56.4, a fine sweep over a valley, then down a good grade, and at 56.6 along a creek in the bottoms.

At 57.0, a bridge, then right under picturesque overhanging bluffs, with the river below at the right. The road would be very bad if wet. At 58.0 the road becomes very fair, then is good gravel and fast.

On to Robertsville.

At 60.5, just before coming to the Lonedell store, swing left for Robertsville. The road is rather narrow, but good going. At 62.0, a splendid vista over broken country. The road ranges from very fair to rough, dipping up and down a number of long grades and with numerous curves. One can see the road ahead for miles climbing up and down the cross ridges. At 63.0, a pretty private lakelet to the left. At 64.2, a rough, rocky stretch, but a fine outlook. Then

New, Finer Than Ever, Brilliantly Popular with an Engine You'll Never Wear Out

Vastly more powerful than ever, more beautiful and more luxurious than ever—the new Willys-Knight is rightfully enjoying the greatest popularity in all Willys-Knight history.

Rightfully is right! Here is a car with the only type of automobile engine ever invented that actually and positively grows smoother and quieter and more powerful with use...and the only type of engine that never needs carbon-cleaning and valve-grinding...and the only engine in the United States equipped with the new Lanchester Balancer, the famous invention that gives Willys-Knight entire freedom from vibration at all speeds.

There is no matching Willys-Knight's wonderful performance at anywhere near the price—and no matching its low cost of upkeep and long life at any price! You can buy a new Willys-Knight with a small down payment and on unusually convenient terms.

NOTHER PRETTY MOTOR TOUR IN ST. LOUIS DISTRICT

a sharp down grade and immediately up again.

At 64.6, an entrancing view ahead over hill and dale. At 65.3, an old church. The road winds and dips through a country that is always interesting. The road becomes a very fair country road with a number of fine stretches, though still rather narrow.

At 66.0, along a brook on the right, then several fords through little rills, none amounting to anything. At 67.1, a long grade up a hillside covered with rocky ledges and pines and cedars. At 67.5 a wonderful panorama both ways. This is an inspiring vista. The road continues good, with occasional rough spots and many grades.

At 69.0, Robertsville. Right for Catawissa on a road ranging from very fair to good. Gravel. At 70.0, a bridge. The road winds through the valley. At 70.3, a ford through a clear brook. Then a lovely pine-clad hillside. The road presently grows rougher, but the country is charming. At 71.4, Catawissa. Left on a gravel road and up a long grade to a beautiful view. Then down and up sharp grades. At 72.8, another fine view. At 73.2, a wonderful vista to the left. At 74.7, the road begins to cross the Meramec River valley for a mile or more, is mean, rough dirt. At 75.7, up a steep pitch onto a bridge, then right on a shelf road above the Meramec, then away from the river up a grade into the upland country with a number of interesting views.

At 78.6, Pacific, a double grade crossing and then along the river bank on a rough road. A new stretch of road replaces the former dangerous dip into and out of the old quarry. At 80.2, the road becomes good. At 83.2, a very sharp "S" curve over a grade crossing. Presently one reaches Eureka, and can return to St. Louis over the Antire road through Valley Park, then to Manchester and in on the Manchester road, or through Glencoe and the beautiful hilly region traversed by the old State road and on to the Manchester road and home. The Chrysler party returned by the Glencoe route.

The mileage for the trip from the Denny road out and back was 106.2. To this may be added about 28 miles, according to the route one uses from his home to this point. So the total distance for the trip is about 145 miles.

How the Car Performed.

The Chrysler performed with astonishing snap and go. From 5 miles an hour it leaped to 37 in one block, 46 in two blocks, 55 in three blocks, and was going 60 at the end of a fourth block. The writer can testify that this car will run 72 miles an hour. It climbed hills of all sorts of steepness like a cat. There is no vibration at any stage, due to the seven-bearing crankshaft and careful balancing of parts and carburetion. If one pays no attention to the speedometer, he will not sense any difference if the driver gradually speeds up from 35 miles an hour to 50, so sweetly does the car operate. And at 60 and 65 miles an hour there still is no noticeable vibration or operating noise.

Theer is no laboring at high speed; in fact, running at 50 and 55 miles per hour, one can "tramp on it" and get an instant surge into higher speed. It "takes the gas" at all times and under all conditions of speed or hill climbing, and pulls steadily and sturdily at slow speeds, the torque being unusually good. It clings to the road and takes curves without any whip. On rough going, one can do what he wants to with the car, can put it where he wants at any speed.

The 30x5.77 6-ply balloon tires, and springs set parallel to the wheels instead of to the frame, not only cushion the rough stretches, but give roadability at all times that takes the discomfort out of long-distance touring.

The nimbleness of the car, and its overall length of only 160 inches, permit it to slip through traffic like a weasel and to park with ease in any circumstances. The Lockheed 4-wheel hydraulic brakes, which have been somewhat redesigned for this car, put it completely under the driver's control. Its full pressure engine lubrication permits the car to be driven for hours at high speed. Saturday, although the car was being continually tested for speed, acceleration and hill climbing ability, the engine heat indicator on the instrument board never showed more than normal heat.

Altogether, the Chrysler on Saturday demonstrated performing ability of the highest caliber under every condition of city driving and touring over good and bad roads, on curves and all sorts of grades. The car was driven by James E. Newell, sales manager of Berry, Inc., distributer of Maxwell and Chrysler cars, and E. W. Martin. They were accompanied by a newspaperman.

ANOTHER BUS TO FARMINGTON

Alvin Zwick has just bought a third Reo sedan bus of 21-passenger capacity for the bus line he is operating over the Lemay Ferry road between St. Louis and De Soto, Bonne Terre, Flat River and Farmington, Mo. The Kardell Motor Car Co., from which he bought the bus, telephoned to the factory and a man started immediately to drive the bus to St. Louis.

G. T. Fields of St. Charles departed Thursday for Lansing, Mich., to drive a Reo bus through for the Kardell Co. to West Frankfort, Ill., where it is to run on a line to Benton and Mount Vernon.

OUR NEW BUILDING at Kingshighway and McPherson, with its equipment completely installed and ready for your inspection, is formally opened today. We hope that all Buick Owners who knew us in our old Delmar Boulevard location will visit our new quarters today, or through the week. And we wish particularly to invite all Buick owners in our section of the city to examine the facilities now ready for their service in our repair and service department. West Side Buick owners will find it convenient to leave their cars for inspection in our service department mornings, with bus or street car near at hand to continue the trip downtown. Because of its central location on the principal cross-town boulevard, the new West Side Buick Building is a substantial contribution to the greater convenience of all St. Louis Buick Owners.

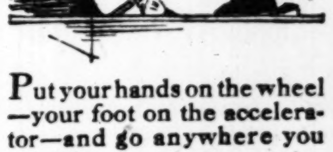
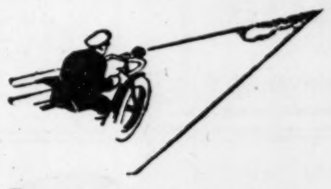
Come on-Drive the Great Line Eight Yourself

Come on—drive The Great Line Eight yourself.
Every man in the Jordan organization—
Every owner of The Great Line Eight—
Everyone in America who has driven The Great Line Eight knows something which you do not know.
They want you to know it, too.
They want you to have the feeling—the thrill—the fascinating sensation—the exhilarating experience which goes with driving The Great Line Eight.
You can do it at any hour of any day you choose.
It is simple enough.
This is all you have to do.
And this is what will happen.

Telephone the Jordan representative.
He'll designate the hour—
And send a man to pick you up.
Forget the salesman who brings the car.
He will be just as tongue-tied as you like.
But he will answer questions.
Look at the automobile before you step in.
Decide whether you have ever seen a better looking motor car.
Step into the front seat.



Put your hands on the wheel—your foot on the accelerator—and go anywhere you want to.
Choose any route you like.
Try it in the crowded traffic at your busiest corner.
Try it at two miles an hour in high.
Step on it in the traffic press.
Take it out to the boulevard.
Look out for the traffic cop.
You will be going faster than you think before you know it.
Use your judgment until you get out of the city limits.
You will go happily along until you come to a stretch of open road.



Look out for the traffic cop again.
You will be going faster than you know before you know it.
Take it to the prize hill.
Remember the cars that you have driven before.
Give the car a chance.
Remember that it is not geared especially for hill climbing or especially for high speed.
It is geared for day in and day out pleasing operation, in crowded traffic on the open road and over the hills.
Remember that it is built for reasonable, pleasant, every day satisfactory operation, and to stay out of the service department.
But step on it if you like.
Drive it around to your home.

Let your wife step in at the wheel.
Drive it as far as she likes.
And watch the side streets—
If a milk wagon appears suddenly step on those hydraulic four wheel brakes and see what happens.
It's the safest car on the road.
Listen to the motor.
See whether you can hear the axle.
By all means if you have been accustomed to driving high priced automobiles listen to the second speed.
Drive it from two to forty-five miles an hour in second speed.
And be sure to listen carefully.
Then take it to any sales room where any other car is exhibited.

Compare its appearance with any.
Compare every detail of its finish.
Compare it especially with any eight cylinder automobile built in the world.
Notice the simplicity of the motor.
After this there are only two things left to do.
Compare it in price with any car in the eight cylinder class.
You will find it sells for $1000 to $2000 less.
Then ask the Jordan representative for the names of five or ten owners.

Call them on the telephone and see what they say.
Then make up your mind what you want to do.
You certainly won't buy a car that sells for more.
You won't be satisfied with anything that sells for less.

FORD TESTS NEW INSTALLMENT WAY OF SELLING CARS

Dealers in Detroit to Try Delivering Roadster or Touring Car for $12.60 Down and $5 a Week.

By a Special Correspondent.

DETROIT, Mich., April 18.—Henry Ford again has started something new in automobile selling. His dealers in Detroit this week put into operation a sales plan whereby the purchaser can obtain a roadster or touring car for $12.60 down payment, the remainder to be paid at the rate of $5 weekly. Other types can be obtained with slightly higher down payments. The plan is to be tried exclusively in Detroit for the time being. If it proves practicable it will be employed universally.

When Ford last year announced his plan to deliver a car on payment of a third of its purchase price, the money to be accumulated by the $5-a-week banking method, everyone believed he had penetrated the lowest lying auto buying stratum. It was felt that persons who could not buy under this plan could buy no automobile. Since that plan was put in effect Ford has sold cars on this basis to 165,000 persons. It is believed most of them took advantage of the plan because it was only through it that they could hope to possess cars.

Now Ford delves deeper and the industry is wondering what the results are to be, whether there is still a lower stratum of car buyers that was not suspected.

Just how sharply the new plan will cut into used-car sales, especially into the sale of used Ford cars, is to be seen.

HOW AND WHERE TO GO MOTORING; ROAD CONDITIONS

then graded dirt to the fort. Impracticable except when dry.

HANNIBAL, KEOKUK AND QUINCY—Via St. Charles, then No. 2 to Wentzville, and north on No. 9 through Troy to Eolia, then either north through Bowling Green on dirt roads to Frankfort, or northeast on gravel toll roads via Louisiana to Frankford. From Frankford north on No. 9 through New London to Hannibal (130 miles). North on No. 9 through Palmyra, La Grange, Canton and Wayland to Keokuk. For Quincy, turn off at Taylor (between Palmyra and La Grange) and run east to West Quincy and the bridge over the Mississippi River. The dirt roads through Illinois from Hannibal to Quincy are reported very rough. The road to Hannibal via Louisiana is gravel the entire way from Wentzville, except for three miles or so that once was graveled between Louisiana and Frankford. From Hannibal north there is gravel to five miles beyond Palmyra, then five miles of dirt, then gravel to Canton, then dirt to Wayland, and gravel and concrete to Keokuk.

INDIANAPOLIS—Over the Free Bridge, through East St. Louis, and on Illinois Route No. 11 via Collinsville, Troy and Marshall to the Indiana State line, where follow Indiana No. 3 through Terre Haute to Inodianapolis (244 miles). Concrete all the way, except in some towns.

JOPLIN, MO. (362 miles via Rolla and Houston, 316 via Rolla and Lebanon). See routes to Springfield, Mo. From Springfield go west over No. 16 via Republic and Mount Vernon, picking up No. 38 and following it to within 12 miles of Joplin, where follow county road into Joplin. Gravel and chat roads. ALTERNATIVE ROUTE—No. 14 direct via Carthage to Joplin. Graded dirt, good when dry, to Carthage, then concrete.

KANSAS CITY—Manchester road out of St. Louis to Union, then No. 12 via Leslie and Mount Sterling, Jefferson City, California, Sedalia and Warrensburg. Concrete, gravel and natural gravel to Tipton, dirt to Smithton, surfacing through Sedalia to Dresden, dirt to Lone Jack, and surfacing into Kansas City. (327 miles). ALTERNATIVE ROUTE—St. Charles road to St. Charles, then No. 2 via Wentzville, Wright City, Warrenton, Mineola, Fulton, Columbia, Boonville, Marshall and Lexington to Kansas City (313 miles). Concrete to Wright City, dirt and gravel to Warrenton, dirt to Mineola, gravel to Fulton, surfacing to Columbia, gravel to Rocheport, dirt to Levassy, surfacing into Kansas City. ALTERNATIVE—Via St. Charles and Route No. 2 to High Hill, then No. 45 through Montgomery City to Martinsburg, No. 22 to Mexico, Centralia and Clark, No. 7 to Moberly, No. 10 to Salisbury, Brunswick, Carrollton, Richmond and Excelsior Springs to Kansas City (316 miles). Good and fast when dry.

LITTLE ROCK AND HOT SPRINGS—Cairo route to Memphis then west on Bankhead Highway via Forrest City and Lone Oak to Little Rock (416 miles). The Arkansas State Highway Commission reports that the Memphis-Little Rock road now is all-weather all the year, that 24 miles of the road from Little Rock to Hot Springs has been paved as far as Benton, Ark., and that the pavement will be completed to Hot Springs by the time summer traffic sets in.

LOUISVILLE—Free Bridge and No. 11 through East St. Louis and Collinsville on the Indianapolis road as far as Putnamville, Ind., where turn south on No. 32 through Spencer to Bloomington, No. 22 via Bedford to Paoli, No. 5 through Palmyra and New Albany to Louisville (326 miles). Concrete to Putnamville, then gravel with some concrete. ALTERNATIVE ROUTE—Via Belleville and No. 15 through Ashley, Mount Vernon and Fairfield to Albion, Ill.; No. 1 to Mount Carmel and Lawrenceville, east on No. 12 to Vincennes bridge, Indiana No. 5 to Washington and Shoals, No. 41 to Mitchell, No. 22 to Paoli and No. 5 to Louisville. Concrete to Lawrenceville, except two miles of cinders just west of Okawville and a couple of miles of cinders and gravel between Fairfield and Albion. Gravel the rest of the way. ALTERNATIVE—Via East St. Louis and No. 12 through O'Fallon, Lebanon, Trenton, Sandoval, Salem, Flora and Lawrenceville, then the rest of the way same as above route via Vincennes. Concrete from East St. Louis to Lawrenceville, except for cinders on several fills. This is the shortest route to Louisville.

MACON, Mo., via St. Charles, then No. 2 to High Hill, No. 45 to Martinsburg, No. 22 to Clark, No. 7 through Moberly to Macon (188 miles). ALTERNATIVE ROUTE—See route to Hannibal. From Hannibal go west on No. 8.

MADISON, Wis.—Illinois No. 4 via Edwardsville to Springfield, No. 24 to Peoria, No. 29 to Depue, No. 7 to Peru, No. 2 to Dixon, No. 26 to Freeport, No. 5 to Rockford, then a county road to Beloit, Wis., and Wisconsin No. 13 to Madison. Concrete all the way, except a gravel detour from Depue to Spring Valley, Ill., and one from Janesville, Wis., to Madison. From Madison, one can go anywhere in Wisconsin, almost always on fine gravel or surfaced roads.

MEMPHIS (326 miles) — Free Bridge to Belleville, No. 15 to Ashley Junction, south on No. 2 to Cairo. Ferry the Mississippi River to Bird's Point, Mo., then west on No. 16 to Sikeston, south on No. 9 to the Arkansas line, then Mississippi River Scenic Highway through Blytheville, Osceola and Marion to Memphis. Concrete to Cairo and Charleston, Mo., then gravel and concrete to Memphis, except for about 22 miles of dirt between Portageville, Mo., and Blytheville, almost all of it in Missouri. This dirt is not for wet weather driving. ALTERNATIVE ROUTE—Lemay Ferry road out of St. Louis to a mile east of Hillsboro, then left via Silica to Festus, follow No. 25 via Ste. Genevieve and Perryville to Jackson, No. 9 via Cape Girardeau to Sikeston, then the same route as via Cairo and Sikeston. Concrete for 16 miles out of St. Louis, then gravel, except for some dirt between Festus and Ste. Genevieve, Perryville and Jackson, and Portageville and Blytheville.

MICHIGAN RESORTS — Any route to Chicago, then east on the Lincoln Highway to Merrillville, Ind., or take No. 11 to Marshall, Ill., and No. 1 to Steger, Ill., then east on the Lincoln Highway to Merrillville. From Merrillville north on No. 8 to Gary, east on No. 43 to the Michigan line, north on No. 11 (the West Michigan Pike) through Benton Harbor, South Haven, Grand Haven, Muskegon, Luddington, Manistee, Traverse City, Charlevois and Petosky to Mackinac (785 miles). Concrete to Hart, Mich., then gravel with some concrete. Another way to reach Steger is to take No. 4 through Springfield and Bloomington to Joliet and there take No. 22 eastward.

MILWAUKEE AND FISH CREEK—Any route to Chicago. Go out Sheridan road from Chicago, then No. 42 to the Wisconsin line, then No. 17 through Kenosha, Racine and Milwaukee, Port Washington, Sheyboygan, Manitowoc to Fish Creek. Concrete and gravel.

COMMON SENSE
AUTO POLISH
THE GREASELESS CLEANSER
AUTOMOBILES

Make this test

It may be worth $150 to you.
It will cost you only $1.00.

If your car looks dull, and commonplace. If a cheapening film coats it over, and suggests repainting. Before you do a thing about it—make this test.

Clean with Common Sense, three places on your car. One on the fender; another on the hood; and a third on the body.

This test will require only a few minutes; but, here is what it will do.

First: If your car's original finish is intact, its sparkle and lustre, as when new, will at once smile through. And prove that repainting—an expense of $150, is not necessary.

Second: It will acquaint you with what car dealers have long known and practiced—a quick way to add $150.00 to your car's appearance value. And, will demonstrate how easily your car may be kept looking new, year after year.

The cost of this test is the price of Common Sense—$1.00. If it is not a complete success, your money back.

Make the test. Obtain Common Sense from your nearest Accessory dealer or Druggist.

Or send $1.00 for a supply; or six 2-cent stamps for a testing sample, by return mail. Address Common Sense Mfg. Co., 4167 Olive, St. Louis, Mo.

Note this record!

Common Sense, as demanded by out-of-doors conditions, leaves a bone dry, glass hard surface. That sheds dust; and resists atmospheric action.

Ten years of use has tested it.

Thousands of car owners and car dealers have proved, that, if a car is cleaned and polished with Common Sense a few times each season, it will look as new, year after year, as the day it left the factory.

OW AND WHERE TO GO MOTORING; ROAD CONDITIONS

mphis. From Memphis, go south ver Mississippi River Scenic Highway via Clarksdale, Jackson and Brookhaven, Miss., and Hammond and Baton Rouge, La., to New Orleans (780 miles). Gravel from Memphis to Hammond, then concrete.

NASHVILLE—Over Free Bridge to Belleville, then No. 15 to Ashley Junction, south on No. 2 through Carbondale to Mounds, east on No. 35 to Mound City and ferry over the Ohio River to Barlow, Ky. Then east via La Center to Paducah, and east and south to Briensburg, Ky.; Eggner's Ferry, Cadiz, Hopkinsville and Springfield to Nashville (350 miles). Concrete to Mounds, thence gravel to Nashville, except for a short dirt stretch east of Briensburg, Ky.

NEW YORK—See route to Indianapolis. From Indianapolis, go east on National Old Trail through Dayton, Columbus, Wheeling and Uniontown to Hagerstown, Md., where swing northward through Chambersburg and Gettysburg to Philadelphia and New Brunswick, N. J., to New York (1031 miles). Hard road all the way.

PACIFIC COAST—See route to Kansas City. From Kansas City go west over Union Pacific Highway via Topeka to Salina, then south to McPherson and the Santa Fe Trail via La Junta, Trinidad, Santa Fe, Flagstaff, Needles and Barstow to Los Angeles. This and the Old Spanish Trail, still farther south, are the only practicable motor routes to Pacific Coast cities, as all others are still closed by snow in the mountains. It is 2300 miles to Los Angeles.

POPLAR BLUFF (180 miles)—Lemay Ferry road via Hillsboro, De Soto, Flat River and Farmington to Fredericktown, then No. 23 via Coldwater and Greenville to Poplar Bluff. Concrete for 16 miles out of St. Louis, then good to fine gravel all the rest of the way. ALTERNATIVE ROUTE—Concrete on Illinois No. 15 and No. 2 to Cairo, then ferry and gravel and concrete on Missouri No. 16 through Bird's Point, Charleston, Sikeston and Dexter to Poplar Bluff.

RHINELANDER AND MINOCQUA—See route to Madison, Wis. From Madison, go north to No. 10 via Steven's Point and Merrill. Virtually all gravel roads; 618 miles to Rhinelander.

SOUTHEASTERN ILLINOIS—No. 12 via O'Fallon, Trenton, Sandoval, Salem and Flora to Lawrenceville. On No. 15 from Belleville via Okawville, Ashley, Mount Vernon and Fairfield to Albion, then No. 1 north to Mount Carmel or No. 1 south as far as Carmi. Hard roads.

SOUTHEAST MISSOURI CITIES—See routes to Memphis and Poplar Bluff.

SOUTHWEST MISSOURI CITIES—See routes to Springfield and Joplin.

SPRINGFIELD, MO.—Manchester road out of St. Louis to Union, then No. 14 through St. Clair, Sullivan, Cuba and St. James to Rolla, south on No. 7 via Licking and Houston to Cabool, then west on No. 16 to Springfield (272 miles). Concrete to Franklin County line, gravel to Staunton, dirt to St. James and gravel the rest of the way, except for a few dirt stretches that are to be graveled this spring. ALTERNATIVE ROUTE—Same to Rolla, then direct on No. 14 via Waynesville, Lebanon and Marshfield. Fine going when dry. From Rolla to Marshfield mostly graded dirt ready for laying concrete, then mostly gravel to Springfield (226 miles this way).

SPRINGFIELD, MO. — (Long Ozark scenic route). Lemay Ferry road and No. 23 via De Soto and Fredericktown to Poplar Bluff, south on No. 23 for seven miles, west on No. 42 through Doniphan to Alton, south on No. 19 to Thayer (on the Arkansas line), north on No. 7 through West Plains and Willow Springs to Cabool, then west on No. 16 through Mountain View to Springfield (434 miles).

ST. PAUL AND MINNEAPOLIS—See route to Madison, Wis. From Madison, take Wisconsin No. 12, via Baraboo, Black River Falls, Eau Claire and Hudson to St. Paul and Minneapolis (652 miles). Mostly good gravel beyond Madison, with some graded dirt. A prettier route is from Madison via La Crosse, Wis., and Winona, Minn.

TEXAS CITIES—See route to Joplin, Mo. From Joplin, follow King of Trails through Miami, Vinita, Muskogee, McAlester and Sherman to Dallas (758 miles), whence one can go to Fort Worth, San Antonio, Austin, Houston, Brownsville, Corpus Christi, Galveston and El Paso. This is dry-weather going, and under the most favorable circumstances entails considerable uncomfortable traveling, though it is made by thousands of motorists yearly.

STATE ENGINEERS TRYING TO FINISH ST. LOUIS K. C. ROAD

road detour is in use, which the department reports is in fair condition.

From Jonesburg to High Hill the road now is graded earth, but this short stretch is to be placed under a concrete contract this year.

From High Hill to the Callaway County eastern line now is a gravel road, but this stretch will be put under a concrete contract this year.

Concreting Under Way.

Concrete construction is in progress from the Callaway County eastern line through Williamsburg to Calwood. Part of this stretch has been completed and the paved road opened to traffic. The rest of the stretch will be open in a few months, it is stated. Dirt detours, reported in fair condition, are in use around points where the construction work still is in progress.

From Calwood westward to Columbia, all-weather gravel road is in use. This road does not coincide with the route of No. 2 as relocated. So the present gravel road will be used when that stretch of No. 2 is placed under construction, and it will not be necessary to detour on dirt roads.

From a point just west of Columbia to Boonville, work is under way on concrete paving. Part of the old gravel road out of Columbia is available for detours, but most of the detours for this stretch are dirt roads which are in good condition in dry weather.

Concreting 70-Mile Stretch.

The road from Boonville to Lamine already is hard-surfaced with a bituminous surfacing, and is open to traffic.

From Lamine due westward to the Jackson County line, a stretch

HUDSON COACH $1345
Delivered Price. $1459

FOR TEN YEARS

"The World's Greatest Buy"

Everyone Says It—Sales Prove It

It is only as you find the real comparisons for Hudson qualities among the costliest cars that the enormous difference in price is so astonishing.

Today it offers the greatest price advantage and finest quality in Hudson history. Never was this supremacy of value so outstanding. And the greatest Hudson sales on record show how complete is public knowledge of the facts.

Is There Any Reason to Pay More?

Hudson's position as the "World's Greatest Buy" is not merely a new attainment. It is acknowledgment of ten years' refinement of a great car around the famous patented Super-Six principle. No motor design, however costly, has been found to displace this long-time leadership of the exclusive Super-Six.

It is responsible for the way Hudsons endure the hardest service, free of mechanical annoyance, and retain their new car vigor and flexibility when they have become old in point of years and service.

Its simplicity has always meant a lower selling price than is permitted in complicated types. And today, economies possible only to the largest production of 6-cylinder closed cars give it value advantages never held by any rival.

All now know that higher price can buy no smoother performance than Hudson's. It cannot buy more brilliant results in acceleration, power or speed. It cannot buy greater reliability or endurance.

No car at or near the price rivals the Hudson Coach in actual proof of value—which is SALES.

John Smith and His Car

by FREDERICK RUSSELL

THE odometer showed nearly 8000 miles when Smith drove his car into the repair shop for some mechanical treatment. Considering the service it had given the car had been entirely satisfactory, but he figured that a little timely attention to the important units of the car would enable it to render future service with even greater willingness.

He was quite interested, however, in the repair man's comments after the work was done. It seems that much of the trouble was occasioned by Smith's unconscious faults in driving.

"The best of drivers make mistakes," the repair man apologized for criticising Smith's driving.

"I should imagine so," Smith admitted. "But I try not to strain the car, don't try to make every hill, never slip the clutch and apply the brakes gradually."

"The car shows some evidence of it," the other replied. "But just look at this." He pointed first to the carbon which was sprinkled on the floor around the car and then to a small metal bar which he introduced as a "wrist pin."

"Your engine was full of carbon," he explained, "yet you continually forced the motor by driving with the spark too far advanced. This is one of the results. I had to put in three new wrist pins."

It was necessary to tell Smith that each wrist pin forms a bearing for the upper end of each connecting rod. The wrist pin fits crosswise through the piston and is locked into position by means of a cotter pin. Before the piston is pushed up into position in its respective cylinder the connecting rod hangs from the center of the wrist pin. As the piston travels up and down in the cylinder and as the lower end of the connecting rod cranks the crankshaft the upper end makes a fraction of a turn on the wrist pin.

"As a consequence," the repair man explained, "the wrist pin gets much of the driving strain of the piston. When the lower end of a connecting rod gets loose and produces a bearing knock we merely tighten the bearing, but when the upper end gets loose the practice is to install a new wrist pin. If the pistons traveled up and down without interference the wrist pins would last a long time; but if, as in your case, the engine is carbonized the pistons are going to have moments of hesitation due to preignition and the pins are going to wear out as a consequence."

"How can I tell when these conditions exist in the engine?" Smith asked.

"The knock tells you," was the reply. 'It will be a light knock because, as you see, the pistons, the wrist pins and the connecting rods are comparatively light parts. The thing to do is to have the carbon removed by burning or scraping, or gradually by putting kerosene into the cylinders through the pet cocks each night. If you can't remove the carbon then drive with the spark not so far advanced."

"What has the spark to do with it?" Smith demanded.

"Everything. With an advanced spark the mixture is fired in the cylinders before the pistons reach the top of their compression strokes. This gives the engine greater speed, provided conditions are favorable. But when there are read-hot particles of carbon on the piston heads and around the top of the cylinders, the gas vapor will be fired entirely too soon. The gas will commence to expand before the pistons have reached the top of their strokes, because the hot particles of carbon act as auxiliary sparks. The gas vapor burns entirely too fast and, therefore, starts the power strokes before the compression strokes are finished. Thus the pistons will be encouraged to go both ways at once. And in compressing this expanding gas before permitting it to do its work, the pistons are badly jarred. They give sharp raps as though struck by a quick blow of a hammer. A few thousand miles of this and you can understand what happens to the wrist pins. They become loose and rattle constantly.

Next week—THE SPARK.

TAKES OVER FORD FIRM.

The newly organized Bray-Hambuechen Motor Co. has taken over the business and building of the Walsh Motor Co., 5133 Delmar boulevard, authorized Ford dealer, and plans to continue it under the same policies as in the past, also putting into effect the Ford used car reconditioning and guarantee plan. Louis P. Hambuechen and Carl M. Bray will be the active principals, while William Bray, president of the William Bray Commission Co., and John Bray, its vice president, will be directors. Carl Bray is secretary and teasurer of the commission firm. Hambuechen has been in the automobile business in St. Louis for 13 years, including 7 years with the Willys-Overland branch, and operated the Hambuechen Paige-Jewett Co.

MISSOURI TO PAVE GAP IN ROAD TO ARKANSAS IN 1925

Highway From St. Louis to Memphis and New Orleans to Be All-Weather By End of Year.

By a Special Correspondent.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 18.—It has been definitely decided to make every effort to complete the hard-surfacing of the dirt gap in State Highway No. 9 to the Arkansas State line by the end of the year. This is as important news concerning road building in Missouri as has developed in some time. For this 22-mile gap, which cannot be traveled in wet weather and is difficult to keep even reasonably smooth when dry, is now the only break in an all-weather highway from Chicago and St. Louis clear through to Memphis, New Orleans and Little Rock, Ark. Paving of it is expected to result in a great development of automobile traffic north and south.

To Ask for Bids in May.

At present, one can motor from St. Louis on concrete to Cairo, going to Belleville, then east over No. 15 to Ashley Junction, and thence south on No. 2 to Cairo, ferrying the Mississippi River to Bird's Point, and traveling west on concrete and gravel on No. 16 to Sikeston, then south on No. 9 to Portageville. Then comes the dirt stretch.

A nine-mile stretch of concrete has been completed south from Portageville and has been opened to traffic.

The remaining 22 miles of dirt road to the Arkansas border is to be paved with 18-foot concrete before 1925 ends. Plans for this work are being prepared in the State Highway Department, and will be ready for bids next month. Contracts will be let in June, with the requirement that the paving be completed by Dec. 31, 1925. To hasten the work, the pavement contract will be let in five sections.

1000-Mile All-Weather Road.

When this work is finished the Chicago-St. Louis-Cairo-Memphis-New Orleans highway will be concrete and gravel the entire distance, which ranges from 1086 to 1146 miles, according to the route followed from Chicago to St. Louis. It is 780 miles from St. Louis to New Orleans.

CAR GREASING POINTER.

When greasing the car with a high-pressure system, be careful in removing and attaching dust caps that cover grease plug nipples. There are fine springs in these, intended to prevent them from shaking off. See that the spring does not fall out.

COUPE with the Million-Dollar Motor
$715 f. o. b. Lansing, Mich.

Quality—Comfort—Economy

THE Star 2-passenger Coupe, equipped with the Million Dollar Motor offers a most attractive combination of style, all-year utility and low cost.

It is the choice of commercial travelers because of its weatherproof construction, reliability, power to negotiate any road that is passible, and exceptional freedom from breakdowns.

Women prefer it because of its refined dark blue lacquer-finished body, white striped, with enduring black enamelled fenders and nickeled radiator shell, its roomy, comfortable interior and wide doors, its ease of handling and trouble-free operation.

Best of all, its high mileage on gasoline and oil and low maintenance costs makes it a most economical transportation unit.

See it at our show room and try the wonderful motor on a demonstration ride.

1. Coil springs at the ends of the arms absorb all the small bumps.
2. Patented Friction Head provides central control that snubs violent spring action — both upwards and downwards.
3. Two steel arms, operating independently of each other, prevent body-roll, sidesway, body lurching.

Wagner Triple Action Shock Absorber for Fords

THE Wagner Triple Action Shock Absorber is the only device that gives you complete relief from driving strain and discomfort — because its unique "Triple Action" is the only performance that cushions all road shocks.

It isn't just another shock absorber — it is tried and proven — the result of years of thorough tests by the expert Wagner automotive engineers, who have designed Wagners like the Ford springs themselves — on the 3 point suspension principle.

Dave E. Castles, president of the company, has been in the automobile business 16 years, of which 12 were spent with the Buick organization at Kansas City, Oklahoma City and Dallas and the Buick factory. For three years he operated a retail Buick agency in Muskogee, Ok. Coming to St. Louis in 1923, he took over the interests of W. S. Roberts, who was president of the West Side Buick Co.

Waldo W. Wilson, vice president, joined the West Side Bnick Co., on Nov. 1, 1923, as vice president and sales manager. Prior to that time he was a retail salesman for the Vesper-Buick Auto Co. He has been in the automobile business in St. Louis since 1907.

TO SELL AUTOMOBILES.

The Cleveland Motor Sales Co., distributor of Cleveland cars, has appointed the Fried Auto Repair Co., 525-27 Bates street, as its South Side Cleveland dealer. The Fried Co. has just opened a new building on Bates street, 55 by 125 feet. It will show Cleveland cars for the first time today. The building is well equipped for sales and service work. Both the larger Cleveland, the Series 43, and the new Cleveland Standard Six, Series 31, will be displayed today. Edwin P. Fried will act as sales manager of the Cleveland Six end of the business of the firm.

BUILDS 250,000TH COACH.

A QUARTER of a million coaches have been built by the Hudson-Essex factory in three years. The 250,000th coach was sent off the assembly line only a few days ago by the Hudson Motor Car Co., which originated the coach model late in 1921. Until then, closed cars had cost the motorist about $1000 more than open ones. The Hudson-Essex organization led the way in bringing down the cost of closed jobs until today both Hudson and Essex coaches sell for less than open models, and a number of other makes of closed cars are selling at or near open-car prices. Nine of every 10 Hudson and Essex cars made today is a coach, the factory production being 1000 cars a day, of which 900 are coaches. The Hudson-Essex factory is entitled to the credit for leading the way to reasonably-priced closed cars.

SERVICE MANAGERS TO MEET.

THE newly organized Service Managers' Bureau of the St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association will hold a dinner meeting at 6:30 p. m. next Friday at the Claridge Hotel. Its members are service department managers and shop foremen. A. W. Hoffner, manager of the maintenance department of the Hudson-Frampton Motor Car Co., will discuss the flat rate repair system. J. O. Lowell, service manager of the Vesper-Buick Auto Co., is chairman of the bureau.

SAND BLASTS PAINT OFF.

A new method of removing paint from automobile bodies, without using chamicals which have proved destructive in refinishing automobiles, has been perfected by the Roberson-Bradford Motor Coach Co., distributer of Duco. This new method is a sand blast treatment which removes all paint and leaves the metal surfaces in such a condition that lacquer finishes or paint properly applied give unusual service.

PLUG REPAIRS PUNCTURES.

Distribution of Kex plugs, a new quick and permanent repair of punctured automobile tires, has been taken over by the Wedler-Shuford Co. The plugs are drawn through the punctures from the inside of the tire with a special needle. The flat head stops the puncture, and the stem is clipped short at the outside of the casing.

MEETING OF TIRE DEALERS.

Arthur Jennings, the newly appointed business manager of the Associated Tire Dealers of St. Louis, was the principal speaker at a dinner meeting of the association Tuesday night at the Claridge Hotel. Attendance at the meeting was exceptionally good.

One of the features of the testimonial dinner to Mayor Kiel was the presentation to him by his friends of a Packard six coupe.

of about 70 miles is under concrete construction. The work is divided into a number of contracts, with work proceeding on them simultaneously. This work will be finished by the end of the year or early in 1926, it is stated. Detours around this long stretch are through Marshall, Waverly and Lexington, or through Marshall and Higginsville. These detours are dirt roads most of the way and are kept in good condition in dry weather, but are heavy going in wet weather.

From the Jackson County line westward the motorist may bowl along for about 23 miles on a broad concrete pavement leading into Kansas City.

Every Effort to Hurry Work.

A number of small bridges are being built at various points along the route of No. 2. However, even with present detours around construction, there are no fords in the entire trip from St. Louis to Kansas City.

Efforts are being made by the Highway Department to push construction as rapidly as possible, Engineer Piepmeier said. STUDY OF STATIC IS SYSTEMATIZED Government Scientists Organize Measurement and Research Service of Great Potential Value.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—Elimination of static, fading and other atmospheric disturbances with interfere with radio reception is the objection of an investigation launched by the Government scientists of the Bureau of Standards today.

The first step of the bureau, aided by radio engineers in all parts of the country will be distribution of physical laws governing the flight of radio. Out of these studies is expected to come a scientific formula for transmission which may revolutionize broadcasting and vastly improve its value.

"The continued expansion of radio and the unexpected phenomena encountered in the very high frequencies or low wave lengths now so extensively employed, make important the distribution of natural laws governing radio transmission," Dr. J. H. Dillinger, chief of the radio laboratory said.

"Full knowledge of these phenomena is necessary before radio can fully grapple with the limitations at present imposed upon it by atmospheric disturbance, interference and fading.

"To this end a number of universities and other laboratories are engaged in a measurement program under direction of the bureau. The work includes measurement of field intensity, fading, direction variation and atmospheric disturbances."

Following a study made of the effect of the solar eclipse last January, a series of observations of the marked changes of radio transmission occurring at Sunset has been launched at Station WGY of Schenectady, N. Y.

AN EARLY LOUD SPEAKER

Just after radio broadcasting started in the United States, the "skipper" of a naval torpedo boat stationed at a foreign port decided to give his dinner guests a treat. Just as coffee was being served in the cabin, he pointed to the voice tube on the wall and asked if they had heard any musical broadcasts. The bell mouth projecting into the cabin resembled a sort of horn not unlike a loud speaker. When the guests expressed a desire to hear some radio music, the Captain phoned the radio shack, requesting that the loud speaker be tuned up. There was not a thing on the air but code, but everything was prearranged. The quartermaster on watch had the ship's phonograph on the bridge near the other end of the voice tube, and, when tipped off by the radio officer, he started it up with a good opera record. Down below the music came in very well. Several selections followed in good order, but then the quartermaster spoiled the Captain's party, calling down the tube: "That's the last record, sir; shall I run 'em over again?"

For the Notebook.

Silver is considered the best conductor of electricity.

Simple, tight mechanical connections are better than poorly soldered ones.

Try a fixed condenser between the aerial and ground for the longer wave lengths.

A lightning arrester acts as a guard to a radio set and the residence in which it is located.

Storage "B" batteries should be purchased according to their capacity, and not their voltage.

Despite the fact that the wiring may appear to be identical, two tubes or sets are seldom alike.

Crystal sets give good results in the country but seldom in the city, except on local stations.

If no round-nose pliers are available, bus wire can be bent by driving two nails close together in the workbench.

OLD MAN STATIC 'KILLED' AT LAST

Statichoke Has Startled the Radio World—Insures Clear, Long Distance, Summer Reception.

The long-promised invention which insures clear, long distance, "summer radio" without the agony of static, has just been announced here. Radio experts and fans who have tested the new invention pronounce it marvelous.

In addition to reducing static to a minimum, the Statichoke, as this new imported invention is known, increases the volume as well as clarity of distant reception, sharpens the selectivity of tuning in, eliminates that harshness of the tubes so noticeable on local loud speaker reception and acts as a safety lightning arrester.

The Statichoke somewhat resembles a small transformer, and by a system of coils it allows only the correct current value to enter the set, choking out all other high current variation from the aerial, which is passed off through a secondary ground connection.

A novel plan of distribution of the Statichoke direct to Radio fans is announced by the American importers, who have set aside 10,000 units for the purpose of "word of mouth" advertising at a special price of only $2.50 each on ten days' free trial, with a guarantee that it will enable clear, long distance reception throughout the summer.

If interested, write today to the radio department of Imperial Laboratories, 8192 Coca Cola Building, Kansas City, Mo., and the Statichoke will be sent you by insured mail. Use it for 10 days with the distinct understanding that if it does not do everything claimed for it in this article, you can return it and get your money back. This offer is fully guaranteed, so write today, as you do not risk a cent.

SHOW ORGANIZATION IS NOW COMPLETE

Prominent Manufacturers and Dealers Behind Project to Give St. Louis a Radio Exposition.

The St. Louis Radio Trades Association, which is planning to hold a radio show in the Coliseum next October, has established offices in the Frisco Building, Ninth and Olive streets.

Its members now number more than 50 and its officers, directors and committeemen are:

Colin B. Kennedy, president; Melville B. Hall, first vice president; R. W. Bennett, second vice president; William Borghoff, third vice president; Harold J. Wrape, treasurer; Loren M. Wood, secretary; Thomas P. Convey, association manager.

Board of directors—Colin B. Kennedy, chairman; Melville B. Hall, Robert W. Bennett, E. A. Reutner, William Borghoff, Harold J. Wrape, Loren M. Wood, J. S. Cuming, W. A. Ward, George Niekamp.

Radio Show Committee—Harry Sachs, chairman; Colin B. Kennedy, Robert W. Bennett, W. A. Ward.

Membership Committee—J. S. Cuming, chairman; S. A. Whitten, Walter H. Dyer, William Borghoff.

Publicity Committee—Loren M. Wood, chairman; L. A. Benson, R. F. Novy.

Convention Committee—H. C. Priesmeyer, chairman; S. A. Whitten, Scott Gardner, George Van Sickle, C. W. Lockhart, A. H. Leu.

WASHINGTON'S RADIO SHOW

Radio manufacturers in all sections of the country are requesting space for exhibits at Washington's second annual radio show in Convention Hall, Oct. 5 to 11, according to an announcement here.

The Radio Corporation of America, the War and Navy Departments and the Department of Commerce have promised special educational exhibits. The Radio Corporation will erect a miniature radio broadcasting station. An attempt will be made during the show to transmit photos between the United States and England.

EXPORTS ON THE INCREASE

Exports of radio apparatus from the United States during February, 1925, amounted to $477,591, compared to $784,619 for January. The chief purchasers of American radio equipment during February were Spain, Sweden, United Kingdom, Canada, Mexico, Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Japan and Australia.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

The Post-Dispatch Radio Department cannot undertake to answer questions by [illegible]

Q. What size and what kind of wire would you advise use on a 3-foot loop antenna and what size condenser should be used to tune the loop? C. N.

A. No. 18 or 20 B. [illegible] gauge wire, either cotton or silk covered, would serve the purpose well. Single strand wire is the most practical. Stranded wire is somewhat more efficient if the strands are intact but if one or two of them breaks it is less efficient than single strand. A .0005 mf. condenser used across the loop will permit the circuit to be tuned over the broadcasting wave lengths provided you have at least 100 feet of wire on the loop.

Q. Has a direct offer been made for a successful static eliminator? D. N.

A. Not that we know. However, if anyone had such a device that really did the work should not have any difficulty in securing an offer. Any of the large radio companies would pay a big price for an instrument or a circuit that would cut out static though they would have to be shown conclusively that it worked before they would make an offer.

Q. I would like to have a correct hook-up for a two-tube reflex receiver of the type that was published in your paper, May [illegible] 1924. E. C.

A. The circuit that you ask for is shown in Fig. 1.

Q. I am not able to receive KSD. My set is a three-tube receiver and my atenna is about 150 feet long. C. E. F.

A. Not knowing what kind of a receiver you have, it would be difficult to say what your trouble is. However, it is possible that you could increase the range of your receiver so that you could hear KSD, WOAW, WHO and K[illegible] by either connecting a 20 or [illegible] turn coil of wire wound on a three-inch tube in series with the antenna or by increasing the capacity of the condenser across the secondary of the variocoupler.

Q. Will a WD-12 tube work with a two-slide tuning coil? D. I.

A. Yes. Your other questions are answered in the reply to L. N.

Q. I have a three-tube regenerative receiver using WD 12 tubes. When I turn the regeneration up to about 25 or 30 degrees I get a noise that sounds like a machine gun. What is the cause of this noise? G. W. M.

A. Your detector tube is set into oscillation when you turn the plate coil or tickler too far around. Signals come in best just before the tube starts to oscillate. When your tube oscillates it sends out a wave that is similar to that sent out by a broadcasting station and this keeps your neighbors from listening to the station that you are trying to pick up. So it is best both for you and for others that you learn to tune your set without permitting the detector tube to oscillate.

Q. I am sending you a copy of the circuit that I am using and would like for you to tell me why it is that I can not hear stations operating on the longer wave lengths. The set only tunes up to about 300 meters. R. I.

A. The condenser that is in series with the antenna is connected in the wrong place. One set of plates of the condenser should be attached to the antenna and the other to the common connection that goes to the grid condenser and the top of the antenna inductance.

Q. Please publish a diagram of a one-tube receiver using a three-slide tuning coil. L. N.

A. The hook-up you ask for is given in Fig. 2. However, we would not recommend this circuit, for it is only a little better than a crystal set. If you are going to the trouble and expense of building a tube set you might as well make a good regenerative receiver. The only additional part that you would need would be a variocoupler, which is very easy to construct. The renegerative would permit you to hear stations all over the country, while the three-slide tuning coil and vacuum tube would only pick up local stations and possibly a few of the high-power stations.

ASK HIGHER RATE ON RADIO FREIGHT

Decision on Request Made by Railroads at Two Hearings Will Be Handed Down in June.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—Hearings have been concluded before the Interstate Commerce Commission upon the appeal of the Western Railroad Classification Commission for higher freight rates on radio sets. A decision on the request is expected by June 10.

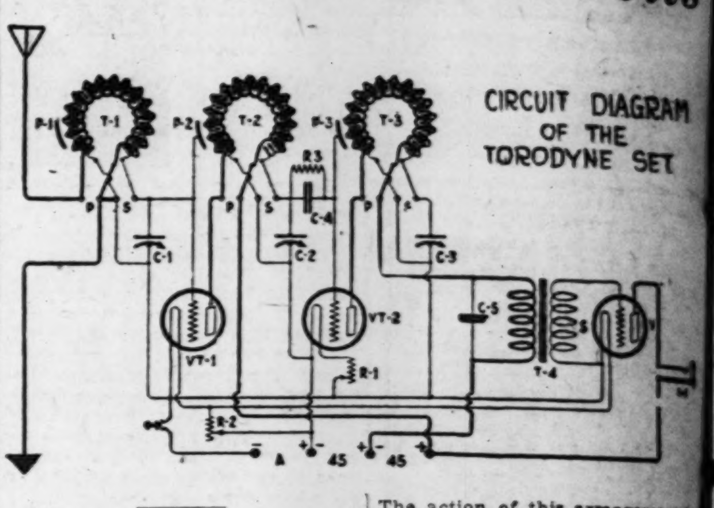
Should the appeal of the railroads be granted, an increased price in sets to the public is expected to result.

Heretofore, there has not been a definite rate classification of radio sets by the railroads, the freight charge being the same as on other electrical apparatus. On Feb. 2 the Classification Commission announced a separate classification for radio sets at a higher rate. Appeal was taken to the Interstate Commerce Commission and hearings were held in San Francisco on March 4. The San Francisco meeting soon adjourned to meet in Washington on April 7.

The railroad side of the argument was urged by Robert W. Fyfe of the Western Classification Commission, F. W. Smith and Parker McCallister of the Official Classification Commission and E. K. Voorhees of the Southern Classification Commission. Radio and music concerns were represented by Jos. C. Colquetle, of the music industries; L. E. Whitney, of the Radio Manufacturers' Association; W. J. Gorman, of the Radio Manufacturers' Association; I. E. Lambert, of the Radio Corporation of America; Paxson Deeter of the Atwater-Kent Manufacturing Co., and George Lewis of the Crosley Radio Corporation.

The contention of the railroads is that the higher value of radio apparatus warrants a higher freight rate than does other electrical apparatus. Since the proposed increased rate would also affect talking machines with which radio sets are combined, music concerns are also fighting the proposition.

New Cardwell Circuit Has Novel Coils



Three-Tube Receiver With Outstanding Features, Including Special Neutralizing Device and Tuned Plate.

A novel, but efficient receiver of a new type has been developed by the engineering staff of Allen B. Cardwell Co. for use with the Toro-Tran radio frequency amplifying transformers that are designed for circuits employing radio frequency amplification. The Torodyne as the new circuit is called consists of one stage of radio frequency amplification, detector and one stage of audio frequency amplification.

Three Toro-Tran radio frequency amplifying transformers are used. These transformers are of the doughnut coil type the fields of which fall within the coils and therefore do not affect other circuits or introduce feed backs. Besides this feature the transformers are wound in a manner that reduces to a minimum losses caused by distributed capacity. The transformers are also designed so that they may be used not only as such, but also as antenna couplers and as a means of regeneration control in detector circuits.

In the Torodyne curcuit one Toro-Tran is used as an antenna coupler, one as a radio frequency amplifying transformer and one as a regenerative control in the detector circuit. The primary of the first Toro-Tran is connected to the aerial and ground. The secondary is shunted by a .00035 variable condenser and connected to the grid of the radio frequency amplifying tube and the negative A battery lead. The latter is grounded through a shunt placed across two of the terminals of the Toro-Tran T-1 as is shown in the circuit diagram.

The primary of the second Toro-Tran is placed in the plate circuit of the first tube. The secondary goes to one side of the grid condenser and to the positive A battery terminal. Each Toro-Tran is equipped with a neutralizing shield called a potentiodon. This device takes the place of a special neutralising condenser. The potentiodon of the first Toro-Tran, P-1, is not used. The potentiodon of the second Toro-Tran, P-2, is connected to the grid of the first tube.

The use of the third Toro-Tran is the outstanding feature of the Torodyne circuit, outside the efficient construction of the coils. The primary of the third Toro-Tran, T-3, is connected in series with the primary of the audio frequency transformer and the B battery of the detector plate circuit. A .00035 variable condenser is shunted across the secondary of this Toro-Tran and one side of the condenser is then connected to the negative filament lead. The potentiodon, terminal, P-3, is attached to the grid of the second or detector tube.

The action of this arrangement is as follows:

The condenser C-3 is first left at its zero setting. The potentiodon P-3 is then tuned until regeneration is obtained on the shortest wave length. After the capacity of the potentiodon has been fixed, regeneration is controlled by the use of the condenser C-3. As T-1, T-2 and T-3 are of the same construction the tuning of the three condensers is very uniform over the entire range of the receiver.

The single stage of audio frequency amplification and the remainder of the circuit will be understood by a careful study of the diagram. A list of the parts necessary in the construction of the Torodyne is given below:

3 Cardwell Toro-Trans (T-1, T-2, T-3).

3 17-plate or .00035 mf variable condensers (C-1, C-2, C-3).

1 audio frequency amplifying transformer, 3½ to 1 ratio (T-4).

3 tube sockets.

2 rheostats, their resistance depending upon the kind of tubes that are used. (R-1, R-2).

1 single jack of the two contact type (J-1).

1 filament switch.

1 by-pass condenser, .06 mf (C-5).

1 grid condenser and leak (C-4, R-3).

3 dials.

1 connector block with 6 binding posts.

1 cabinet.

Miscellaneous hardware, solder, busbar, lugs, brackets, etc.

The Torodyne can be constructed for either UV 199 or 201 A tubes. The former will not give as strong signals as will the latter, but permit the set to be operated from dry cells which is quite an advantage. If 199 tubes are used, R-1 and R-2 should be 30 ohms each, and the A battery would consist of three dry cells 1½ volts each, connected in series.

DESIGNING THE AMPLIFIER

When laying out a radio set liberal spacing should be allowed between the units. There should be at least 1½ inches between tubes and amplifying transformers. This will leave about a 6-inch separation between the tubes, center to center. All wires should be as short and direct as possible, especially those leading to the grid and to the plates. The return leads of the grid circuit of each amplifying tube should run from the transformer secondary to the negative terminal of the A battery. This method of connection places a negative bias on the grid, due to the drop in voltage in the resistance of the rheostat. This permits the use of higher plate voltages, which results in better amplification without the use of C batteries. Connecting the cores of the audio-amplifying transformers to the ground binding post or negative terminal of the A battery will help to minimize howls and increase signal strength. The effectiveness of this scheme depends upon the type of transformers. The circuit generally gives more satisfactory results if the first amplifying transformer has a higher ratio than that of the second amplifying transformer. Jacks can be used in an audio amplifier circuit so that the detector can be used alone or the detector and one stage. It is not a good plan to employ jacks in a radio frequency circuit.

ANTENNA SYSTEMS FOR PORTABLE SETS

Some Pointers About the Construction of Proper Aerials and Ground Connections.

By WILLIS P. CORWIN, Of the KSD Staff.

With the coming of summer and vacation time many radio enthusiasts are planning the constructional details of the sets they are going to use on their outing trips. Many predictions have been made about better summer reception this year and this has increased interest in portable sets. At the present time there are so many broadcasting stations that regardless of where one tours or goes camping a good portable set will pick up at least two or three good programs each evening. A little music and entertainment listened to by those gathered around a camp fire or in a summer cottage adds greatly to the enchantment of an evening in the country.

No doubt the most efficient receiver for portable use is the superheterodyne. The super, however, is not so practical for this purpose because of the space it takes up and the extra equipment that must be used with it. Generally the regenerative receiver is the most practical as it can be made very compact and requires only two or three tubes that can be operated by the current obtainable from the storage battery in the automobile.

The antenna for use with the portable receiver is one of the most important problems encountered in the installation of the set. Most any kind of a wire stretched from 10 to 50 feet above the ground will work though the more efficient the antenna system is the better the received programs will be.

A single strand of No. 12 or 14 bare copper wire having a total length of about 125 feet is recommended. The lead in is included in this length, as it is usually attached to a car top, a post or to the window sill of a cottage and being short it can be a continuation of the antenna wire. The ground lead, which is not included in this length, need not be longer than 20 or 30 feet. This makes the over-all length of the antenna 150 feet, which is the maximum that should be used with a regenerative receiver. An aerial slightly longer than that of the permanent installation at the home is suggested for the portable set because the latter is operated under adverse conditions and needs all of the energy that can be picked up.

There are any number of ways in which the antenna can be supported. One of the best is that of attaching one end of the wire high up in a tree and the other to the car top, tent or to a post. If a tree is used for holding up one end it is not necessary to climb the tree in order to fasten the wire. Tie a cord to one end of an insulator and the antenna wire to the other. A rock or a piece of metal can then be attached to free end of the cord and thrown over a limb of the tree. In this manner the antenna can then be drawn up much higher than would be possible if one were to climb the tree.

If no trees are near the camp ground a 25 or 30 foot pole can be erected and held in place by two or three guy wires. The antenna wire should be attached to an insulator at the top of such a mast before raising it, thereby avoiding the necessity of a pulley or a slip ring. This [illegible] method of supporting the antenna [illegible] as is the one mentioned above because the [illegible] is not as great. [illegible] overcome to a certain extent by making the mast taller.

These are the two most common methods of putting up a portable aerial. There are others that are just as satisfactory. The important points to be remembered are to make the antenna as high as possible and keep it away from all

Some Pointers About the Construction of Proper Aerials and Ground Connections.

By WILLIS P. CORWIN,
Of the KSD Staff.

With the coming of summer and vacation time many radio enthusiasts are planning the constructional details of the sets they are going to use on their outing trips. Many predictions have been made about better summer reception this year and this has increased interest in portable sets. At the present time there are so many broadcasting stations that regardless of where one tours or goes camping a good portable set will pick up at least two or three good programs each evening. A little music and entertainment listened to by those gathered around a camp fire or in a summer cottage adds greatly to the enchantment of an evening in the country.

No doubt the most efficient receiver for portable use is the superheterodyne. The super, however, is not so practical for this purpose because of the space it takes up and the extra equipment that must be used with it. Generally the regenerative receiver is the most practical as it can be made very compact and requires only two or three tubes that can be operated by the current obtainable from the storage battery in the automobile.

The antenna for use with the portable receiver is one of the most important problems encountered in the installation of the set. Most any kind of a wire stretched from 10 to 50 feet above the ground will work though the more efficient the antenna system is the better the received programs will be.

A single strand of No. 12 or 14 bare copper wire having a total length of about 125 feet is recommended. The lead in is included in this length, as it is usually attached to a car top, a post or to the window sill of a cottage and being short it can be a continuation of the antenna wire. The ground lead, which is not included in this length, need not be longer than 20 or 30 feet. This makes the over-all length of the antenna 150 feet, which is the maximum that should be used with a regenerative receiver. An aerial slightly longer than that of the permanent installation at the home is suggested for the portable set because the latter is operated under adverse conditions and needs all of the energy that can be picked up.

There are any number of ways in which the antenna can be supported. One of the best is that of attaching one end of the wire high up in a tree and the other to the car top, tent or to a post. If a tree is used for holding up one end it is not necessary to climb the tree in order to fasten the wire. Tie a cord to one end of an insulator and the antenna wire to the other. A rock or a piece of metal can then be attached to free end of the cord and thrown over a limb of the tree. In this manner the antenna can be drawn up much higher than would be possible if one were to climb the tree.

If no trees are near the camp ground a 25 or 30 foot pole can be erected and held in place by two or three guy ropes. The antenna wire should be attached to an insulator at the top of such a mast before it is raised, thereby avoiding the necessity of a pulley or a slip ring. This is not as good a method of supporting the antenna as is the one mentioned above because the average height is not as great. This difficulty can be overcome to a certain extent by making the mast taller.

These are the two most common methods of putting up a portable aerial. There are others that are just as satisfactory. The important points to be remembered are to make the antenna as high as possible and keep it away from all surrounding objects. Generally an antenna with the greatest average height is best and the one that is not overtopped by trees, telephone poles or buildings brings in the stations with the greatest volume.

A good ground connection is next in importance to the antenna. A very good ground can be made by dropping a coil of 20 or 30 feet of copper wire into a well, a pond, or a stream. Another fairly good way to obtain a ground connection is to drive a rod into soft earth. If no water is handy or if no rod is available the ground terminal on the set can be connected to the metal frame of a car or to a duplicate of the antenna stretched a few feet above the earth.

If care is taken in the construction of the antenna a portable set should work almost as well as when it is connected to a permanent antenna. In some cases better reception is obtained with the portable outfit than with a set located in the city. A fairly good antenna 30 feet high in open country is better than one of twice that height in a thickly populated residential district in the city. At the very least the fun that one has in constructing and putting up a portable set makes it well worth the price and effort spent.

CHAIN PROMOTERS CHECKED

Promoters of the William Randolph Hearst plan for erecting a chain of broadcasting stations throughout the country have been warned by the Department of Commerce that they will do so at the risk of being unable to obtain wave lengths for them.

At the present time every class B wave length has already been assigned and there is a waiting list long enough to occupy all vacancies for some time to come.

Probably no difficulty will be experienced in obtaining a wave length for a station on the Pacific Coast, but at the present time there seems little chance for a wave length in either New York or Chicago.

CHORISTERS OF NOTE ON KSD SCHEDULE

Week's Offerings Will Include Concerts by Morning Choral Club and City Club Singers.

The series of programs this week at Station KSD of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, will appeal to every variety of musical taste, since in includes almost all types of both vocal and instrumental music. The vocal music will predominate, and the leading features will be the concert of the Morning Choral Club, St. Louis' celebrated women's chorus, which will be broadcast direct from the Odeon on Tuesday night, and a concert by the City Club Glee Club on Friday night, given in the main ballroom of the City Club. John Bohn will direct the latter concert, and the solo artists will be Raymond Koch, baritone, and John A. Patterson, violinist. Koch is making his first bow to his home town after an absence of more than a year, and will be warmly welcomed by both the audience which sees him and the vast invisible audience which has not heard him since his last radio appearance at the KSD studio almost two years ago.

The concert at the City Club will be followed by a studio program which has been arranged by Ethan Allen Taussig, and will be presented by Miss Blanch McGregor, contralto, and Clifton Edwards, tenor.

Monday evening the choir and soloists of St. Marcus' Church will give the sacred cantata, "The Paschal Victor," by Matthews, in the KSD studio, beginning at 10 o'clock, immediately following the Gardner Hour, in which the St. Louis Quartet will present a special program of request numbers. Soloists in the cantata presentation will be E. Hayn Parks, baritone; Miss Bertha Reck, soprano, and Frank Kulla, tenor. Elmer H. F. Ruhe, organist at St. Marcus' Church, will direct the performance, which will be a repetition of the Easter concert program given last week at the church.

The usual schedule of theater and dinner programs also will be broadcast, beginning Tuesday night with the dinner concert at the Missouri Athletic Association. David Silverman's orchestra at the West End Lyric Theater will be broadcast from that theater Wednesday night, and Saturday night Station KSD will send out the music from the Grand Central Theater and the dinner program from the City Club. The week's broadcasting will end with a studio program Saturday night at 10:30, given by J. J. O'Neil, violinist; Howard Wilhelmj, baritone, and Jack Devereaux, pianist.

Last week Station KSD began broadcasting the final scores of the major league ball games, and will continue this feature throughout the baseball season, giving the scores at the beginning or end of the first evening broadcasting period every night when it is on the air.

NEW ARRIVALS ON THE RADIO MART

A new combination rheostat and potentiometer has been developed by Maj. Herbert H. Frost to overcome the space problem which has confronted engineers in the construction of super-heretodyne and other receivers which use a number of tubes.

A rheostat and potentiometer are combined on one frame, with single hole mounting. This makes only one hole necessary through the panel for two units. The rheostat is of the vernier type and as the vernier rheostat and the potentiometer are both usually used on the tube or tubes that require the finest adjustment the control of both is localized in one spot. This also eliminates part of the crowding of apparatus on the front panel.

The construction of the unit is unique in that the rheostat winding is placed inside of the frame of bakelite with the vernier wire around the outside of the frame. The potentiometer winding is placed on the outside and all binding posts are grouped at the top to make wiring connections easy.

The contact between the center arm of the potentiometer and the stationary arm is made with a stiff phosphor bronze spring. This makes a wiping contact that eliminates a great deal of noise usually experienced from poor contact at this point.

At last a straight line frequency variable condenser has been built and placed on the market that can be purchased separately. Heretofore the only straight line frequency condensers that have been made and advertised as such have been incorporated in complete receivers. This new condenser, the Ultra-Lowloss, was designed by R. E. Lacault, chief engineer of the Phenix Radio Corporation. For some time radio manufacturers have admitted the advantages of the straight line frequency condensers but have contended that to manufacture condensers of this type would be so expensive that the retail price would make them prohibitive to the average experimenter. Besides this characteristic, which permits even tuning over the entire range of broadcast wave lengths and eliminates the bunching of stations on the short waves, the Ultra-Lowloss condenser has several distinctive features that are worthy of special mention. Instead of cutting the rotary and stationary plates of the condenser, which is the usual practice in the construction of most straight line wave length condensers, the rotary plates have been left in the ordinary semi-circular shape and the stationary plates have been cut in the form of a crescent that gives the resulting straight line frequency characteristic. This arrangement permits the condenser to retain the general form of variable condensers. Another good feature of the Ultra-Lowloss condenser is that the stationary plates are insulated and separated from the rotary plates by only one strip of insulation, thereby cutting down losses due to the dielectric to a negligible amount.

Insulation Efficiency.

When an aerial has been in use for a year it is advisable to change the entire insulation; because by that time the wire is corroded enough to cut the efficiency of the outfit considerably, and the insulators are so covered with soot and dust that they are leaking.

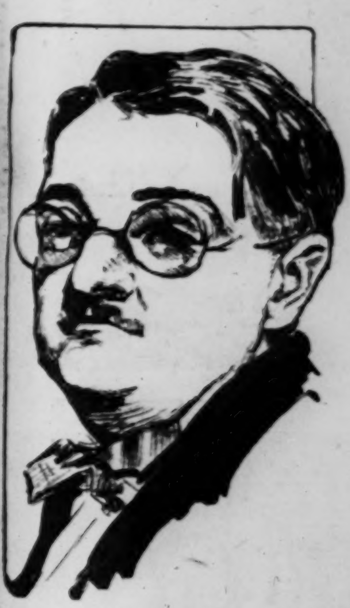
He recalled that recently he opened one of the "Elsie Dinsmore" books at a chapter in which her father met her in Philadelphia with his cabriolet. As they drove along Chestnut street, the very text itself began to shudder with righteous indignation. They were approaching a large building with brilliantly lighted portals, through which passed men and women in evening dress.

"What is it?" trembled Elsie.

"Darling," answered her father, shielding her in his arms from the scabrous spectacle, "it's a theater!"

Play Jury as Alternative.

BOTH visitors were discussing political censorship as an imminent peril of the theater. Both declared that the enactment of such an institution in New York State alone—New York City being the theatrical metropolis of America—would spell the end of drama in the United States. Mr. Woollcott applauded the play jury system recently established in New York as an elastic medium for reflecting the constant oscillations of public taste. Mr. Hamilton described it as a sop thrown to the reformers, and hoped, a bit dismally, that it would work.



ALEXANDER WOOLLCOTT.

Under this system, it may be explained, there is a list of about 300 names of more or less prominent men or women. When a sufficient number of complaints is made against any theatrical production, the authorities draw 12 names from a box, and instruct those chosen—they are unaware of one another's identity—to attend the play. If nine of them agree that it is unfit for public presentation, the Actors' Equity Association has pledged itself to close the production. If nine of the 12 agree on modifications, these are made. Of three dramas recently denounced the jury approved two, "Desire Under the Elms" and "They Knew What They Wanted," and caused some alterations of language in "What Price Glory?"

Public Taste Revolves in Cycles.

Mr. Woollcott opposed political censorship on the ground that it would crystallize, under fixed and rigid laws, control of a phenomenon which varies from decade to decade, namely, public taste. For instance, the license permitted to Congreve has, in the cycle of 230 years, become acceptable in New York, where two of his comedies are now being performed with very little emendation. New York, said the critic, has become very like "the loose and laughing city of London which kicked the Puritans out during the Restoration."

In 1891, he continued, Stephen Crane wrote a story of slum life called "Maggie, a Girl of the Streets." Several publishers to whom he submitted the manuscript swooned, and even his patron, William Dean Howells, shivered violently. But after several years, when subsequent works had made Crane famous, it became possible to publish "Maggie," though with the vowels excised from its "hells" and "damns"—like coughing behind the hand. MUSIC AND THE STAGE

By Richard L. Stokes

Clayton Hamilton and Alexander Woollcott Agree That Political Censorship Would Spell End of the Drama.

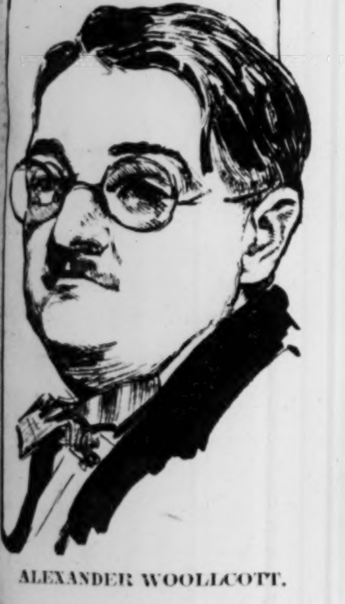
WHILE lecturing in this city last week, Mr. Clayton Hamilton related that Cecil de Mille once produced a film in which one of the captions, inclosed in quotation marks, was as follows: "He that is without sin among you, let him first cast a stone at her." The Board of Censors of the State of Pennsylvania ordered the words deleted, on the ground that they were immoral. De Mille replied that they were cited from an Apostle named John, who alleged that they had been spoken by Jesus Christ. Nevertheless, retorted the censors, the sentiment was improper, and could not be paraded on any screen in Pennsylvania. "Jesus Christ," commented Mr. Hamilton bitterly, "was too obscene for these gentlemen."

It happened that Mr. Alexander Woollcott, the charming and witty drama critic of the New York Sun, also lectured here during the week. He recalled that recently he opened one of the "Elsie Dinsmore" books at a chapter in which her father met her in Philadelphia with his cabriolet. As they drove along Chestnut street, the very text itself began to shudder with righteous indignation. They were approaching a large building with brilliantly lighted portals, through which passed men and women in evening dress.

"What is it?" trembled Elsie. "Darling," answered her father, shielding her in his arms from the scabrous spectacle, "it's a theater!"

Play Jury as Alternative.

BOTH visitors were discussing political censorship as an imminent peril of the theater. Both declared that the enactment of such an institution in New York State alone—New York City being the theatrical metropolis of America—would spell the end of drama in the United States. Mr. Woollcott applauded the play jury system recently established in New York as an elastic medium for reflecting the constant oscillations of public taste. Mr. Hamilton described it as a sop thrown to the reformers, and hoped, a bit dismally, that it would work.



ALEXANDER WOOLLCOTT.

Under this system, it may be explained, there is a list of about 300 names of more or less prominent men or women. When a sufficient number of complaints is made against any theatrical production, the authorities draw 12 names from a box, and instruct those chosen—they are unaware of one another's identity—to attend the play. Public Taste Revolves in Cycles.

Mr. Woollcott opposed political censorship on the ground that it would crystallize, under fixed and rigid laws, control of a phenomenon which varies from decade to decade, namely, public taste. For instance, the license permitted to Congreve has, in the cycle of 230 years, become acceptable in New York, where two of his comedies are now being performed with very little emendation. But after several years, when subsequent works had made Crane famous, it became possible to publish "Maggie," though with the vowels excised from its "hells" and "damns"—like coughing behind the hand. In the interval public taste had so stupefyingly changed that Mr. Sumner himself scarcely noticed the book.

"No Play Ever Hurt Anybody."

THE speaker declared the play jury to be a good thing, because it is composed of what he calls "adult people." He says there are only two kinds of people, not the good and the bad, but the adult and the underdeveloped. He regards the device as a sort of shock absorber, designed to take up the onsets of the secret libertines, male and female, the stuffy pedants and the illiterate and tasteless fanatics.

"I personally am convinced," said Mr. Woollcott, "that no play ever hurt anybody. I can't imagine any vocabulary or erotic situation on the stage which could possibly disturb me. But there are two kinds of persons who are disturbed, and who kick up all the ructions.

"The first group consists of those who have subconsciously inherited the Puritan prejudices of Elsie Dinsmore and her father against the theater as such, because people have a good time in it. They must have a special feeling that the theater is infamous per se, or else they would proceed with equal fury against the art

OWING to the unusual success of her recital last year at the Wednesday Club, Miss Alice Gentle, one of the most popular of "Carmens," has been engaged as soloist for the season's closing concert of the Morning Choral Club, which will be held Tuesday night at the Odeon. The program follows:

1. (a) "Salutation" —Samuel R. Gaines
   (b) "Love's Spring Song" —Massenet
   (Morning Choral Club.)
2. Aria, "Plus grand dans son obscurite" ....Gounod
   (Miss Gentle.)
3. (a) "Sleeping Flowers" —Clarence Dickinson
   (b) "A Garden Courtship" —H. Waldo Warner
   (Morning Choral Club.)
4. (a) "L'heure silencieuse" .Staub
   (b) "Chinese Love Song" —Rebikoff
   (c) "Doll's Cradle Song" —Moussorgsky
   (d) "Hopak" ......Moussorgsky
4. Aria, "Vissi d'arte," from "La Tosca" ....Puccini
   (Miss Gentle.)
5. (a) "Perfect Hour."
   (b) "Sea Fairies" —Elizabeth Cook
   (Morning Choral Club, assisted by Miss Lavinia Gauen and Mrs. C. N. Hurst.)
6. (a) "Do Not Go, My Love" —Hageman
   (b) "A Little Page's Story" —Wintter Watts
   (c) "Hallelujah" ......Hummell
   (Miss Gentle.)
7. (a) "Silent Swaying" ..Chadwick
   (b) "The Fairy Pipes" —A. Herbert Brewer
   (Morning Choral Club, assisted by Mrs. O. J. Fickeisen.)

The women's chorus will be directed by Charles Galloway and will wear for the first time a special costume, a semiclassic robe of ivory crepe, designed by Mrs. Hazel Ewald. A green cyclorama will be another innovation.

City Club's Glee Concert.

THE first concert of the Glee Club of the City Club will be given Friday evening under the direction of John Bohn. The soloists will be Raymund Koch, baritone, formerly of this city; and Mrs. John A. Patterson, violinist. Among the choral numbers will be "Wayfaring Men," by Jungst; "Swing Along," by Marion Cook; "The Long Day Closes," Sullivan; and "Drake's Drum," Coleridge-Taylor. Mr. Koch's principal offering will be the Prologue to "I'Pagliacci."

Phillip Gordon, said to be a pupil of Joseffy and Dohnanyi, will give daily recitals this week at Vandervoort Hall, beginning today at 12:30 p. m. He will play some of his numbers on a piano said to have been used by Jennie Lind during her St. Louis visit in 1851. The Apollo Club will hold its annual dinner at 7 o'clock tomorrow evening at Hotel Jefferson. Miss Ethelynde Smith of Portland, Me., will give a song recital Thursday evening at the Missouri School for the Blind.

At 3 o'clock this afternoon, in Graham Memorial Chapel, Charles Galloway will give the seventh of his series of organ recitals, in connection with the extension course of Washington University. The program will be as follows: "Christus Resurrexit," Ravanello; "Cristo Trionfante," Yon; Sonata No. 4, Mendelssohn; "Scherzetto," Vierne; "Vision," Torjussen, and "Marche d'Ariane," Guilmant.

The Theatrical Calendar

AMERICAN—Beginning tomorrow night, a revival of "The Rivals," a comedy by Richard Brinsley Sheridan, which was first presented at Covent Garden, London, in 1775. The present cast consists of Mrs. Minnie Maddern Fiske, Chauncey Olcott, Thomas A. Wise, James T. Powers, Lola Fisher, Lotus Robb, Marie Carroll, Kenneth Thomson, Fred Eric, Gerald Rogers, George Tawde and Herbert Belmore.

SHUBERT-JEFFERSON—Fourth week of Anne Nichols' portentous comedy, "Abie's Irish Rose."

EMPRESS—The Woodward Players in Gilbert Emery's "Tarnish," seen earlier this year at the Shubert-Jefferson.

ORPHEUM—Frances White, musical comedy star, in childhood impersonations; Joseph E. Howard, composer, and a company of 25; Ben Welsh, character comedian; Al Herman, blackface comic; the Northwestern Mounted Police Band, and three other acts. Next week, Ted Lewis and his jazz band.

RIALTO—"Alabama Land," a miniature musical comedy; Tom Smith, monologist; a humorous turn, "The Meanest Man in the World;" Achilles and Newman, and others. Hughie Clark heads the new bill starting Thursday.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE—George Lovett in a mystery act; "The Seven Flashes," a school comedy; a troupe of Chinese jugglers, and five other skits. The photoplay is "Let Women Alone," with Pat O'Malley.

GARRICK—"The Merrymakers."

LIBERTY MUSIC HALL—"Circus Days."

Shaw Revival Launches New Guild Theater

Lionel Atwill and Helen Hayes Fare Not Too Well in Title Roles of "Caesar and Cleopatra."

By HEYWOOD BROUN,
Drama Critic of the New York World.

NEW YORK, April 18.

FOR many years I have been shouting that "Caesar and Cleopatra" should be done in New York again. Monday night it was produced as the first offering of the new Guild Theater. Calvin Coolidge pressed a button in Washington; upon the stage a bell rang and the curtain rose. Mr. Coolidge should have been asked to be even more kind, and to keep his finger on that button, for there were stretches when the bell did not ring. Or at any rate it merely tinkled.

There is in my mind the suspicion that "Caesar and Cleopatra" is not quite up to my lofty memories. It isn't that time has ravaged it so much as that Shaw has gone far beyond this fine play in later efforts. The man who wrote "Saint Joan" can now condescend a little to the author of "Caesar and Cleopatra."

Imaginative Staging.

OFTEN the play flashed with wit, and it is again and again an exalted super-melodrama in the creation of tingling excitement. Few moments of the theater are as thrilling as the final scene of the first act, when Caesar's legions greet their General and Cleopatra cowers at the discovery of her protector.

This, too, was the most imaginative piece of staging brought to the play. The sight of the Egyptians fleeing before the trumpet calls of the invader is an achievement of which the Guild may well be proud. But the organization ought to be a little perturbed concerning much which happened. It is a good production, but a far distance short of ideal.

Whether or not "Caesar and Cleopatra" is a great play, I have no doubt in my mind that it contains two of the finest roles ever fattened up for actor and actress. Lionel Atwill is a pretty good Caesar. Helen Hayes is a competent Cleopafra. And that leaves a great deal of territory lying about loose and uninhabited.

Mars Speech to Sphinx.

FROM my point of view I should have preferred a Caesar slightly more humorous and a Cleopatra less so. Mr. Atwill gained in proficiency as the play proceeded and played some scenes very well indeed, but he botched most fearfully the speech to the Sphinx.

As a matter of fact, I don't think this is a speech at all. It does not fall into the tradition of a Shaksperian soliloquy. Rather, the man from Rome is thinking out loud. He poetizes a bit, but that is not a mood which sits altogether easily upon his temperament, and so Shaw's Caesar jokes with himself a little as he goes along. Indeed, his attitude toward the Sphinx is very like that which might be expected from Mr. Shaw if he chanced to wander under the moon and stumble over a stray Queen of Egypt. Atwill made this all a declamation. This must be wrong.

Helen Hayes is probably the most carefully trained and expert of all the younger actresses in America, but I wish she would forget some of her tricks. Her Cleopatra is at least a half-sister of the little girl in "Clarence," who would not wash her face. Somebody in authority ought to tell Miss Hayes every night, "Don't be as cute as you can."

One Performance Admirable.

ONLY one member of the cast seemed to me to elbow perfection closely. Britannus probably will never be played very much better than the part was taken by Henry Travers. Helen Westley got all the broad humor of Ftatateeta in the proceedings, but not enough of the menace. Schuyler Ladd was a gorgeous figure as Apollodorus, but he forgot his lines.

Indeed, there was much slipshoddery in the first-night performance. This should be dealt with kindly. After all, the newness of the theater as well as of the night, must have set all concerned on edge. A theater building has to find itself. After the paint has dried some subtle emanation from many a fine performance has to mellow the ribs and sides of the auditorium. It is good if there are ghosts about. These wraiths of players may well sound music in the air more inspiring and silver than any which will ever come to life from the touch of Calvin Coolidge's fingers.

The card inclosed in the program said: "Calvin Coolidge, President of the United States, has graciously-museum and the public library. These persons do not really wish to reform the theater, but to close it, as the Puritans did in Cromwell's day.

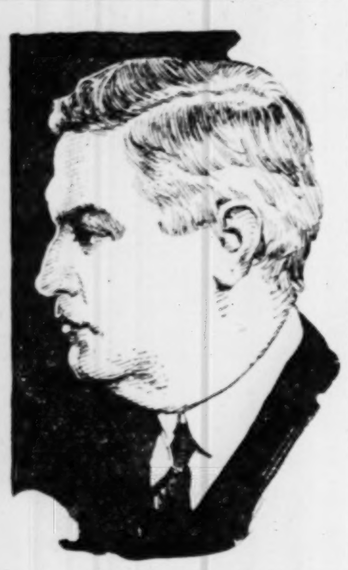
"The second group consists of persons in the horrible pathological condition of kettles with the lids clamped down, which hiss and rattle and make strange noises. They are terribly excited, and haven't the slightest idea what is the matter with them. When a worthy spinster clamors against the obscenities of the stage, you can't tell her, much as you would like to, that she is actuated by a specific neurosis. If the agitation of these afflicted people ever got full reign we should have laws for the theater like those which bind the cinema hand and foot in Pennsylvania."



CLAYTON HAMILTON.

Mania for Forbidding Things.

IF Mr. Hamilton is less sanguine regarding the future, it is because, in his travels to and fro in the land, he has become impressed by what he calls the dreadful national mania for stopping things by legislation. Prohibition, to him, is the most conspicuous outrage, but he points out that there are laws against cigarettes in Utah, against evolution in Tennessee, and against playing cards in Texas. In Tennessee he was many times a criminal before he discovered the existence of a statute against tipping, on pain of a fine of from $25 to $100 or so many days in jail. He was arrested in Ogden, Utah, a year ago for lighting a cigarette on the street, and escaped a cell only when he proved by his ticket that he was a passenger on a transcontinental train, had dismounted to stretch his legs during a 20-minute stop, and intended to get out of the State as fast as the locomotive could propel him.

"People unaware of these things," he declared, "cannot appreciate how perilously near is the possibility of political censorship of the theater. Now, as editor of the Goldwyn studios, I became familiar with the workings of political censorship as applied to the movies. That of Pennsylvania is worst, but Ohio is almost as bad. In two years I supervised 50 pictures — harmless, goody-goody stuff, scarcely worth seeing—and not a single one got past the Pennsylvania censors without mutilations and changes of titles. It was bedlam. Some caption as innocuous as 'The grass is green' would be cut out on the ground that it was obscene.

"In the present state of the films, it is impossible to tell any of the great stories of history, such as 'Hamlet,' 'Macbeth,' 'Othello,' Dante's 'Divine Comedy' or the Greek dramas. You may keep the title of a masterpiece, but the story must be debased to the level of a 6-year-old mind. Kipling's 'Without Benefit of Clergy' was filmed under that name, but it was necessary to have the hero and heroine married in the first reel."

"Misguided Managers" Blamed.

IF similar control were imposed on the theater, it would become as childish as the cinema is. Authors like myself quit writing for the screen because we grew tired of writing for the six-year-old mind. If the theater were like that, we should stop writing plays. Under censorship, it would be impossible to produce Shakspeare, Ibsen or Shaw, all of whom, to the censorial mind, are immoral. The strange fact is that the movie censors pass lots of smutty stuff; what they destroy is anything serious and adult. In the same way, would-be reformers of the stage never interfere with burlesque or musical comedies with naked women. They reserve their hatred for plays with ideas.

"Part of the danger is due to misguided managers, principally David Belasco, who admits he lost half a million dollars in the Warfield production of 'The Merchant of Venice,' and who is trying to get his money back through two disreputable plays, 'The Harem' and 'Ladies of the Evening.' You will ask if the public shouldn't be defended against plays which are really prurient. I say yes—but under the common law against the exhibition of obscenity. The authorities can arrest everyone concerned and close the show."

Mrs. Fiske's Idea of Charm.

ACCORDING to the writer's view, the deadly fault of the stage today—at least in so far as it is represented here in the hinterland—is not ungodliness but stupidity. The censors who insist on the former are as mistaken in their diagnosis as was Mrs. Fiske, in an anecdote related by Mr. Woollcott. The actress was taking a train from the Grand Central Station, and her cousin, Miss Emily Stevens, went to see her off. The gatekeeper refused to let Miss Stevens through, as she had no ticket.

Mrs. Fiske swept aside eight or nine of the veils in which she swathes herself in the mistaken hope of avoiding public recognition, thrust forth a red and rocky jaw, brandished her lorgnette alarmingly, and demanded to know, in her redoubtable voice whether it could really be true that her own cousin was forbidden to see her off on a train. The terrified gateman recoiled, throwing up an arm to protect himself against that fearsome apparition, and feebly waved the pair through the portals.

"Now," remarked Mrs. Fiske complacently to her companion, "you see what can be accomplished with a little personal charm."

German Emigration Drops.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

BERLIN, April 1.—Stabilization of currency has acted as a check on German emigration. During 1923 Germans who left to establish homes in other parts of the world numbered 115,000, while in 1924 the number dropped to 57,000. North America still is the favorite destination of the emigrants.

ly consented to honor the Theater Guild by opening the new Guild Theater." To me this was a Kiwanis note and estranging. I mean no disrespect to the President of the United States when I say that in my opinion it is not within his power graciously to honor Bernard Shaw. Later things may be different, but last night there was too much Calvin and not enough Bernard in the air.

Revival of "The Mikado."

IT is with some difficulty that I can divest myself of my several states of mind about "Caesar and Cleopatra" long enough to go back to "The Mikado," which the Shuberts presented two nights before, but if I don't talk about "The Mikado" now I never will, and it is a production deeply deserving of both discussion and praise.

There is obviously more than meets the eye in the infrequency with which Gilbert and Sullivan revivals are made, because surely their public is at all times fretfully calling for them, and one might think that any man's fortune was under his hand by the simple process of keeping a Gilbert and Sullivan theater going here all the time.

But fortune-hunters are much too smart for us to believe in their mere neglect. There is some other reason, and in spite of our friendliness towards this present revival, we believe it lets that reason out of the bag. Gilbert and Sullivan require the virtues of an age of generalization, which we lost when we began to specialize.

Miss Namara and Lupino Lane.

THERE is, in this "Mikado," a Yum-Yum whose voice is pure gold, when she opens her mouth and lets it out. But she is all too obviously the prima donna. Her airs would do well enough in the places where ordinarily her voice would take her, and, after all, Marguerite Namara, this lady who sings Yum-Yum right out of Gilbert and Sullivan, has done her bit at the Paris Opera Comique. But she does specialize on arias, and, however charmingly she sings "The Moon and I," she is the victim of the conventions of opera when she isn't singing.

Lupino Lane, the Lord High Executioner, has probably the highest all-round average of the present cast, because he can dance, speak, tumble and roll with an immense humor and vitality. But he cannot twist his tongue around the chatter song in the first act. Heaven forbid that we should ever pine to exchange Lupino Lane for Jefferson de Angelis as the Lord High Executioner, but De Angelis did at least know how to sing his Sullivan, at whatever pace.

It is a little ungracious to go carping straight through the "Mikado's" cast, since, after all, the net result of them is to provide a great deal of satisfaction. But it is certainly true that to find one singer-actor-dancer who is ample for the Gilbert and Sullivan demands it to do a great deal, to say nothing of finding a whole cast.

"Princess Ida," Too.

THERE is now on view on the Broadway boards another music play which no one of discernment will dare to miss. "Princess Ida," in revival, comes to the Shubert for the most part a rollicking and altogether lovely comic opera.

There are very good reasons. It is of the best and cheeriest by Gilbert and Sullivan, and singing its title role is Miss Tessa Kosta, one of the little group of American prima donnas who measure up. Miss Kosta Tuesday night sang her numbers into bursts of applause, such as have been heard quite seldom in the current season of musical comedy and operetta. At the conclusion of the second act in which Cyril (Scott Welsh) sang the beautiful "Kiss Me, Kiss Me" there were a half dozen curtain calls for the principals and the entire company, and at the end of the final curtain, when the audiences attending the premieres of most of our home-made musical comedies are stepping into their taxicabs, there was a determined drive for encores and bows.

Remarkable Choral Singing.

BUT it ought not to be inferred that "Princess Ida" is a one-woman show. Much as the action of the piece hinges upon the activities of the audacious and clever head of the Castle Adamant, who is Miss Kosta, there is opportunity for much grand gesturing and melody-making by such interested parties as the masquerading Prince Florian, sung by Bertram Peacock; Lady Psyche, sung by the gifted Miss Virginia O'Brien; Lady Blanche, by Bernice Mershon, and King Gama, the abused one, himself, acted by Robinson Newbold.

Perhaps the most striking effect of the production is gained by the remarkable ensemble work, the tremendous energy injected into the glowing and blooming choruses of the various song numbers. In orchestration and in vocal grouping a fine job has been done. I do not know of a music play in New York which presents such vigorous and sweeping climaxes, with the exception of "The Student Prince."

Those little moments of satirical monkeying which brighten the Gilbert and Sullivan books and send waves of laughter over their audience even in the midst of the most difficult of their musical passages are spoken with gusto and good taste. As a matter of fact, everyone seemed to be having a good time, and I may speak with authority for at least one. I thought it was simply grand.

Score by George Gershwin.

A MUSICAL comedy called "Tell Me More," presented Monday night at the Gaiety, has the merit of a score by George Gershwin and an entirely new idea in plots, based on the Cinderella motive (writ sarkastik, that!).

Kenneth Dennison, the handsome polo player, meets Peggy Van de Leur, the beautiful shop girl, at the Three Arts Ball and falls in love with her mouth and nose, which is the best he could do at the moment, she being masked. Then he induces her to remove the mask, after which he falls in love with her eyes. This constitutes a quorum, and they sing a love duet, "Tell Me More"—whence the title.

The second act takes place at a summer resort, in order to give the chorus men a chance to wear their white flannels. Peggy and Kenneth have a falling out for two reasons, one being that there would not be any second act if they didn't.

The burder of the comedy falls upon Andrew Tombes, Lou Holtz and Emma Haig. Early in the first act a joke is cracked, going like this: "I'm a little stiff from bowling." "I don't care where you're from." But at latest reports, responsibility for this had not been placed, and it would not be fair to blame Messrs. Tombes or Holtz or Miss Haig, who were consistently amusing.

Phyllis Cleveland and Alexander Gray, as Peggy and Kenneth, were handsome enough and sang well enough to qualify for the Hero and Heroines' Union.

George Gershwin has composed a George Gershwin score, which may as well be catalogued as jazzily tuneful. The jazz bands in the night clubs will be playing the tunes shortly.

ANNIVERSARY OF GILBERT AND SULLIVAN OPERETTA

The present year marks the fiftieth anniversary of the arrival of a new force on the musical stage, for the first successful Gilbert and Sullivan operetta, "Trial by Jury," was produced March 25, 1875, at the Royalty Theater in London. Many revivals of the famous collaborations are taking place, and it is pointed out by the Municipal Theater that it will do its bit this summer with productions of "Ruddigore" and "H. M. S. Pinafore."

This organization, during its opening season in 1919, gave a presentation of "The Mikado," which was repeated the next summer and reinforced by "The Gondoliers." It has also produced "The Yeoman of the Guard" and "Pirates of Penzance."

ECZEMA
Also called Tetter, Salt Rheum, Pruritus, Milk Crust, Water Poison, Weeping Skin, etc.
I believe eczema can be cured to stay. I mean just what I say: C-U-R-E-D and NOT merely patched up to return again. Remember, I make this statement after handling over half a million cases of eczema and devoting over 20 years of my life to its treatment. I don't care what you have used, nor how many doctors have told you that you could not be cured; all I ask is just a chance to prove my claims. Don't be discouraged but write me TODAY and I will send you a FREE TRIAL of mild, soothing, guaranteed treatment that will surely convince you as it has me. If you are disgusted and discouraged just give me one chance to prove my claims. By writing me today I believe you will enjoy more real comfort than you really thought this world held for you. Just try it, and I feel sure you will agree with me.

CHURCHES TO OBSERVE CHILDREN'S WEEK

Institute for Parents and Teachers Tomorrow at Central Y. W. C. A.

A city-wide institute for parents, teachers and leaders in all children's activities will be held at the Central Y. W. C. A., Fourteenth and Locust streets, from 4:45 to 9:30 p. m. tomorrow as the opening event of Children's week, which will be observed by all churches in the city in the interest of promoting religious education for children.

During the remainder of the week, parent-teacher meetings will be held by the various individual churches and parties and story-telling hours arranged for children of various age groups.

Among the speakers for tomorrow's institute will be Dr. W. C. Timmons, who will deliver an address on "The Conservation of Our Greatest Wealth;" Dr. George B. Mangold and Miss Harriet Walker. After a banquet, which will be given at 6:15, special entertainment features for children will be presented, including a dramatized version of the stody, "The Artist Who Forgot Four Colors."

In addition to the story telling hours being arranged by the churches, the Story Tellers' League is planning to hold story hours daily through the week at some 50 centers in the neighborhoods of public schools where children may assemble after school hours. More than 100 persons, it is expected, will be enlisted to carry on this program.

The week's activities will close with a mass meeting of parents, teachers and religious workers at the Kingshighway Presbyterian Church, Kingshighway and Cabanne avenue, at 2:30 p. m. next Sunday. A special music program has been arranged and speakers will include the Rev. Dr. W. C. Bitting and Rabbi Leon Harrison.

COAST GUARD ASKED TO DO MANY ODD JOBS

Multitude of Small Duties Efficiently Performed by the Service.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—Annually the coast guard is writing new and thrilling chapters of marine history by its protection of life at sea and its war on rum runners, but between times it also is attending successfully to a multitude of small duties about which the public hears nothing.

One of the most unusual requests ever received was from the head of a religious cult for specimens of "the purest sands of the sea," wanted to heal bodily and spiritual ills. A station in the vicinity of Cape Hatteras, without passing on the curative qualities, has agreed to supply pure sea sand as requested.

The Department of Agriculture called upon the Coast Guard to locate a place suitable for bee culture, under prescribed conditions, and free from objectionable vegetation. A propitious spot was found near Indian River Inlet, on the Delaware coast. Samples of marine growths, "singing sands" and other objects used in scientific study have been gathered, upon request, by the Coast Guard. Many times it has wrestled with the question, "What is the most dangerous part of the coast?" propounded by some curious correspondent.

Messages in bottles washed up on the beaches are coming to be written into the logs of Coast Guard stations with progressing frequency. Recently one was picked up in a whisky bottle, the writer of the communication saying that he had been shanghaied aboard a rum craft and was being held against his will on Rum Row.

Restoring lost children to their parents, protecting wrecked property, fighting forest fires, aiding children to get to school through coastal storm-stricken regions and assisting surveying parties, all are among the odd jobs in which the Coast Guard has held a major role.

101 RANCH SHOW TO TAKE TO ROAD AGAIN AFTER 8 YEARS

Troupe of 1400 Persons to Show at Grand and Market May 1, 2 and 3.

After a lay-off of eight years, the Miller Brothers of 101 Ranch, Ok., are taking the road again with their Wild West show, which will be exhibited at Market street and Grand boulevard on May 1, 2 and 3.

In the troupe are said to be 1400 persons, including 300 Indians. Ezra Meeker, sole survival of the Oregon Trail hegira, is one of the principals. There will be a street parade on the morning of May 1. The show is entitled "101 Ranch Real Wild West and Great Far East."

'GAS' STATIONS FOR GERMANY

Nation Turning to American Plan of Service.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

BERLIN, April 1.—American wayside gasoline stations soon will be found along German highways, and it probably will not be long before the free air sign also will appear.

Gasoline today is served from shops in the clumsiest sort of way, but the increase in motor traffic is turning German eyes toward the quick and economical methods so generally used in the United States, and trade journals are showing many pictures of model stations along American highways. As a result a German firm has bought a number of American gasoline service station pumps and will install them.

Thousands Delighted
Read these letters from people who bought our Butterfly Bush last spring—"The Butterfly Bush is the most beautiful plant I have ever seen. In bloom all summer. Best plant in our garden."—Chas. W. LaBreton, McKeesport, Pa. "We have two of your Butterfly Bushes. They have bloomed all the year and are now the prettiest I have ever seen in the way of flowers. We would not take anything for them."—W. D. Allison, Jasper, Ala. "I am delighted with my Butterfly Bush. There is nothing in my garden any lovelier and that is saying a great deal because I have everything from daffodils in the Spring to Chrysanthemums in the Fall."—Mrs. McCulla, Waukegan, Ill. "The 5 Butterfly Bushes I got of you last Spring have proved a joy to us and to the friends to whom I gave them."—Mrs. Geo. Alfa, Peoria Ill. "My Butterfly Bush is 3ft. high and produced 75 blooms. If I could not get another, you could not buy this one for 10 times what it cost me."—Mrs. Edward M. Bailey, Melbourne, Mo. "The Butterfly Bush is certainly a wonder for it bloomed all summer clear until late this Fall, just as you said it would."—Mrs. Wm. Schlemsher, E. St. Louis, Ill.

AMERICANS INVADE ARGENTINA

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

BUENOS AIRES, March 25.—American tourists are discovering South America. More of them have visited Buenos Aires this season than ever before, three large parties having arrived during carnival week, while every boat from the United States the last three months has brought smaller groups. One party numbered nearly 400, mostly from the middle west, and came on the first American tourist ship that has ever visited this port.

The North American visitors entered into the spirit of the carnival celebration in a manner described by the newspapers as adding a new and picturesque note to the festivities, and contributing much to their gaiety. Many hired automobiles and joined the carnival parades, well armed with multi-colored serpentines to throw at the crowds, while others attended the numerous balls and learned how the Argentine tango is really danced. It is estimated that the three parties left more than $250,000 freely spent American dollars behind them.

Weighs 314 Pounds---Only 35 Years Old

Could Hardly Walk Due to Gas on Stomach

"I am 35 years old, weight 314 pounds and suffered terribly with gas and cramps. Could not walk four blocks without suffering pains in my right side. After taking one bottle Adlerika I was entirely relieved of the cramps and of the gas on the stomach." (Signed) Leo Bonees.

Intestinal Evacuant

There is now offered to the public a liquid preparation which is not only a wonderfully effective and QUICK intestinal evacuant, but which also seems to stimulate the glands of the intestinal tract and to cause expulsion of flatus (GAS). This preparation, known as Adlerika, is a valuable agent for the purpose of cleansing the bowels of matter which has been in the system a long time and which other less effective means have been unable to dislodge. It is often astonishing the great amount of matter Adlerika draws from the intestinal canal—even right after a natural movement it sometimes brings out unsuspected quantities of additional matter. Many times it brings out much GAS, thus relieving pressure in the abdomen. Adlerika is especially valuable when PROMPT action is necessary or to encourage the elimination of metabolic poisons through the bowel.

In slight disorders, such as occasional constipation or gas on the stomach and headache (when due to bowel inaction), a single spoonful of Adlerika often produces surprising and gratifying results. In cases of obstinate constipation or stomach trouble, if Adlerika does not bring relief in 24 to 36 hours the advice of a reputable physician should be secured.

Reports from Physicians

"I congratulate you on the good effect from Adlerika since I prescribed it." (Signed) Dr. L. Langlois.

"Adlerika is the best in my entire 37 years' experience." (Signed) Dr. G. Eggers.

"I prescribed Adlerika with highly satisfactory results." (Signed) Dr. A. C. C. (Name given on request.)

"I can't get along without Adlerika." (Signed) Dr. W. H. Bernhart.

J. E. Puckett (a user of Adlerika) writes: "After taking Adlerika feel better than for 20 years. Haven't language to express the impurities eliminated from my system."

Adlerika is a big surprise to people who have used only ordinary bowel and stomach medicines because of its REAL and QUICK action. Sold by leading druggists everywhere. In St. Louis by Wolff-Wilson Drug Co. and Enderle Drug Co.

GRAY HAIR IS EASILY DARKENED

Tells How She Did It With a Home-Made Remedy.

Mrs. E. H. Boots, a well-known resident of Buchanan County, Ia., who darkened her gray hair, made the following statement:

"Any lady or gentleman can darken their gray or faded hair, and look twenty years younger with this simple remedy, which they can mix at home. To half a pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, one small box of Barbo Compound and ¼ ounce of glycerine. These ingredients can be purchased at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair every other day until the gray hair is darkened sufficiently. It does not color the scalp, is not greasy and does not rub off. It will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger."

SPIRIT OF GOLDEN RULE IS GAINING IN U. S. INDUSTRY

Relations Between Employers and Employes More Harmonious, Report to Conference in Stockholm Will State.

ADVANCES MADE IN SAFETY AND HEALTH

Delegates Representing Churches in Almost Every Part of World to Gather in Sweden in August.

NEW YORK, April 18.—The industrial situation in the United States, both a present and reviewed over a period of years, shows undoubted progress in the direction of more harmonious relations between capital and labor, according to a report that will be submitted by the American Section of the Universal Christian Conference on Life and Work at the Conference which will bring together at Stockholm, Sweden, from Aug. 19 to 30, delegates representing Protestant and Eastern Orthodox Churches in almost every part of the world.

The report, which represents a thorough study into the causes of industrial disturbances and the remedies proposed, has been in preparation for more than a year by the Commission on Economic and Industrial Problems of the American Section, headed by Dean Shailer Mathews of Chicago University. Among the members of this Commission are the Rev. Worth M. Tippy, Secretary of the Commission on Social Service of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ, Prof. Alva W. Taylor, The Rev. F. Ernest Johnson, John P. Frey, Sherwood Eddy, Raymond Robbins, Prof. Graham Taylor, Mrs. Mary K. Simkhovitch, Samuel Mather, Kirby Page, Bishop Francis J. McConnell, George Foster Peabody and Bishop Robert E. Jones.

Golden Rule Spirit Gaining.

Labor organizations have greatly increased in number and power in the United States. There have been marked advances in wages, living conditiosn, education, safety and health of workers, and the spirit of the Golden Rule is gradually entering into industrial relationships, the report declares. Reviewing the position of labor in various industries, it is pointed out that:

In mning it is not legal in most states to work over eight hours a day, and a network of legal and union safeguards to life and health and for the protection of children and women have grown up.

The same is true of the railroads, where, due to organization and legislation and to a more considerate policy of administration, the entire service has been lifted within a generation as to hours, wages, home life, moral standards and participation in control. This is also true in most industries.

Eight States now have the eight-hour law.

Minimum Wage Legislation.

Fourteen States have minimum wage legislation for women. Most States prohibit the labor of children in nonagricultural pursuits up to 14, and surround minors up to 16, 18 and 21 with protective restrictions as to hours, night work, educational requirements, health, safety and morals. The Federal laws of 1916 and 1919 set a minimum standard of 14 for entrance into factories, a higher age in certain industries, and an eight-hour day, a 48-hour week and prohibition of night work between 14 and 16.

The steel industry has developed stability and phenomenal achievements in safety, health, education and intelligent community organization.

"Similar advances," the report goes on to say, "have been made in most industries in the matter of safety appliances on moving machinery, lighting, air space, sanitary provisions, and fire hazards. The burden of accidents no longer falls exclusively upon the worker and his family, and increasingly strong industries provide as a part of the system not only against accident, but for sickness and through group insurance, against death. One entire industry, the men's garment industry, has introduced a mutual scheme of unemployment insurance, and a number of individual concerns are doing the same, while the States of Wisconsin and Massachusetts are considering State systems of unemployment insurance.

Women's Labor Organizations.

"The participation of women in industry was emphasized, though not greatly accelerated by the war, and women's labor organizations are now among the potent factors in the labor movement. The influence of women upon industrial standards has been greatly augmented by their political enfranchisement. One of the conspicuous recent evidences of this new force in American affairs, is the support by the great national organizations of women of the newly proposed child labor amendment to the Federal Constitution. Favorable action has at last been secured on the part of Congress, and if the amendment is ratified by the States the way will be open for control by statute and finally the abolition of this long continued evil. In the development of protective legislation for the workers women have also played an influential part.

"In general it must be said that American industry is now characterized by an increased interest in 'morals' and by behaviour on the part of employers which indicates a growing appreciation of the human factor in industrial relations, and the principle of co-operation. The conviction is growing that the hazards of large scale production are bound to increase, that the period of unregulated pursuit of profits has passed and that surety, stability and honest service to the public should be the main objects of effort."

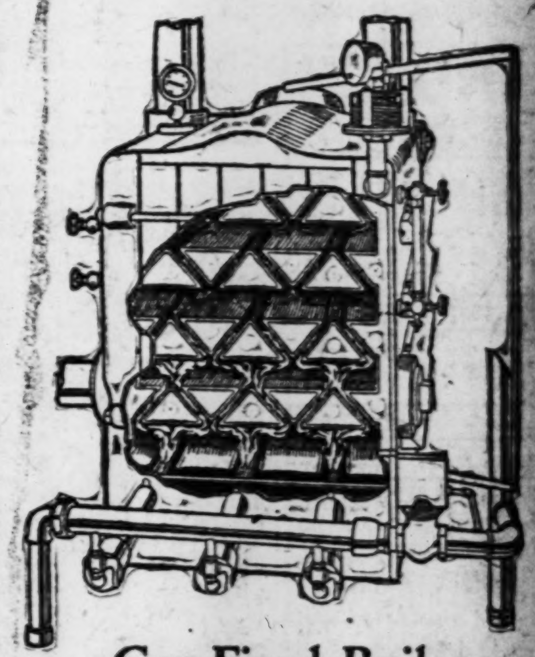
Plan Now for Gas Heat in your Home

Now— before you order next winter's coal, learn the advantages of changing to gas heat. Break away from coal, with its dirt, dust, waste, work and worry. Use Gas, the super-fuel—clean, refined, all-heat. Piped to your plant, it's always ready, as much or little as you need. No noise, no odor, nothing to get out of order. You pay for gas fuel after use—not before.

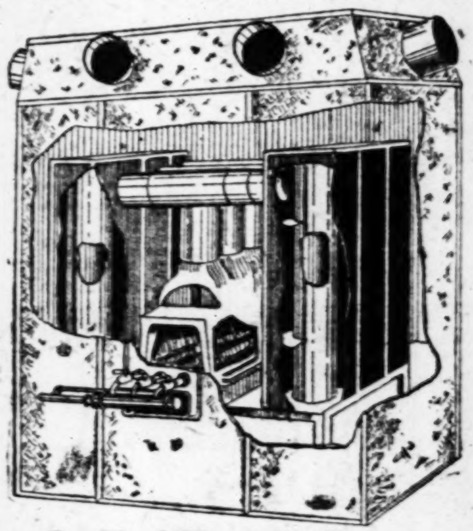
Under thermostatic control, heat is automatically regulated—raised or lowered without human attention. Think of the convenience! Burn gas and banish the coal-bin. Have your basement as clean as your parlor. Just like adding a new living-room.

On request, a trained heating specialist will call and estimate cost of installation and operation of gas-heating equipment. Phone or call at any of our offices or



Gas-Fired Boiler

Can be connected with any steam, hot water or vapor system. Thermostatic control turns gas on or off, automatically maintaining even temperature at any point desired. In large or small buildings, it solves fuel problems, assuring clean heat without work or waste. Gas boilers are also used with water storage systems and for industrial purposes. Full particulars on request.



Gas-Fired Warm Air Furnace

Easily connected with any warm air heating system, this specially built gas furnace will provide clean, even heat in any volume desired. Scientifically constructed, safe, economical, satisfactory in every way. Thermostatic control regulates heat to suit any weather changes as easily as you turn the water faucet. FARR'S GRAY HAIR RESTORER

Don't be afraid of living. Enjoy all the wonderful modern advantages!

While famous laboratories have been perfecting radio, the great manufacturing chemists have been busy producing a formula for restoring gray hair that should be as superior to old-fashioned hair dyes as the perfected cold white electric light is to the old-fashioned smoky lamp.

The Brookline Chemical Co. guarantees their ~~product as a~~ simple, absolutely harmless means of bringing back gray or faded hair to its original natural color, leaving it glossy, soft and lustrous.

Price, $1.10

Easy to use, because perfectly clear, not sticky and will not rub off or stain the scalp. No trouble at all to use; a few minutes in your room is enough. Every bottle sold with the positive guarantee that it cannot cause the slightest harm or annoyance to hair or scalp. Once the hair has returned to its original color it is easily kept so, and can be washed or curled without affecting the color.

GOV. SMALL GRATIFIED BY STORM RELIEF

Congratulates State Departments That Sent Forces to Scene to Superintend Work.

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 18.—Gratification at the efficiency with which Illinois anticipated every need of the storm-stricken communities in Southern Illinois was expressed today by Gov. Small, after he had examined reports which gave a composite picture of the work in Southern Illinois.

"I am proud that Illinois has added to her laurels an achievement that strengthens her title as the 'Greatest Mother,'" Gov. Small said.

The reports showed how the State rushed doctors, nurses, food, tent homes and engineers into the district, and how incipient epidemics were smothered and vaccines and antitoxins were rushed to the sufferers in large quantities.

The Department of Health and the military, according to the data, performed the greatest scope of service. Representatives of both these wings of the State Government were on their way to the devastated area within five hours after the storm. By noon the following day an additional staff was on the way, including bacteriologists, sanitary engineers, physicians and nurses. This second contingent was equipped and supplied with a field diagnostic laboratory, anti-typhoid, tetanus, rabies, smallpox vaccine, diphtheria antitoxin and other necessaries for the prevention of diseases among the stricken.

Working in conjunction with the military, the Health Department soon covered the field. There followed the direction of medical and nursing service in care of the injured, hospitalization and the establishment of facilities for the sanitary disposal of sewage and other wastes.

A complete health department, fully manned and equipped, still is in the field, prepared to stay six months or a year, according to sanitary and hygenic needs.

Seven companies and detachments of the military were thrown into the field, and distributed, among other necessities, 1500 pyramidal tents, 1000 stoves, 4000 bed sacks, 4000 cots, 12,000 blankets and 4000 pillows. This was done in addition to restoring and maintaining order until the crisis was passed. All troops have been removed.

The various State agencies, except Health Department workers, gradually turned the work over to local committees and the Red Cross. One of the follow-up measures adopted by the State is a complete welfare survey, now being made by that department.

DOMESTIC CHESTNUT TREES ARE HARD HIT BY BLIGHT

Experiment With Chinese Trees to Relieve Loss to Tanning Industry.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—With a view to relieving the tanning industry form the blow suffered as a result of the blight that has swept over the domestic chestnut trees, the Department of Agriculture is experimenting with Chinese chestnut trees which, it is hoped, will be found blight proof.

Seeds of two kinds of Chinese chestnut trees have been imported, one of the wild chestnut in Southern China, and the other of the hairy chestnut in Northern China. The Southern China plants will be distributed through the South, and the other kind through the colder regions of the country.

The American blight has been working southward, at times as rapidly as 25 miles a year, cleaning out the chestnut trees as it goes. It was first observed in 1904 in New York, apparently coming in from the Orient, and crossed Virginia at the rate of 20 miles annually. It has now almost covered the chestnut area of the country, being as far south as Northern Georgia, Eastern Tennessee and Eastern Kentucky.

Chestnut bark is used in the tanning industry, and with the ravages of the blight and the consequent lessening of the tree supply, that industry has been hard hit.

EXPOSITION AT JACKSONVILLE

Centennial to Be Observed the First Week in June.

By the Associated Press.

JACKSONVILLE, Ill., April 18.—An industrial and commercial exposition that will fittingly celebrate the first hundred years of this city's history will be held here the first week in June. Plans for the event are fully under way. Fifty Jacksonville business men are engaged in promoting the exposition, which will be held on the public square. The City Council has given over the streets about the square for the exposition week. Forty of the city's industrial firms have agreed to take space for displays, and exhibits are being gathered from all sections of the State.

June 3 has been set as the day for a centennial parade, which will feature historic floats, and relics. June 6 has been set apart for the agricultural interests, and it is hoped to secure as speakers Secretary of Agriculture Jardine and former Gov. Frank O. Lowden. The exhibits are to be housed in tents, surrounding the city's tral park.

KEWANEE

If You Burn Oil And Expect to Get Steam

Then, you've got to have a boiler that will steam just as well with coal or any other fuel. This statement is neither radical nor theoretical. It is the direct result of experience.

Don't let anyone tell you that you must have a special type of boiler to burn oil for heating buildings. It isn't true, and anyone who makes that claim, is either deceiving you for a purpose or he doesn't know any better.

As a matter of fact,* oil is nothing more than liquid coal. The heat it makes is the same heat that is made with coal. A boiler that burns coal successfully, will burn oil successfully. A boiler that does not burn coal successfully, will not burn oil successfully. And you can't dodge these facts any more than you can dodge death and taxes.

Method of connecting Oil Heater for Oil Burner Installations in Kewanee Smokeless Firebox Boilers.

The Kewanee Steel (riveted) Firebox Boiler is the accepted steam-producer wherever people know the most about burning coal or oil for heating buildings.

In those states where the oil comes from—Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas and California—the Kewanee Boiler Company has sold its Steel (riveted) Firebox boilers for years, and its sales in all those sections have not only been extensive but are growing rapidly. Besides, our own research work and records of oil-burning under our boilers have been exhaustive and accurate.

In this territory, where oil-burning is newer, the subject is more or less of a mystery to the uninitiated who want boilers for fuel oil. Certain manufacturers take advantage of this and advance the propaganda that their so-called "oil-burning" boiler is the only one that can be used for oil. Yet, they sell the same boiler for coal.

High temperatures require a boiler with a large water-content to absorb the intense heat without causing undue commotion in the boiler. The Kewanee is that kind of a boiler. Its large water-content is sub-divided to permit easy and rapid circulation. Because of the intense heat, the disengaging area at the water-line is large so that the steam bubbles can break away without undue disturbance. Hence, with heavy overloads, there is always plenty of dry steam to shoot into the heating system.

The firebox in which the combustion takes place is properly proportioned as to width, length and height, allowing the flame to swirl and mix with the oxygen to complete the combustion.

There is this about burning oil: The changes in temperature in the firebox are often rapid and extreme. For that reason a boiler built as the Kewanee is built, strongly constructed of steel-plate riveted together, will stand the stress caused by these rapid and extreme changes.

The great railway companies of the West are among the large users of fuel-oil in locomotives. The Kewanee Steel (riveted) Firebox Boiler is designed along the same sturdy lines as railway Steel (riveted) locomotive boilers.

You understand, of course, that we are not talking about boilers for residences, but boilers for business blocks, school-houses, apartment buildings, warehouses, factories, garages, churches, hotels, hospitals—in fact for any other building from a two-family apartment to one with the largest heating load.

Because of these facts, it is the part of wisdom, before you invest a nickel in a heating boiler for any kind of fuel, to see our local representatives or get in touch with the factory direct.

PLAN OF TRAFFIC GUIDING MARKS FOR CITY OFFERED

Proposal Submitted by the Committee on Engineering and City Planning.

Installation of Permanent Stripes and Other Markings When New Pavement Is Laid Is Advised.

A detailed scheme of guiding marks for traffic in the city streets is proposed in the report of the Committee on Engineering and City Planning of the St. Louis Conference on Street and Highway Safety. Paint, as used for some markings at present, is recommended for future use, in the report, but installation of permanent stripes and other marks when new pavements are laid, is advocated. The various markings recommended are:

White lines in the middle of roadways at curves, crests of hills, railroad grade crossings, intersections of main thoroughfares and other hazardous spots.

Alternate diagonal bands of yellow and black across roadways 100 feet from grade crossings and points where street cars cross on private rights of way.

Yellow arrows pointing to reflecting signals 100 feet from the end of "dead-end" streets or jogs in streets.

"STOP" in yellow letters in roadways 100 feet from the boulevards requiring stops.

Zig-zag yellow lines in roadways, 100 feet from intersections guarded by automatic traffic signals.

Black lines denoting the middle of main thoroughfares having neither street car tracks nor parkways.

Other recommendations of the report are:

Use of beam-type lights in automatic traffic signals, giving greater intensity of light than now; shifting of four unit type signals to far corners instead of near corners, for better vision.

Use of flashing red lights and gongs to signal when apparatus is leaving fire engine houses.

Use of a single red headlight, in addition to regular lights, on fire, police and public utility automobiles making emergency runs.

Use of yellow reflex signs, double the present size, on far corners, to indicate boulevard stops.

Use of raised safety islands and street car loading platforms, with illumination from above and warning lights.

Flood lights for traffic policemen on dark corners until new electric street lights are installed.

Introduction of uniform, portable, "10-miles-an-hour" caution signs on streets at schools and playgrounds, at hours when children are coming and going.

Making of annual counts of all classes of traffic, and some special counts, to give a definite basis for traffic control.

Provision of large open spaces for public parking adjacent to the business district, preferably on the river front.

Establishment of a playground at every public school, to keep children off the streets; closing of streets for temporary playgrounds from time to time.

Separation of street car tracks from vehicle lanes by curbing wherever street widths permit.

Employment of a city traffic engineer, to be responsible for matters relating to traffic.

PACIFISTS ARM FOR PEACE IN INDUSTRIAL AUSTRIA

Maneuvers of Workman Army Are Meant to Impress Anti-Socialists.

Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch.

VIENNA, March 31.—Pacifists preparing for war adopt the methods of militarists. This inconsistency can be studied at first hand by persons who take the trouble to observe the socialist and pacifist activities in any Austrian manufacturing district. The socialists not only have organizations that keep the workers in line in every factory and collect high dues, but they have a military organization armed and drilled. Workers who refuse to pay dues or refuse to drill soon lose their jobs.

Every factory has its section for maintaining order. In the stronger centers there are armed and well-drilled organizations. The members drill regularly in the fields near the plants. Near Baden recently the republican schutzbund, or protective organization, had its early spring mobilization. The plan called for defense of the factory districts against attack by a hypothetical Hungarian white army coming from Oedenburg.

The majority of Austrians look upon these maneuvers as a joke. Some think they are meant to impress the antisocialists. Others think they are for th ebenefit of the antisocialist "Awakening Hungarians."

In general militarism in Austria is on the wane, even among the socialist-pacifists. The marches of great bodies of organized workers along the Vienna Ring boulevards stopped long ago.

Real Estate the Supreme Security for Home or Investment

St. Louis Real Estate, for more than a hundred years, has been steadily increasing in value—making fortunes for some, and comfortable competencies for many.

For Investment or Home purposes St. Louis Real Estate offers advantages unexcelled in any of the large American cities.

Income property, strategically located building lots, business buildings, flats, apartments and homes for sale are advertised regularly in the Real Estate columns of the Post-Dispatch.

Among these advertisements opportunity beckons to you.

Look today, secure in the knowledge that the Post-Dispatch carries the widest variety of offerings because it carries far more Real Estate advertising than any other St. Louis newspaper.

Real Estate bought as recently as ten or even five years ago has made handsome profits for hundreds of St. Louisans. The best guide for the future is the experience of the past, and the experience of the past emphasizes the wisdom of present investment in well-located real estate in St. Louis or its suburbs.

WING OF MOVING PICTURES OF 89TH AND 35TH DIVISIONS

ceeds for Benefit of St. Louis Chapter of Disabled World War Veterans.

A motion picture, "Over the Top Wotta Wow," showing the Eighty-ninth and Thirty-fifth divisions in action in France, will be shown during the week commencing April 25 at the Columbia Theater, Sixth and St. Charles streets, under the auspices of St. Louis Chapter No. 12 of the Disabled American Veterans.

Supplementing the pitcure, a playlet, "The Wild Cat Rookie," produced by professional overseas entertainers who toured camps and hospitals in France, will be given. The pictures are official War Department releases. Proceeds will go to the aid of disabled veterans and for furnishing the organization's clubrooms, at 3737 West Pine boulevard.

The 354th and 355th Infantry of the Eighty-ninth Division are shown in the pictures. Individual units of the Thirty-fifth Division shown are the 137th and 138th Infantry, 128th Field Artillery, 110th Field Signal Battalion, and the 138th band acting as stretcher bearers.

Special nights have been arranged for the National Guard, the regular army, the navy and the Marine Corps. A special complimentary performance for school children will be given at 10:30 a. m., April 25, when the children will be guests of the veterans. Ex-service men attending in uniform will be admitted at half the admission price.

You just KNOW they're Well

You, too, can have this vigorous, robust, healthy perfection

You just know they're NOT Well

There is no reason for you to look or feel this way

CONSTIPATION means PREMATURE OLD AGE

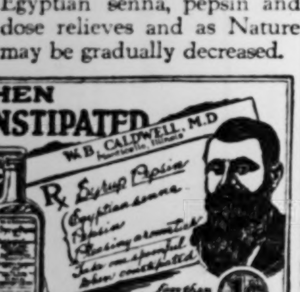
Inflammation, abscess, gangrene, appendicitis, autointoxication, numberless deadly diseases and shortened life, all come from constipation. Fasting is injurious. Food is an aid to bowel action. Cathartic pills, "salts," mineral waters and a long list of "drugs" are decidedly bad and an aggravation. Allowing the bowels to become clogged is worse.

Dr. Caldwell's

SYRUP PEPSIN

The Family Laxative

—promptly relieves constipation. It is different from pills or purgatives. It does not gripe, pain or purge. It acts easily in a natural way, just as Dr. Caldwell intended when he prescribed it years ago. For 30 years it has relieved America's suffering. A liquid combination of Egyptian senna, pepsin and pleasing aromatics. One dose relieves and as Nature asserts its action the doses may be gradually decreased.



Pleasant To Take
Gently Compels Health

Last year 10,000,000 bottles were used, which shows people recognize its value. As effective for babies as old people, for adults as children. Syrup Pepsin quickly brings relief to the most severe cases of constipation and the doses may be gradually reduced.

It is sold everywhere medicine is sold—and guaranteed. Try it at our risk. Your druggist will return your money if it fails to do as promised.

Voice of Union Labor and the Radical Press

The Post-Dispatch prints herewith extracts from editorial or other articles in organs of labor unions and the Socialist and Communist Parties showing the tendency of thought on public questions among those bodies of citizens.

SO THIS IS PRIVATE OWNERSHIP.

From Labor, Organ of the Rail Union.

Holders of stocks and bonds in the St. Paul stand to lose approximately $300,000,000.

What caused the disaster?

Disasters of this kind do not just happen. The people, and more especially the investors, have a right to know why the St. Paul, once among the nation's most substantial railroad systems, is now financially on the rocks.

There will be a reorganization with fat fees for the lucky lawyers and equally fat commissions for the fortunate bankers.

The "insiders" will make immense fortunes out of the wreck and the investors who were not on the "inside" and the people who use the road will pay the bills.

It's an old story; distressingly common in the history of American railroading. A few years ago it was the Rio Grande which went to smash and investors pocketed losses of over $200,000,000. Before that the New Haven, the Pere Marquette, the Rock Island and many, many other roads went through the same experience.

There is something fundamentally wrong with a system which produces such distressing results.

We hear much from the railroad propagandists about the evil effects of regulatory legislation but the fact remains that no railroad investor ever lost a dollar as the result of legislation enacted by state or nation.

Those same propagandists paint terrifying pictures of what would follow Government ownership of railroads but if the St. Paul were in the hands of Uncle Sam every outstanding security would be worth par.

There would be no receivership or reorganizations under Government ownership. That is one reason why the interests which specialize in the salvaging of wrecked roads see "red" when anyone dares suggest that the people should own and operate the nation's transportation lines.

PACIFIC NAVAL MANEUVERS.

(From the Daily Worker Communist.)

What the War and Navy Departments unite in declaring "a program of military and naval operations without parallel in the peace-time history of the United States" is in progress off the Pacific Coast. One hundred and fourteen craft, 40,000 marines, 25,000 sailors and all the air fleet are engaged in the maneuvers.

Following the completion of the maneuvers the Pacific fleet of 10 battleships, four cruisers, 26 destroyers and a large number of auxiliaries will begin a cruise that will take it to all the ports of the Far East.

Those innocent persons who think that a navy is for "defense" will do well to ponder the facts set forth on the front pages of the capitalist press. The expedition of the battle fleet is for two purposes—to acquaint its commanders with the Far Eastern ports and defenses and to display the imperialist might of the United States.

Imperialism does not spend untold millions in maneuvers of this kind for fun. The rivalry between American and Japanese imperialism, between American and Birtish imperialism leads straight toward war and the instruments of destruction are being made ready.

Not one single voice has been raised in the House of Representatives or the Senate in protest against this huge imperialist enterprise. The La Follettites who during the election campaign occasionally warned of the danger of war are silent now. They would have been just as silent if La Follette sat in the place of Coolidge.

In all America only the communist press tells the masses that the rulers are plotting another gigantic conflict to decide whether America or British imperialism will rule the world.

FREE ASSEMBLY IN PATERSON

(From the New Leader, Socialist.)

When members of trade unions cannot meet in a hall to discuss their claim upon employing masters, when the Police Department disperses such a meeting, it is plain that the department has become a bureau of the employing class. When a court ratifies this police usurpation judicial sanction is given to such autocracy. It amounts to saying that trade unions are illegal, for if they cannot peacefully meet to carry on a strike they are useless to their members.

It is notorious that Paterson, N. J., has for years been a barony ruled by its textile owners. The conviction of Roger Baldwin of the Civil Liberties Union and six others in a Paterson court for attempting to address striking silk workers last year cannot be accepted as final. To do so would be to surrender this sector of New Jersey to an insolent dictatorship exercised by textile corporations.

Moreover, it is doubtful whether the decision would be sustained by a higher court. There are limits beyond which even courts cannot afford to go, however much judges may be prejudiced by education, training, tradition and associations to accept the conservative views of property. Courts have sometimes restrained the blind greed of ruling classes whose appetite for power induces them to action that endangers their own dominion.

The Civic Liberties Union will appeal the case. It is the duty of organized workers to support this fight for free discussion and assembly and thus prevent the further spread of this menace.

Blackheads Go Quick By This Simple Method

Blackheads—big ones or little ones, soft ones or hard ones—on any part of the body, go quick by a simple method that just dissolves them. To do this, get about two ounces of calonite powder from your druggist—sprinkle a little on a hot wet cloth—rub over the blackheads briskly for a few seconds—and wash off. You'll wonder where the blackheads have gone. Pinching and squeezing blackheads only open the pores of the skin and leave them large and unsightly—while the simple application of calonite powder and the water dissolve them right out, leaving the skin soft and the pores in their natural condition.

Two Maxims

"Prosperity makes friends; adversity tries them."

"Prosperity is the discoverer of vice; adversity of virtues."

Handed down from masters of literature these two proverbs are worthy of consideration.

Adversity may steal upon us while we are in pursuit of prosperity. Then it is our brain is taxed to its capacity seeking ways to avoid it.

The person who in adversity preserves his self-respect and retains his ambition is certain to enjoy the admiration and assistance of his contemporaries.

That indicates the man-courageous.
PROUD SHOULD HE BE!

The chief defendant's husband, Sir David d R. P. Sheldon, aged pensioner of the aterhouse family who were jointly charged th Lady Wilson-Barker were absolved from ame. However, the husband is liable in a rt affecting his wife, so that Sir David has e unpleasant task of paying for Lady Mag-len's indiscretion.

It was shown by testimony at the trial
t Lady Wilson-Barker for years had sys-hatically blackmailed Alfred Francis Wa-house, now deceased, who was the husband the plaintiff in the case. The evidence peared to establish that Lady Wilson-Barr had bled Waterhouse to his financial ruin means of an adroit plot. First she had ered into a liaison with Waterhouse, who s an almost helpless cripple, and later she d pretended that their affair was known a mysterious solicitor. She told her lover, cording to the plaintiff's contention, that e solicitor demanded hush money.
From time to time Waterhouse paid Lady ilson-Barker considerable sums, under-anding she was to give them to the mysious blackmailer. He did not know that "solicitor" was a creature of Lady Wil-
-Barker's imagination, nor that all the ney he gave her she put in the bank to her n account.

The Plot

This, in brief, was the allegation of Mrs. aterhouse, widow of the victim. She as-ted in court that after her marriage to aterhouse in 1919, three years before he d, she found letters to him from Lady lson-Barker. These letters, which she of-ed but which Mr. Justice Shearman would allow to be introduced because of the effect on the public morals, showed her t there had been an affair between the y and her husband. She did not learn of blackmail plot, however, until after Wa-house died.
Her amazing discovery at this time was, t although she had expected her husband's ate to be about 60,000 pounds, he died virlly penniless. Where had his money gone?
s. Waterhouse put detectives to work, and y traced payments to Lady Wilson-Bar-
r. Bank statements were introduced in dence to show that she had deposited large ms at intervals during the period covered the intrigue for which she did not ac-nt in court.
The story as unfolded by witnesses at the al was of a peculiar nature. It seems that aterhouse was a bachelor, 40 years old, 1896 when he first met Mrs. Wilson-Barr, whose husband had not at that time been ored with a title. Waterhouse was re-ing with his mother at her home, No. 3 wes-crescent, Brighton. Mrs. Wilson-Barr and he met at a hotel in Harrogate.

His Mother Liked Her

Old Mrs. Waterhouse took an immediate ng to Mrs. Wilson-Barker, a woman then over 30 and of moderate charm. Mrs terhouse had worried a good deal abou son's behavior where women were con ned, but she decided that Mrs. Wilson

LONDON, April 12.

UDGMENT for 12,000 pounds was awarded to Mrs. Muriel Waterhouse against Lady Magdalen Wilson-Barker by a jury in Mr. Justice Shearman's court here the other day in a suit of sensational nature involving people of high social standing. The importance of the individuals involved together with the particularly suggestive tone of the stimony made the case of general interest to the British public.

Mr. Justice Shearman from the bench deplored the frequency with which pers of exalted social station were coming into courts in connection with malodorous ses. He feared that one of the effects would be to give the world at large a wrong nception of British home life and of the moral stamina of this class of society, which, assured his hearers, was generally sound and clean.

LADY WILSON-BARKER

ALFRED FRANCIS WATERHOUSE

From his invalid's chair he made love to Lady Wilson-Barker, and afterwards wrote checks to pay for his indiscretion.

The chief defendant's husband, Sir David lson-Barker, an official of the Admiralty, d R. P. Sheldon, aged pensioner of the aterhouse family who were jointly charged th Lady Wilson-Barker were absolved from ame. However, the husband is liable in a t affecting his wife, so that Sir David has unpleasant task of paying for Lady Mag-len's indiscretion.

It was shown by testimony at the trial t Lady Wilson-Barker for years had sysatically blackmailed Alfred Francis Wa-rhouse, now deceased, who was the husband the plaintiff in the case. The evidence peared to establish that Lady Wilson-Bar-r had bled Waterhouse to his financial ruin means of an adroit plot. First she had tered into a liaison with Waterhouse, who s an almost helpless cripple, and later she d pretended that their affair was known a mysterious solicitor. She told her lover, cording to the plaintiff's contention, that e solicitor demanded hush money.

From time to time Waterhouse paid Lady ilson-Barker considerable sums, underanding she was to give them to the mysrious blackmailer. He did not know that e "solicitor" was a creature of Lady Wil-Barker's imagination, nor that all the ney he gave her she put in the bank to her n account.

The Plot

This, in brief, was the allegation of Mrs. aterhouse, widow of the victim. She asted in court that after her marriage to aterhouse in 1919, three years before he d, she found letters to him from Lady son-Barker. These letters, which she ofred but which Mr. Justice Shearman would t allow to be introduced because of the d effect on the public morals, showed her at there had been an affair between the dy and her husband. She did not learn of e blackmail plot, however, until after Wa-rhouse died.

Her amazing discovery at this time was, at although she had expected her husband's tate to be about 60,000 pounds, he died virally penniless. Where had his money gone? s. Waterhouse put detectives to work, and ey traced payments to Lady Wilson-Bar-r. Bank statements were introduced in idence to show that she had deposited large ms at intervals during the period covered the intrigue for which she did not acnt in court.

The story as unfolded by witnesses at the al was of a peculiar nature. It seems that aterhouse was a bachelor, 40 years old, 1896 when he first met Mrs. Wilson-Bar-, whose husband had not at that time been ored with a title. Waterhouse was reg with his mother at her home, No. 3 s-crescent, Brighton. Mrs. Wilson-Bar- and he met at a hotel in Harrogate.

His Mother Liked Her

d Mrs. Waterhouse took an immediate g to Mrs. Wilson-Barker, a woman then over 30 and of moderate charm. Mrs. rhouse had worried a good deal about son's behavior where women were cond, but she decided that Mrs. Wilsoner was a safe companion for him. The friend it developed had much time on hands as her husband was a naval man away with the fleet for long periods. She ed quite willing to accept Mrs. Water-'s invitation to No. 3 Lewes-crescent. intimacy between Waterhouse and their t developed during these visits without mother's knowledge.

is relationship began about 1900 and ued until the death of Mrs. Water- in 1909. All this time Waterhouse in very poor health, being confined to valid's chair, and requiring the assist- of bodyservants. While Mrs. Waterhouse, who retired about nine o'clock each evening to her quarters on the second floor of the house did not know what was happening on the third floor, the servants were not so blind.

Waterhouse was lodged on the fourth floor. Thomas Mills, the butler, and John MacDonald—his man servant—knew of his companionship with Mrs. Wilson-Barker. Mills who died before the trial, made deposition to what he had observed. MacDonald was one of the witnesses who testified. Other meeting places for the lovers were the conservatory and an addition behind the house called the chalet. Miss Lucy Scotcher, a maid, was another who kept tab on their actions. It got to be a habit with them to retire to the chalet afternoons.

MRS. MURIEL WATERHOUSE

She married Waterhouse three years before he died, and discovered, through letters, how Lady Wilson-Barker had bled her husband to ruin. Bringing suit for recovery of the money the blackmailer had obtained, she won judgment against her.

SIR DAVID WILSON-BARKER

An official in the British Admiralty, he was dragged into the ugly Waterhouse case, although it appeared from testimony that he knew nothing of his wife's affair with Waterhouse.

R. P. SHELDON

The old pensioner of the Waterhouse family, who was accused of having assisted Lady Wilson-Barker in her blackmailing scheme, but was acquitted by the jury.

Waterhouse's mother, who took a fancy to Lady Wilson-Barker and unwittingly gave her the opportunity to carry on a liaison with her son.

The financial facts involved were that Waterhouse had a fortune of some 60,000 pounds and an income of 2000 pounds a year. When his mother died Mrs. Wilson-Barker learned that she had left him nothing, considering him well provided for. Servants said that after this they noted a marked change in her attitude toward Waterhouse. While she still called him "Sonny" and he called her "Baby" it became generally understood by backstairs gossipers that the affair between them was at an end.

However, Mrs. Wilson-Barker still called on the gentleman. She was always greatly agitated during these visits and seemed worried about something. At the trial it was claimed that she had told him: "Sonny, we've been found out."

"By whom?" he inquired.

"A solicitor."

Servants Peep

Servants noticed that she invariably seemed distressed during their talks together, frequently complaining of illness. It was noticed, though, that once out of his sight she recovered with remarkable quickness. For his part, an invalid of steadily failing health, he became nervous and furtive. Watchers in the kitchen told each other "Something is up" but only those servants close to Waterhouse guessed what.

One man testified that Waterhouse, during Lady Wilson-Barker's visits would dispatch him with a check to be cashed. Returning with the money, Waterhouse would instruct him to place it in an envelope. These envelopes, the witness said, found their way to Lady Wilson-Barker's handbag.

A few letters to Waterhouse from Lady Wilson-Barker were introduced in evidence. They were couched in guarded terms, making references to a certain "he" who, she wrote, "might do something unless——." This was adduced to be further proof that the lady was engaged in a blackmailing scheme.

Sir David Wilson-Barker hardly appeared in the testimony at all. It was related that he had come to the Waterhouse mansion on several occasions with his wife, but that he always left after a short stay while she remained behind. As to R. P. Sheldon's part in the story there was very little more. He was an old pensioner of the Waterhouse family. The plaintiff contended that he had helped Lady Wilson-Barker blackmail Waterhouse. He was said to have confessed to a relative of Mrs. Waterhouse that he had so assisted the blackmailer. But there was no evidence which could incriminate him, so he, like Sir David, was withdrawn from the case before the trial ended.

Mrs. Muriel Waterhouse met her husband in 1912 and knew him as a friend for years. In 1919 they were secretly married. She discovered soon after some letters in his letter rack which gave Lady Wilson-Barker's plot away.

After her husband's death Mrs. Wahouse resolved to make Lady Wilson-Barker pay back all she had taken. And so her solicitors came to court with the following testimony which began with the deposition of the Waterhouse butler:

What kind of hours did Mr. A. F. Waterhouse keep when Lady Wilson-Barker was there? All hours. I have been there sometimes until between 12 and 1 o'clock in the morning. Sometimes it was before 12. No particular time exactly.

Were they both staying up? No, not always.

Where did Mr. A. F. Waterhouse sleep, and what room was occupied by Lady Wilson-Barker? On the second floor, Lady Wilson-Barker; and Mr. Waterhouse was at the top of the house.

Is there a part of the house called the chalet? Yes.

Kept All Hours

Would you describe that and tell us where it was? It was a place that was built at the back of the house—a private place. It was adjoining the house, only you had to go through a greenhouse to it. It was all joining.

When Lady Wilson-Barker was stopping at this house are you able to say anything about the chalet? They used to go up there and stop sometimes. Perhaps it was a nice fine day. If they did not want to go out, or anything of that sort, they used to go up there—both of them.

Was there anybody with them on those occasions? No; they would be up there by themselves perhaps two or three hours at a stretch.

Did you at any time notice anything about their conduct? Yes, a lot.

Have you noticed their behavior towards one another?—Yes—more like lovers than anything else.

This intimacy between Lady Wilson-Barker and Mrs. Waterhouse went on until Mrs. Waterhouse's death in January, 1909?—Yes.

Did Lady Wilson-Barker used to speak to Mr. Waterhouse in the presence of his mother in a quite friendly way?—Yes—quite friendly,

And called her nicknames?—Yes.

And she called him nicknames?—Yes.

In the presence of the mother?—Yes. The mother would take it all in good part.

And did not Mrs. Waterhouse in fact use the same nickname?—Yes.

What was the nickname?—"Sonny," I think it was.

"Daisy" and "Baby"?—Yes; that is it. "Sonny" it used to be sometimes.

Mrs. Waterhouse used to be on such terms with Lady Wilson-Barker that she called her "Daisy" and "Baby" and her son, living in the same house with his mother, used to call this woman by those names?—Yes. It used to be common talk there.

There was nothing wrong about that?—Oh, no.

And that went on at any rate until Mrs. Waterhouse died. There was no break in the friendship?—No.

Now I want to ask you, if I may, about these incidents you have been telling us. If Mr. Waterhouse and Lady Wilson-Barker had wanted to misconduct themselves there were ample opportunities for many years were there not?—Yes.

How old was the lady?—About 45, or something like that.

Did not it strike you as disgusting?—It did strike me; but I guessed there was something in it before.

You never saw anything else with any other ladies?—No.

Miss Ellen Bedford said that she was the personal attendant of old Mrs. Waterhouse.

When was she introduced to Lady Wilson-Barker?—At Harrogate in 1897.

Gossip

What were the relations between Mr. Waterhouse and Lady Wilson-Barker?—Very familiar, and they were talked about in the hotel.

How did they behave at Brighton? They spent a great deal of time in the chalet.

When did you first see the plaintiff?—In 1920, at Brighton.

When did you know that she had married Mr. Waterhouse?—In the same year.

Do you know when Lady Wilson-Barker last visited the house at Brighton?—In the autumn of 1921.

Did Sir David come with her?—Yes.

What did she say to you when she heard of Mr. Waterhouse's marriage?—She expressed surprise and said that although he had said to her he might get married she never thought he would.

What else did Lady Wilson-Barker say?—She said, some time during that visit, that she hoped Mr. Waterhouse had destroyed her letters as she had destroyed his.

What else did she do?—She removed the photographs of herself which were in the house.

Were there shutters on the windows of the room she occupied?—Yes.

Were they always closed when she stayed at Brighton whatever the weather?—Yes.

Mr. John Macdonald said that he acted as male attendant to Mr. Waterhouse from 1910 until 1915. He had been with him at Brighton and also when he stayed in London.

Did Lady Wilson-Barker visit him while you were there?—Yes.

Did you ever cash checks for Mr. Waterhouse?—Yes.

Where?—In London, at Russell square and St. James street, and also at Brighton.

What was the largest check you ever cashed at the bank in St. James street?—500 pounds.

And the largest you cashed at Brighton?—2000 pounds, in 1914. I received two notes of 1000 pounds each.

What did you do with them when you returned?—I gave them to Mr. Waterhouse. He looked at them, and then gave them to me to look after.

What did you do?—I put them in an envelope kept in a trousers press.

When did you next go to Bailey's Hotel?—Very shortly after this.

What happened to the notes?—I took them from the trousers press.

Super-Crook Sentenced to Hang After Super-Jury Consults a Time-Tabl

GERALD CHAPMAN'S ALIBI IN MURDER OF POLICEMAN DISPROVED BY TRAIN SCHEDULES

Jury Decides He Could Not Have Been Where He Said He Was—Its Use of Time-Table Not Introduced as Evidence May Give Chapman Ground for a New Trial—Although the Super-Criminal Rested His Super-Chin on His Super-Hand and Smiled a Super-Smile It Appeared From Evidence That His Career Was Rather Stupid, After All.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

HARTFORD, Conn., April 18.

THEY studied the time-table and then they gave Gerald Chapman, "super-criminal," a ticket to the gallows. But he may not go. The time-table that convicted him may give him a come-back. It is like him to snatch triumph from disaster that way.

Gerald Chapman was on trial for his life for killing a policeman. There was testimony that he was somewhere else when the policeman was killed. There was uncertainty in the minds of the jurors as to whether he could have been where he and his witnesses said he was. A time-table was called for to settle the question. From it the jurors concluded he could not have been where he said he was. So they found him guilty.

But now another question arises. Was it proper to supply the jurors, after they had retired to consider their verdict, with a time-table which had not been introduced in evidence? The answer may give Chapman another trial. Meantime, Chapman is booked for departure on June 25, but eevn if the time-table fails him, he may not go. He has been in tight places before.

GERALD CHAPMAN

Car Service

Above is shown the time-table page which doomed Chapman. The jury determined that if Chapman left Springfield at 4:10 p. m. and arrived at the Grand Central Terminal in New York at 8:02 p. m. he would not have had time to go to the rendezvous where he claimed he was at the time of the murder.

Three studies of the master criminal, those at left and above having been made i courtroom, while the one at the lower right was taken at the time of his first convi

However it may turn out, this Chapman is now in disgrace. He has had an awful come-down. The hero of the $2,400,000 New York mail robbery and other de luxe crimes and a couple of theatrical escapes, it has come to this that he stands convicted of bumping off a policeman in a hick store job. What makes it worse is his belief that he was convicted in a commonplace case on his reputation as a master criminal. And a spurious, played-up reputation at that. He is positively humilated and cut up over it.

Murder

On Sunday morning, Oct. 2, 1924, James Skelly, policeman, New Britain, Conn., was shot to death by a robber who had broken into Davidson & Leventhal's department store. Walter E. Shean, member of a prominent and wealthy family of Springfield, Mass., but a crook and friend of crooks, was caught with some of the money, a thousand dollars or so, that had been taken from the safe before the policeman interfered.

This Shean was a pudgy-faced, weak-willed fellow. They broke him and he said the man with him on the job, who got away, was Chapman, who should have been serving a 25-year sentence at Atlanta Federal prison for the mail robbery in New York but who was at large by virtue of two remarkable escapes, one from the prison on March 27, 1923, and another from a hospital at Athens, Ga., April 4, 1923.

There was a woman, as usual. Chapman's devotion to his girl was his weakness. They watched the woman. From her movements it was inferred that Chapman was likely to turn up sooner or later at Muncie, Ind. He turned up there Jan. 18, this year. Four policemen jumped him. He fired one shot that went wild and then his automatic jammed. There he was, the master criminal, with only one gun and it was jammed, and policemen all around him. Fine fix for a master criminal.

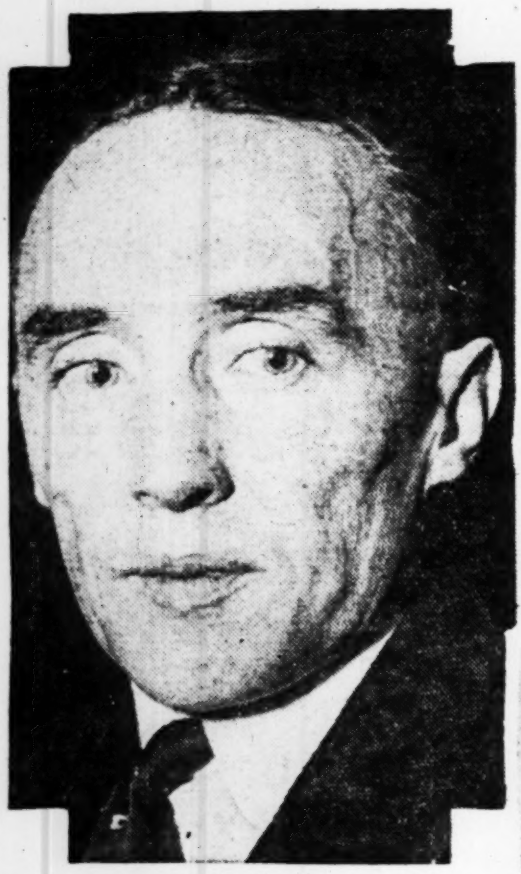
The policemen did not bother to shoot him. One of them punched his face and another climbed on his back. He was dragged away to the lockup. It was most inglorious.

It has been that way all along with Gerald Chapman, alternations of the commonplace and spectacular.

His beginning was commonplace enough. His career might have been more spectacular if the officers of the law had let him alone. But they were always after him and although a reputation as the most desperate desperado of his time was worked up for him, he has been at liberty only five of the 18 years of his criminal activities.

Chapman's Start

His early history is somewhat obscure, which is not strange. He is said to have been born of poor but honest Irish parents in New York. His true name is said to be George Chartres. At least that is the name under which he was first convicted. His parents wanted him to be a priest and tried to educate him for that, but he left school and took to the streets and became a thief and a bad egg generally. They caught him at petty stealing when he was 19 and sent him to Elmira Reformatory. After 14 months he was paroled. He stayed free a year and then was sent to Auburn prison for stealing $1300. He came out in 1911 and got a job as a street car conductor and went straight for a year, or at least he managed to keep clear that long. But he couldn't keep his hands off of other people's money. The next time he was caught for stealing a few hundred dollars they pulled his record on him and sent him up for 10 years. That was in October, 1911. With good behavior time off, he came out in 1919.



The super-crook displays his poker face.

At Auburn he came under the tutelage of a real crook, George Anderson, who was expiating a forgery but who could turn his hand to most any kind of crime. Anderson took a fancy to the shifty little thief and inspired him with the ambition to do big stuff.

When they were released they got together and set up as high class liquor runners and bootleggers. Not big stuff, to be sure, but it paid well. They lived in New York and spent a lot of money.

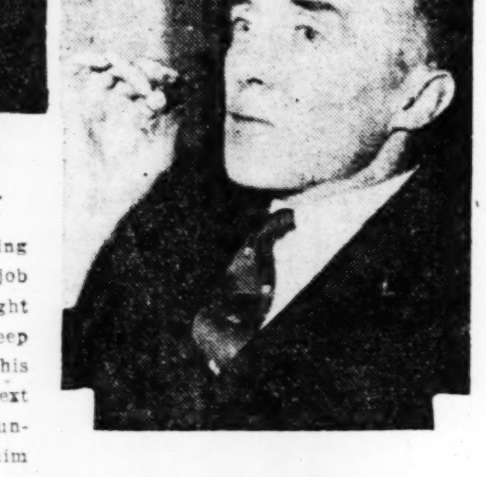
Charles Loeber came along and claimed their recognition as a former prison mate. They accepted him patronizingly as a crook of a lower order and Chapman took him on as personal servant and chauffeur against the time that he might be needed for another kind of a job.

The job proved to be the big one that gave Chapman his reputation, the Leonard street mail robbery. It was a big job all right, but it was as easy as stealing pennies out of a blind's man's tin cup. And Chapman and Anderson were not even the first to think of it.

The Super-Robber

Some small crook, more enterprising than either of these "master minds," tipped them off that the postoffice people were mighty careless in sending valuable cargo from the City Hall Station to the main postoffice, bags of stocks and bonds, money and jewelry, at night, when that part of downtown New York is tenantless and silent.

Anderson and Chapman got to a man on the inside who told them when the valuable stuff went out and they lined the thing up. On the night of Oct. 24, 1921, they pulled it. The truck that left City Hall Station at 10:20 that night carried $2,400,000 in five bags. There were no guards. Anderson and Chapman and Loeber drove up alongside in a deserted side street and stuck the driver up and tied a sack over his head and took the mail bags and drove away. In a barn near Ronkonkoma, Long Island, they made the split and went their ways and took up the more difficult detail of converting stocks, bonds and jewelry into cash. To keep them in spending money while biding their time they went to Niagara Falls and held up an American Express Co. truck and took $70,000 worth of money orders.



Chapman in nonchalant pose.

It was one of these money orders that led to the capture of the three bandits. Loeber cashed it and it was traced back to him. They shadowed him and saw him meet Anderson and Chapman. All three were arrested.

Chapman was being questioned by a Post-office inspector in a room on the third floor of the Postoffice. He asked for a drink of water. As soon as the inspector's back was turned Chapman sprang out through a window to a ledge thirty inches wide and scampered along it until he came to an open window. He stepped into another office and hid on top of a filing case. They found him there and recaptured him.

Loeber, in the meantime, thinking Chapman had been shot, came through with a confession. Chapman and Anderson in August, 1922, were sent to Atlanta prison for 25 years.

When Chapman went to Atlanta it was with the fixed opinion that in this life you can get most anything by paying enough for it.

Chapman Escapes

By some such means he obtained a saw and before daylight on March 29, 1923, he sawed a bar in a window of the prison hospital and let himself to the ground with a rope of bed clothing, possessed himself of a silk rope ladder that had been planted for him, shut off the prison lights by crossing the wires, scaled the wall and escaped.

Four days later he was surrounded, wounded and captured and taken to a hospital at Athens. Friends, plentifully supplied with money, came from New York. Overnight Chapman disappeared from his bed. For 22 months he was a fugitive.

Watching the woman, she was trailed from San Francisco to Indianapolis and Muncie, Ind. On a Sunday morning in January Chapman made his expected appearance there. A policeman saw him and called three others and they closed in on him and captured him as has been told. He was taken back to Atlanta, but Connecticut wanted him for killing the New Britain policeman, so he was loaned to Connecticut and he was tried here.

Against him they had the word of Shean, which wasn't worth much, and the identifications, all of them rather doubtful, of persons who saw the man who killed Skelly.

It was quite an ordinary killing case as killing cases go. Two men, Shean and another, had broken into the department store on a Sunday morning and somebody had seen them and called the police and Skelly came with some others and, with more courage than discretion, blundered in the back way, exposing himself. The robber who was working at the safe shot him and ran out and got away.

Shean, who had slipped away at the approach of the police, was found at an automobile near by and arrested on suspicion and in his possession was found packages of money which had been taken from one of the safes at the store. He said the man who had escaped was Chapman.

An ordinary case in all its circumstances, but the reputation of a "super-criminal" which had been conferred upon Chapman gave it a significance out of all proportion to the circumstances. Crowds filled the courthouse, expecting to see the sallow little man perform some incredible feat of legerdemain and disappear before their very eyes.

The Trial

If he had transformed himself into a mouse and slipped away through a crack in the floor nobody would have been greatly surprised, if the awesome accounts of the proceedings are to be credited, but he would have been more in character if he had gone out through the window in a puff of red smoke.

Nothing of the kind happened but almost as wonderful were the descriptions of how the super-man sat, how he crossed his legs and flicked his eyelashes and rested his super-chin on his super-hand.

Shean took the stand and told his story, being careful not to risk annihilation by looking into the baleful eyes of Chapman. He said Chapman had been visiting him and they went riding and all of a sudden Chapman told him they were going to "make" the department store.

There were several who saw the man who left the store after the shot was fired and they identified Chapman as the man. Some of them were pretty positive.

Chapman took the stand and answered questions quite freely and frankly about his various crimes, the ones that were matter of common knowledge. He spoke with becoming modesty of his part in the Leonard street job. But as a truthful man he was obliged to disclaim a number of others which had been incorrectly attributed to him. It had been a matter of amusement for him and his friends, he said, the crimes that were credited to him from time to time. And as to the New Britain job and the unfortunate killing of the policeman, he was wholly innocent of that.

As to his movements, he had left Springfield, Mass., after 4 p. m. the day preceding the New Britain affair and had taken a train to New York and at 8:30 o'clock that night was on Albany avenue, Brooklyn. Three alibi witnesses testified that they saw hi stationery store on Albany avenue at hour.

A Question of Time

The jurors went out and began to d ate and presently they were asking ea er whether it was possible that Chapma have gone from Springfield to Albany Brooklyn, in the time that he had sa he did. A New York, New Haven & ford time-table would help but they h time-table. They filed into court an if they could have a time-table. Nob jected and a time-table was procured handed over to them and they carried the jury room.

They found that a train left Spr at 4:10 p. m. and arrived at Grand C Terminal at 8:02. That would have him 28 minutes to get to the stationery on Albany avenue. Most of the Conn yankee jurors did not know how far from the Terminal to Albany avenue long it would take but one or two of had been down to New York quite a these gave it as their judgment couldn't be done in 28 mintues. With point settled to their satisfaction the balloted and found Chapman guilty and his punishment at death by hanging o 25th day of June.

Down in New York they are not so that Chapman could not have made it minutes. A reporter was assigned to out. He left the Terminal at 5 o'clock. fic is denser at that hour than betw and 9 o'clock, when Chapman says he the trip. The reporter made it in 33 utes, including several traffic delays, to three to four minutes delay.

But the Connecticut jury has said th can't be done and so the "super-crimina to be hung by a time-table, after a mann speaking, unless he gets a new trial or an peal is decided in his favor.

That raises the question of the prop of supplying the jury with a time-table the evidence had been closed and the case mitted. Men learned in the law point that the time-table was not introduced as exhibit and marked for identification as and was not certified as correctness. it will loom large in the fight which is to made to save Chapman's life.

The super-criminal sits in his cell and a super-smile and remarks, blithely, that has never been hung yet and there's a slip twixt the verdict and the noose and may yet be well.

WOMAN'S NIGHT

William Sheffey,

Police Believe That One Man Men, Wounded Six Wom Homes—One of the Vic Dreamed That She Saw the Bed and When Show "He Is the Man"—Suspe Held for the Grand Jury DETECTIVES walked up to William Shef "We want you, and you know what for." trained and an officer during the war, re ake."

It hardly seemed credible. Was this the our women and three men, the wounding o ad stealthily entered more than 40 homes in ears? This the man who had crept into da shoulder and whisper words of horror?

The police assert he is. While they have vidence it seems far from conclusive. Be ides, they have three times before announced he arrest of this modern Jack, the Ripper Once they sent a negro to the chair on evi ence that he was the guilty man. Another ime a white man was sentenced to life imrisonment for shooting a police captain who ad arrested him as a suspect. On the third ccasion a 16-year-old boy was charged with he series of crimes, but later released. So his is the fourth man on whom an attempt as been made to fix the identity.

Still, Sheffey has been positively identified y four women. One of them, who had been hot when she resisted the marauder, carried s picture stamped vividly in her mind, so vidly that she awoke from a nightmare at e hospital and screamed, "He's standing at e foot of my bed! Take him away, take him way." They told her no man was there, and en showed her Sheffey's picture.

"He was there," she insisted. "This is his cture!"

Anonymous Letters

In the evidence against Sheffey, also, are number of anonymous letters written to the lice. The writer boasted of his exploits, ughed at police efforts to catch him. He clared that he was the man responsible for ery tragic raid on a Tennessee home during e period marked with such attacks. The tters showed a diseased mentality and a oating so bestial that detectives said, "When e find the writer of these we have our man."

An attempt will be made to show by hand- iting experts that Sheffey wrote the let- rs. In addition to the identifications and e letters police have the circumstantial in- rence of guilt shown by Sheffey's attempts run away from Knoxville when word got t that he was wanted. He was arrested en about to board an auto bus leaving the y.

Fearing mob violence authorities rushed effey to jail in another county where he is ld pending action by the grand jury now in sion. The accused man is a native of Haw- s County, Tenn., and is 32 years old. He s educated at Carson Newman College, Jef- son City, but did not complete the four-year urse. There it is said that Sheffey was a illiant student, but marked among his fel- s for an unsociable attitude.

WOMAN'S NIGHTMARE LEADS TO ARREST OF MAN FOR SEVEN "JACK THE RIPPER" MURDERS

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., April 18.

DETECTIVES walked up to William Sheffey on the street here the other day and said, "We want you, and you know what for." Sheffey, a scholarly looking man, university trained and an officer during the war, replied, "Gentlemen, there must be some mistake."

It hardly seemed credible. Was this the vicious degenerate wanted for the murders of four women and three men, the wounding of six other women? Was this the fiend who had stealthily entered more than 40 homes in Knox and Blount Counties during the last six years? This the man who had crept into darkened bedrooms to tap sleeping women on the shoulder and whisper words of horror?

The police assert he is. While they have evidence it seems far from conclusive. Besides, they have three times before announced the arrest of this modern Jack, the Ripper. Once they sent a negro to the chair on evidence that he was the guilty man. Another time a white man was sentenced to life imprisonment for shooting a police captain who had arrested him as a suspect. On the third occasion a 16-year-old boy was charged with the series of crimes, but later released. So this is the fourth man on whom an attempt has been made to fix the identity.

Still, Sheffey has been positively identified by four women. One of them, who had been shot when she resisted the marauder, carried his picture stamped vividly in her mind, so vividly that she awoke from a nightmare at the hospital and screamed, "He's standing at the foot of my bed! Take him away, take him away." They told her no man was there, and then showed her Sheffey's picture.

"He was there," she insisted. "This is his picture!"

Anonymous Letters

In the evidence against Sheffey, also, are a number of anonymous letters written to the police. The writer boasted of his exploits, laughed at police efforts to catch him. He declared that he was the man responsible for every tragic raid on a Tennessee home during the period marked with such attacks. The letters showed a diseased mentality and a gloating so bestial that detectives said, "When we find the writer of these we have our man."

An attempt will be made to show by handwriting experts that Sheffey wrote the letters. In addition to the identifications and the letters police have the circumstantial inference of guilt shown by Sheffey's attempts to run away from Knoxville when word got out that he was wanted. He was arrested when about to board an auto bus leaving the city.

Fearing mob violence authorities rushed Sheffey to jail in another county where he is held pending action by the grand jury now in session. The accused man is a native of Hawkins County, Tenn., and is 32 years old. He was educated at Carson Newman College, Jefferson City, but did not complete the four-year course. There it is said that Sheffey was a brilliant student, but marked among his fellows for an unsociable attitude.

After leaving college he taught school in three different districts in Sevier County. When the United States entered the war he enlisted as a private soldier and applied for transfer to an officers' training camp. Here he was commissioned a Lieutenant, and served in France. He resigned from the army after the armistice and was at the time of his arrest holding a position with the Aluminum Co. of America which has a plant at Alcoa, near Knoxville.

Sheffey has twice been married. His first wife died after the birth of a son, and the second lived with him only two years. In 1915 Sheffey was indicted for the murder of Dora Davis, a schoolgirl of Sevier County, tried and acquitted. This had been the only black mark against his name.

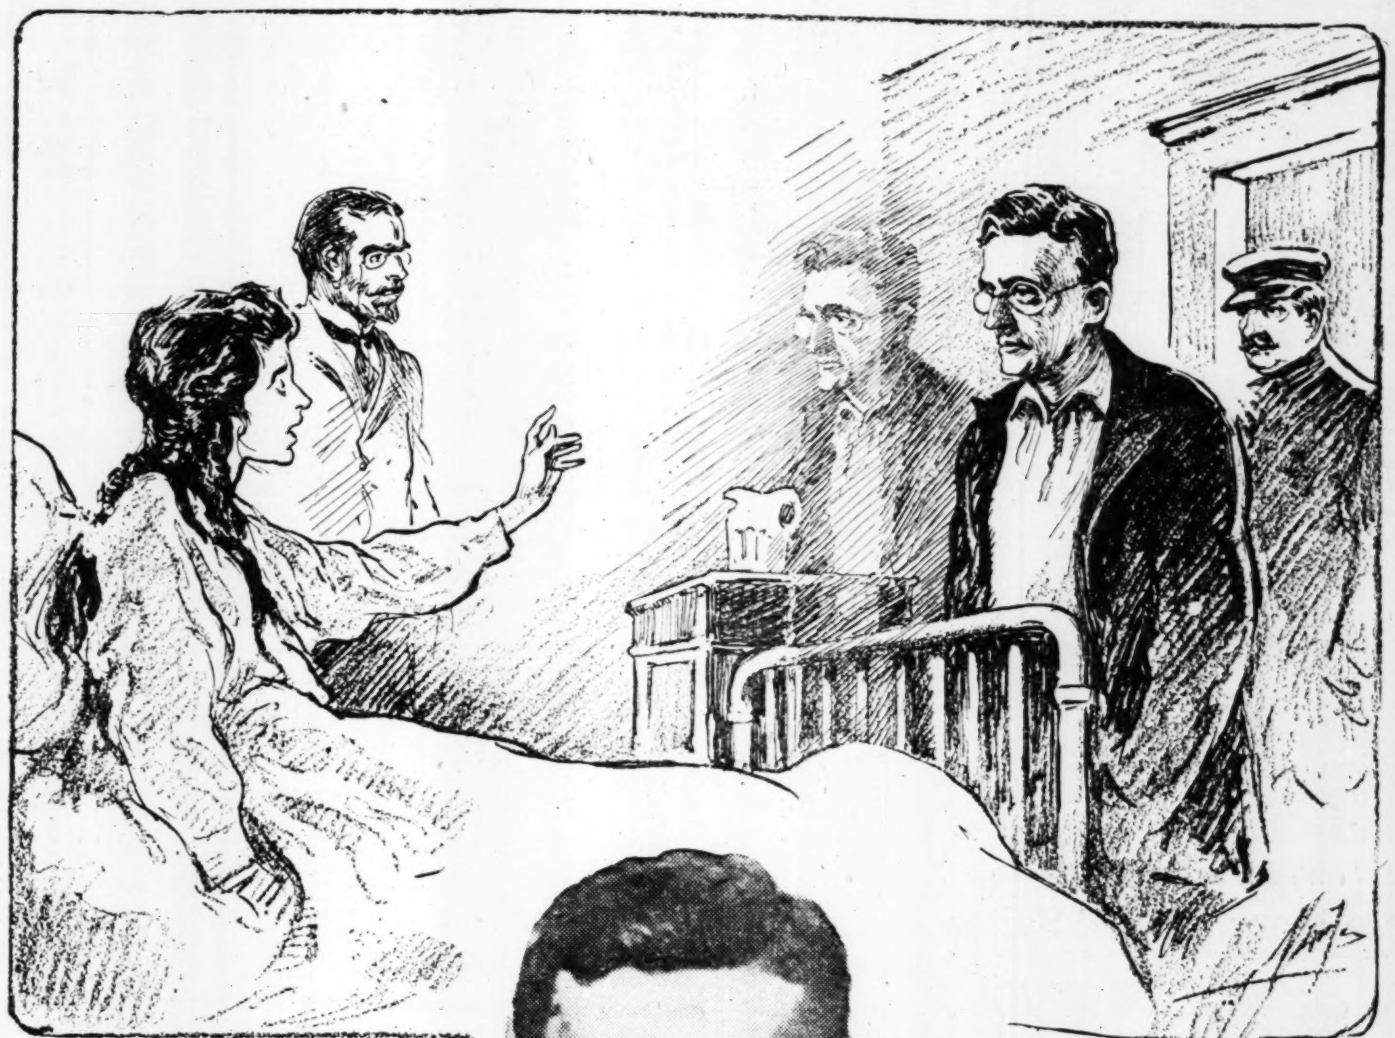
In jail Sheffey maintains his attitude of outraged innocence. He affects not to understand why the police should hold him, frequently bursting into tirades at what he calls their stupidity.

The first of the series of depredations which spread terror through Knox and Blount counties occurred the night of June 5, 1919. Mrs. Della Cunningham of Knoxville was awakened shortly after midnight by a man's hand placed on her shoulder. The intruder warned her to be quiet, threatening her with a revolver. She struggled and screamed and he fired once, wounding her. Then he fled. Upon recovery she was able to give a description of her assailant.

Paid With Her Life

During the next month reports of a prowler came to the police, and one night the home of Mrs. Bertie Lindsey was entered. Neighbors awakened by the shot found her lying on the floor of her bedroom, dead. The disordered room gave evidence that she, too, had resisted, and paid with her life.

Stirred by these happenings, police combed the town for negroes of bad repute and arrested Maurice Mays. He protested his innocence, but was tried and sentenced to death on circumstantial evidence, it being mainly that he could not satisfactorily account for his whereabouts that night. The case was appealed to the State Supreme Court and its decision ordered a new trial. Again Mays was sentenced to death. Gov. Taylor granted a 90-day reprieve, and while sympathizers were working for a pardon or a commutation of sentence, 15 other attacks on women occurred.



"He was there," she insisted, "this is the man I saw in my dream."

This seemed to prove that the marauder was still at large, unless there was more than one. Mays did not win his plea for mercy, and he was electrocuted, maintaining innocence to the last.

Acts of a Fiend

Attacks on women in homes at night continued. In August, 1920, Mrs. Eunice Robinson was shot three times when she fought the marauder and died two days later. A month later Miss Alice Burnett was fatally wounded when she and a friend struggled with a man who had entered their bedroom.

The murder of Mrs. Ida Tilson, occuring a short while after, convinced the police that they had one fiend to deal with. The same man, they argued, was committing each crime, for the methods used were always the same. Usually the marauder picked homes where women were staying alone.

The night of Nov. 7, 1921, the marauder entered the home of Lester Dooley of Knoxville. Dooley was shot and killed when he attempted to defend his bride. This being a particularly atrocious case, an intense search for the murderer was instituted and the trail seemed to lead to John Honeycutt, alias J. H. Murray who was captured at Shortleaf, Ala. Honeycutt shot Police Captain J. J. Schneider in the scuffle and was tried for assault to kill. He was given a life sentenc and died in prison two years later.

WILLIAM SHEFFEY.

The Scene Shifted

Then the scene of the terrifying night visits shifted to Alcoa in Blunt County, which adjoins Knox. The first attack occurred there in June, 1923. Several homes were entered during the summer and women ravished. In December, 1923, Luther Wells was shot to death and his wife badly wounded when they resisted the intruder. A year afterwards, the interval being dotted with midnight attacks on women, Clyde Poe was fatally shot defending his seventeen-year-old wife. The fiend ravished her while Poe lay dying.

Wright Saffles, a 16-year-old schoolboy, who had been a sweetheart of Mrs. Poe before her marriage, was arrested as a suspect. The evidence against the lad was scanty, and police finally satisfied themselves that once more the real culprit had slipped through their fingers. Few of the women were able to give coherent accounts of what had happened or descriptions of their assailant. But after carefully checking up all their stories the preponderance of testimony seemed to be that the marauder was a white man.

Between one attack and the next the Knoxville police would receive letters, unsigned, but appearing to have been written by the marauder. They were correctly spelled and worded gramamtically, although the wording showed a disordered mind.

Investigators saw significance in the shifting of the marauder's activities from Knoxville to the Alcoa district. They guessed that he had become frightened by Knoxville police inquiries and had withdrawn to work on more familiar ground. The fact that he always seemed to know the habits of those whose homes he invaded argued that here was no chance stranger, but one familiar with the neighborhood.

Process of Elimination

From this point it got down to a process of elimination. Alcao is a small community, with its share of gossip. Hints let drop by acquaintances suggested Sheffey. It was learned from inquiry at his home that he habitually kept late hours, sometimes being away all night. Postmarks on the letters showed most of them had been mailed at Alcoa. Descriptions of the marauder as to height and weight and general build tallied with Sheffey's measurements. Photographs of the suspect were obtained, and an investigator spent three months interviewing victims or their relatives.

Four women said: "That's the man." Others were not so sure, but four positive identifications satisfied the police. An order was sent out to keep him under continual surveillance. The authorities hoped that he would attempt another visit to an Alcoa home and would be captured in the act. But Sheffey, if indeed he is the guilty one, seemed to divine that he was being watched. He became very restless, seldom remaining in Alcoa at night and leading the watchers off on countless blind trails. For a while it was a waiting game, while detectives reassured themselves that it could be no mistake. They felt as many here do now that Sheffey was a most unlikely suspect. Yet all the evidence pointed to him.

Finally, as a test, an order was sent for his arrest on a certain day. Two days before the time set, Sheffey left Alcoa and went to Knoxville. A police cordon was thrown around the city and for 48 hours there was a feverish search.

He was discovered at a bus terminal on April 12. Detectives believe that he meant to make a dash for freedom. But he submitted quietly to arrest, saying only, "Gentlemen, there must be some mistake."

The people of these East Tennessee counties hope that their night enemy has been taken. Sheffey's guilt will be determined in court. Meanwhile Knoxville and Alcoa women are still bolting their doors securely. Perhaps the marauder is still at large. Maybe he will come again.

THE LEOPARD-MEN.

The extraordinary missionary, priest, and physician, Albert Schweitzer, whose talents range from critical theology through medicine to music, has just published a new book of his African experiences under the title News from Lambarene, says the current Living Age. Schweitzer is, without doubt, one of the most interesting figures of our century, and certainly one of the figures which does the century most credit. Revolutionary theologian, authority on Bach, concert organist, missionary and doctor of medicine—a Jack-of-all-trades who is master of most of them—he long ago turned his back on the brilliant career that Europe offered him, and at the age of 50 buried himself in the African jungle to devote his life to helping the negroes.

The Prager Tagblatt publishes a few paragraphs from the new book in which Schweitzer describes the African equivalent of what in European folklore, a few centuries ago, would have been known as werewolves.

"Our talk turned on the society of leopard-men, whose uncanny activities have developed greatly in the last few years. They spread over the whole West Coast of Africa. The Duala missionaries told me of districts which were so terrorized by leopard-men that no one ventured out of his hut after dusk. Two years ago a leopard-man committed a murder in the Lambarene mission station itself.

"Leopard-men have the obsession that they are real leopards and as such must kill other men. In their killings they act like leopards. They go on all fours and tie real leopard-claws or iron imitations to their hands and feet in order to leave tracks like the leopard's, and they tear open the arteries of the throat, as a leopard does. The remarkable and uncanny thing is that most leopard-men do this quite involuntarily. They are made members of the society of leopard-men without knowing it. A magic potion made from the blood of a murdered man is mixed in a human skull. The individual elected to membership has some of this secretly mixed with his ordinary drink. When it is too late, it is explained to him that he belongs henceforward to the brotherhood. No man can withstand this revelation. The belief that the magic drink has magic power which no man can evade dominates them all. Involuntarily they obey. They are usually compelled to lure a brother or a sister somewhere where leopard-men can attack and slay them. After this they must themselves kill.

"An official in the interior of the Ogowe territory, who received orders this month to suppress the leopard-men, caught 90 of them, but none bestrayed his fellows. Instead, they poisoned each other in prison."

Fiftieth Anniversary of Corot's Death Recalls His Struggles

Special Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch.

PARIS.—It is the fiftieth anniversary of the death of Corot.

His pastoral paintings seem to have had always a strong fascination for Americans, and a large proportion of them have gone to enrich American collections.

A Parisian authority, speaking on this point the other day, said:

"Corot left about 1500 canvasses, of which 3000 are in the United States."

He would have been mighty glad during his lifetime, to have had a small commission in advance on the prices fetched since by his pictures, and even by the pictures which he did not paint, but which have been attributed to him.

Towards the end of his life his works became greatly sought after, and he bought up to some extent on his earlier sacrifices. He made hay while the sun shone, and even dragged out of his garret all his early sketches and unfinished canvasses, which were eagerly bought up by dealers.

The result of this popularity was that many imitators sprung up, and the market was so flooded with spurious Corots that the experts have not got them all sorted out.

Of course anybody who can't tell the difference between a real Corot and an imitation has no business bothering his head about the matter.

Corot's admirers in 1874, a few months before his death, were so numerous that when the jury of the Paris Salon refused to award him the gold medal they made a terrible demonstration and immediately raised a fund by subscription, with which they bought him a gold medal, bigger and handsomer than the Salon prize, and presented it to him.

Two months later he was dead.

Sargent's Seeing Eye

LONDON.—Sir Squire Bancroft, famous actor of the Victorian era, in his just published volume of reminiscences entitled "Empty Chairs," tells a story of the discovery of the mental illness of an American girl through the medium of a portrait by Sargent. Bancroft had the story from Alma-Tadema and Sir Aston Webb, and repeats it as told by Tadema, without the names of the parties concerned. A young woman, daughter of wealthy and prominent Americans, was the cause of their great anxiety on account of her health, which puzzled all concerned. At last her doctor advised a year's absence from home and all its surorundings.

The patient first went to London and there conceived a strong wish to be painted by Sargent. He acquiesced and the portrait when finished was highly thought of and was sent to America, while the sitter continued her way to Switzerland and Italy.

The great artist's work delighted the father and mother, who arranged an "at home" that their friends might view it. Among the guests was the doctor who had been so puzzled by the patient's condition. He gazed at the portrait long and earnestly and left the house perturbed and saddened. The following day he sought an interview with the father and told him that Sargent's genius had revealed to him beyond doubt what he had failed to discover himself—insanity. The sequel was that the poor girl afterward died in a madhouse.

Crippled Lothario Blackmailed by His Lady Love

Did you see Lady Wilson-Barker at Bailey's Hotel on that occasion?—Yes.

What took place?—They lunched together and after lunch Mr. Waterhouse asked for the notes and I handed them to him.

Did you give him the envelope?—Yes.

Was Lady Wilson-Barker then with him?—Yes.

Did you leave the room?—Yes.

Lady Wilson-Barker did not take the stand. Her counsel argued that gifts from a gentleman to a lady were not necessarily prima facie evidence of blackmail.

Major Gets Divorce Decree On Cruelty Charge

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON.—A wife's alleged threat to kill herself in front of her husband by throwing herself over a steep cliff was described in the Divorce Court here.

Maj. George Henry Atkinson (retired), of Southport, pleaded that he had just cause for refusing to grant to his wife, Mrs. Mabel Harriet Atkinson, her claim for restitution of conjugal rights.

Maj. Atkinson asked for a judicial separation on the ground of his wife's cruelty.

He said that he was acting inspector of Army Schools at Aldershot when he married his wife in 1902.

In 1905 he went to India, and very soon his wife showed discontent at the state of things. She expected to be taken out a great deal more than he could afford.

While they were living in the Northwest Province he found a letter in his wife's possession to which he objected.

When his wife found that he had it she left the house and went to the edge of a steep cliff. He called to her to return. She refused unless he returned the letter, and threatened to throw herself over.

In these circumstances he returned the letter.

Maj. Atkinson said his wife had threatened to murder him, and to ruin him and drag him through every court in the kingdom. She had destroyed good food by putting it on the fire. She had assaulted his son and himself, and had chased them from the room.

On one occasion he was at the New Brighton cricket ground when his wife came up to him, and he left the ground with her and went and sat in the cemetery. She said she wanted £50,000 ($250,000) from him.

Mrs. Atkinson denied the charges of cruelty, and said she had never threatened to throw herself over a cliff. The letter referred to was harmless, she said.

The Judge said the wife seemed to be an impossible woman to live with. Her petition was dismissed, and the Major was granted a judicial separation on the ground of the wife's cruelty.

Durability of Leather Tested.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—Age alone has little effect in deteriorating leather, the Bureau of Standards has found by tests recently compiled. Samples of leather belting carefully tested 10 years ago and kept in storage since, were again subjected to the strains which they originally underwent. The average loss in strength was barely 15 per cent. Extreme dampness and exposure to direct sunlight were determined to be the factors chiefly responsible for weakening leather goods during storage.

"That Half Sick Half Well Feeling"

THERE is scarcely a person who doesn't sometime experience it. Not ill enough to be in bed—and yet not well enough to be one's normal self.

The trouble frequently is constipation. Even though the bowels seem to move normally, some collection of poisonous waste matter may adhere for days or weeks somewhere in the intestinal tract. And the result is that glum, irritable, out of sorts feeling that you can't explain.

Old-fashioned, over-night cathartics are not the thing for such a condition. What you need is a quick, thorough cleansing with safe, beneficial, non-griping Pluto Water. In 30 minutes to two hours, Pluto starts its work—and you soon become your normal self again.

Get a bottle of Pluto Water today. Physicians prescribe it, druggists sell it and it is bottled at French Lick Springs, Indiana.

EPISCOPAL CONGRESS IN ST. LOUIS MAY 5-8

Morning and Afternoon Round Table Conferences and Evening Mass Meetings.

The Church Congress of the Episcopal Church of the United States will meet in St. Louis May 5 to 8, and there will be morning and afternoon round table conferences, and mass meetings in the evening. All sessions will be held in the Sheldon Memorial auditorium, and many leaders of the Episcopal Church will come from all parts of the country to give addresses and lead in the discussions.

The congress meets every year, and is an open forum for the discussion of many questions. All sessions are open to the public.

There will be a corporate celebration of the Holy Communion in Christ Church Cathedral on Wednesday morning, May 6. In addition to Bishops and clergy, two laymen will speak—Frederick Cook Morehouse of Milwaukee, who is editor of the Living Church, and James G. McDonald of New York, chairman of the Foreign Policy Association. McDonald, who is considered an authority on questions of international relationships, will speak on "The United States in World Relations" at the meeting Wednesday evening, May 6.

The Rt. Rev. Charles Lewis Slattery, D. D., Bishop Coadjutor of Massachusetts, who is general chairman of the Church Congress, will be one of the speakers, and others include Bishop T. C. Darst of East Carolina, Bishop T. P. Thurston of Oklahoma, the Rev. George E. Norton of Rochester, N. Y., former rector of St. Michael and All Angels' Church, St. Louis; the Rev. Floyd Tomkins, D. D., of Philadelphia; the Rev. Randolph Ray, D. D., rector of the "Little Church Around the Corner," the Church of the Transfiguration, New York City, and many other well-known men.

SAFE DRIVING CONTEST TO BE HELD BY WOMEN

Loving Cup to Be Prize Offered in Competition at Forest Park May 9.

Plans are completed for the close of this year's Safe Drivers' School for Women of the Safety Council. Tuesday the last lesson meeting will be held, with a review of the work, at the Chamber of Commerce.

Wednesday about 100 women of the school will have a field day at Forest Park, with demonstrations of the proper operation of various makes of automobiles.

April 29 a written examination in safe driving will be given. On May 6 women who make passing grades in this examination will be awarded certificates at a luncheon at the Chamber of Commerce. On May 9 these women will take part in a safe driving contest in Forest Park, the prize being a loving cup.

EXHIBIT ARRANGED FOR LAFAYETTE CELEBRATION

Glove Worn by General on Visit Here in 1825 Included in Display at Jefferson Memorial.

FRENCH ENVOY TO ATTEND DINNER

Emile Daeschner Will Be Guest of Honor and Speaker at Chase Hotel, Monday, April 27.

A Lafayette exhibition has been arranged by the Missouri Historical Society, Jefferson Memorial, and it is on display now as a feature of the 100th anniversary celebration of the visit of Lafayette to St. Louis in April, 1825. The anniversary is to be observed with a dinner at the Chase Hotel, Monday evening, April 27, at which Emile Daeschner, French Ambassador to the United States, will be the guest of honor and speaker.

There will also be a public meeting that afternoon at the Missouri Historical Society with addresses in both English and French. The dinner is open to all interested and reservations may be made with Mrs. J. P. Higgins, 5330 Pershing avenue. William K. Bixby, David R. Francis, representatives of French societies and many patriotic organizations are members of the Lafayette Centennial Society, and Mrs. N. A. McMillan is chairman.

The exhibit at the Missouri Historical Society includes a glove worn by Gen. Lafayette at the ball given in his honor at the Mansion House, St. Louis, April 29, 1825. Gloves had been made for the occasion with Lafayette's picture embossed on them. When dancing with the famous Frenchman, Miss Julia Paddock remarked that she regretted that her father, Gaius Paddock, could not be present at the ball. Lafayette removed his glove and asked her to give it to her father as a keepsake. His glove and the one worn by Miss Paddock have been lent to the exhibition by Gaius F. Paddock.

A badge worn by a member of the Reception Committee for the ball has been lent by Mrs. Alexander De Menil, and there is a bedspread which is one of a number sent back to the United States by Lafayette, which he had made with a special design for his hostesses on his American tour. Silhouettes and pictures of William Carr Lane, Maj. Thomas Biddle, Wilson P. Hunt, Pierre Chouteau, Auguste Chouteau and others are on exhibition.

A uniform coat of Auguste Chouteau, a sand box of Gen. Bernard Pratte, a liquor case brought from France in 1795 from which Lafayette was served during his visit and a fan carried by one of his partners are among the other interesting features of the display.

RESULTS OF TESTS IN HOME SPELLING

Public School Publication Prints List of Words Given to 6678 Grade Pupils.

Home spelling bees, and lists of words for such a test are given, in the first number of "School and Home," new official publication of the St. Louis public schools. The lists are:

List I.	List II.
go	reference
is	evidence
now	experience
will	session
this	secretary
have	association
eat	career
face	height
forget	organization
brother	emergency
black	appreciate
extra	sincerely
capture	athletic afraid	extreme
enjoy	practical declare	proceed
lose	cordially
stopped	character
circular	separate earliest	immediate testimony	convenient
emergency	receipt
convenient	preliminary decision	disappoint recommend	decision

These words were sent out, not long before the crossword puzzle craze started, to eighth-grade teachers, and were given to 6678 pupils of that grade, to spell. The average success was 91 per cent for List I and 73 per cent for List II. School and Home says:

"Anyone who can spell 23 or more words in List I and 18 or more words in List II will be a better speller than the poorest half of the eighth-grade pupils. Any person spelling fewer than this number correctly will realize that more than 3000 eighth-grade children can spell better than he. Anyone who spells every word correctly in both lists will be as good a speller as nearly 1000 eighth-grade pupils who did the same thing."

LINDENWOOD TO OBSERVE BUTLER DAY ON APRIL 23

Tribute Will Be Paid to Memory of "Largest Benefactor" of the College.

The annual observance of Butler day, in memory of the late Col. James Gay Butler, "Lindenwood's largest benefactor," will be held Thursday, April 23, at Lindenwood College, with a program in remembrance of Col. and Mrs. Butler. Together, they gave more than $3,000,000 to the college. The dormitories, Butler, Niccolls and Irwin, were built with Butler funds, as was also the $500,000 Roemer Hall, used for administrative and class purposes; and Margaret Hall, the music conservatory, was purchased and remodeled by Col. Butler.

President John L. Roemer will be chairman of Thursday's exercises. A number of the alumnae and friends from St. Louis will attend. Col. Butler died in 1916, and his widow, a little more than a year later.

ACIDS IN STOMACH CAUSE INDIGESTION

Create Gas, Sourness and Pain How To Treat.

Medical authorities state that nearly nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble, indigestion, sourness, burning, gas, bloating, nausea, etc., are due to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach and not as some believe to a lack of digestive juices. The delicate stomach lining is irritated, digestion is delayed and food sours, causing the disagreeable symptoms which every stomach sufferer knows so well.

Artificial digestants are not needed in such cases, and may do real harm. Try laying aside all digestive aids and instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This sweetens the stomach, prevents the formation of excess acid, and there is no sourness, gas or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and is the most efficient form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

7-STORY BUILDING ON WASHINGTON AVENUE IS SOLD

Structure at 815-17 Disposed of by Franciscus Realty Co. to Moritz Cohen.

HOTEL LEASEHOLD CHANGES HANDS

Control of the Laclede Property Acquired by Interests With Large Building Plans.

By Berry Moore.

Prominent transactions of the week involved 815-17 Washington avenue and control of the 99-year leasehold of the Laclede Hotel building and site, at the southeast corner of Sixth and Chestnut streets.

The Washington avenue property, consisting of a massive seven-story building, 29x145 feet, was sold by the Franciscus Realty Co. for the Claverlack Realty and Investment Co., to Moritz Cohen, in connection with the Holbrook-Blackwelder Real Estate Trust Co. The first floor of the building is occupied by Gluck's Restaurant, while the upper floors consists of lofts, available for wholesale or light manufacturing purposes.

The Claverlack Corporation, which is composed of the Boland heirs, acquired the property from W. K. Bixby in part payment for the Boland tract on the Clayton road and on Wydown boulevard, now comprising the Moorlands, a subdivision developed by the Moorlands Lands Co., composed of Sidney Bixby, F. L. Cornwell, attorney, W. K. Holbrook, president of the Holbrook-Blackwelder Real Estate Co., and others.

Consideration Not Reported.

The Franciscus Realty Co. declined to disclose the consideration in the sale, which, according to real estate authorities, probably was on a basis in the neighborhood of $5000 a foot for the Washington avenue frontage of 29 feet, with a substantial profit accruing to the Boland heirs, on a basis of its acquisition by these interests.

On the other hand, the profits incident to the subdivision of the Boland tract, as the Moorlands, has enriched those composing the Moorlands Land Co. beyond their most sanguine expectations. The subdivision venture stands out as an unprecedented success.

The Franciscus Realty Co. also negotiated a lease of a store at 819 Washington avenue on behalf of Mrs. Elizabeth Bailey, widow of Charles H. Bailey of Tampa, Fla., to Hockman & Hockman, who conduct a chain of "army and navy" stores.

H. A. Sodini, who recently acquired a 99-year lease of the Laclede Hotel Building and site through Martin & Breitt, business property specialists yesterday announced that he had sold the leasehold to interests with large building plans. He said that the purchasers of the leasehold had elected to remain in the background, pending consummation of the building plans, which will be on an elaborate scale.

Through the sale of the 99-year leasehold, one of the most important in the central business district, both as to dimensions and location, Sodini has realized a bonanza profit in the bonus paid to him for the surrender of this valuable holding. He acquired the leasehold January last from the Griswold estate at an annual net rental of $28,000, a valuation of $560,000 being placed on the property.

Dimensions of Site.

The site has 135 feet on Chestnut street and 110 feet on Sixth street, and is improved with a six-story building, noteworthy as one of the landmarks of the business section of the city.

The lessee under the provisions of the lease is required to erect, within five years, a five-story building on the site costing not less than $200,000.

Immediately this advantageous lease was executed, Sodini declared that it was his intention to replace

HOTEL LEASEHOLD CHANGES HANDS

Control of the Laclede Property Acquired by Interests With Large Building Plans.

By Berry Moore.

Prominent transactions of the week involved 815-17 Washington avenue and control of the 99-year leasehold of the Laclede Hotel building and site, at the southeast corner of Sixth and Chestnut streets.

The Washington avenue property, consisting of a massive seven-story building, 29x145 feet, was sold by the Franciscus Realty Co. for the Claverlack Realty and Investment Co., to Moritz Cohen, in connection with the Holbrook-Blackwelder Real Estate Trust Co. The first floor of the building is occupied by Gluck's Restaurant, while the upper floors consists of lofts, available for wholesale or light manufacturing purposes.

The Claverlack Corporation, which is composed of the Boland heirs, acquired the property from W. K. Bixby in part payment for the Boland tract on the Clayton road and on Wydown zoulevard, now comprising the Moorlands, a subdivision developed by the Moorlands Lands Co., composed of Sidney Bixby, F. L. Cornwell, attorney, W. K. Holbrook, president of the Holbrook-Blackwelder Real Estate Co., and others.

Consideration Not Reported.

The Franciscus Realty Co. declined to disclose the consideration in the sale, which, according to real estate authorities, probably was on a basis in the neighborhood of $5000 a foot for the Washington avenue frontage of 29 feet, with a substantial profit accruing to the Boland heirs, on a basis of its acquisition by these interests.

On the other hand, the profits incident to the subdivision of the Boland tract, as the Moorlands, has enriched those composing the Moorlands Land Co. beyond their most sanguine expectations. The subdivision venture stands out as an unprecedented success.

The Franciscus Realty Co. also negotiated a lease of a store at 819 Washington avenue on behalf of Mrs. Elizabeth Bailey, widow of Charles H. Bailey of Tampa, Fla., to Hockman & Hockman, who conduct a chain of "army and navy" stores.

H. A. Sodini, who recently acquired a 99-year lease of the Laclede Hotel Building and site through Martin & Breitt, business property specialists yesterday announced that he had sold the leasehold to interests with large building plans. He said that the purchasers of the leasehold had elected to remain in the background, pending consummation of the building plans, which will be on an elaborate scale.

Through the sale of the 99-year leasehold, one of the most important in the central business district, both as to dimensions and location, Sodini has realized a bonanza profit in the bonus paid to him for the surrender of this valuable holding. He acquired the leasehold January last from the Griswold estate at an annual net rental of $28,000, a valuation of $560,000 being placed on the property.

Dimensions of Site.

The site has 135 feet on Chestnut street and 110 feet on Sixth street, and is improved with a six-story building, noteworthy as one of the landmarks of the business section of the city.

The lessee under the provisions of the lease is required to erect, within five years, a five-story building on the site costing not less than $300,000.

Immediately this advantageous lease was executed, Sodini declared that it was his intention to replace the present building at once with an eight-story hotel and theater structure, costing $1,500,000. But apparently he acquired the lease as a speculation.

A realty company represented by Frank Dubinisky recently purchased the northeast corner of Sixth and Chestnut streets, while George J. Wanstrath recently purchased the six-story building at 13-19 North Sixth street formerly occupied by the Henry McNichols grocery store, but now under lease to the Conrad Grocery Co. and to others.

Sodini also announced that he had sold the operating company of the Majestic Hotel Co., of which he was proprietor, at the southeast corner of Eleventh and Pine streets, to Chase E. Gillen and Oscar W. Olson. The building is not involved in this transaction, the operating company occupying the premises under a lease other than a 99-year lease. Sodini also made a snug profit through this transaction, it is understood.

Other Deals Reported.

The week resounded with reports of deals for downtown sites, including several prominent corners on Washington avenue and on Olive street, both east and west of Twelfth boulevard. Negotiations have been concluded for two large office buildings, one occupying an Olive street corner east of Twelfth boulevard, in the uptown amusement center, but details are withheld pending final papers.

Plans have been made for a huge department store for the central business district. Prices have been obtained on several sites regarded as eligible for this enterprise. The most enticing of these embraces an entire half block, extending from Pine to Olive streets, in the vicinity of Customs House. The promoters are dickering with a large department store interest in the East who, it is understood, has been in the market for a site here for a major store.

The promoters are flirting with S. W. Straus & Co., investment bankers, in this connection.

It is understood that arrangements have been made with S. W. Straus & Co. for financing the $5,500,000 office building and theater building to be erected by Skouras at the northwest corner of Seventh and Locust streets. This will involve an outlay for construction of $4,000,000 or more. Construction will begin May 1 on this project, which promises to serve as an inspiration for future downtown projects of this type.

ISAAC COOK REAL ESTATE COMPANY CLOSES 3 LEASES

The Isaac T. Cook Real Estate Co. recently closed a deal whereby Roth Bros., Florists, leased the store room at 215 North Seventh street for a long term and will operate the new shop in addition to the floral department at Nugents.

The Arcade building has leased a store room on the Pine street side to Albert S. Davis, representing the Hoffman Gas Water Heater Co., for a display and sales room.

The Angelica Jacket Co., manufacturers of aprons, jackets and distributors of hotel and culinary supplies, have taken a lease on the fourth and fifth floors of the building at 1419-21 Olive street, together with the store at 1419-21 Olive street, for their office and factory. The company will occupy 40,000 square feet with the additional space.

The Ramsey Accessory Manufacturing Co. leased the second floor of the building at 1107 North Fifteenth street.

Cook's office also reports the sale of the three-story building at 1418 Franklin avenue to Max Goldberg. The Chauncey P. Heath Co. represented the seller, Jessie Weiss.

KOBERMAN'S HOMESITE SOLD 90 LOTS WITHIN 15 DAYS

It does not happen very often that a subdivision of 98 lots is sold in less than 15 days, as was the case of the Koberman-Gravin Homesite at Robert and Nagel avenues.

These 15 acres were bought and paid for all in cash on Friday, April 3. On Sunday, April 5, the selling began and today there are only eight lots left. All improvements will be installed by Aug. 1, 1925, or the money paid for the lots will be returned to the purchaser plus 5 per cent interest on demand.

P. N. Zimmer Joins Wanstrath.

P. N. Zimmer, for many years in the grocery and meat business in North St. Louis and recently with the Edward L. Kuhs Realty Co., has joined the sales force of the Wanstrath Realty Co., Lowell Bank building.

REMMERT CO. SELLS ANOTHER HOME IN COUNTRY CLUB COURT

Fred W. Priep, president of the Tower Grove Foundry Co., has purchased 7701 Country Club court, a new addition on Hanley road, one block north of Wydown boulevard, being developed by the Remmert Construction Co. This is the fifth hous edisposed of in this addition. The other purchasers are Clark Wessels, Ladies' Home Baking Co.; Charles D. Temm, druggist, Marcus and Easton; Henry Delkeskamp, Bauer & Black surgical supplies, and Edward L. McBride.

Four more of these modern homes are nearing completion and the ground has been broken for five more. When completed the residences will be grouped in horseshoe form around a 30-foot concrete roadway, which in turn surrounds a center grass plot, planted with shrubs and evergreen trees. Large white pillars, which serve as light standards form an attractive entrance to this district.

CONTEST FOR PRESIDENCY OF REALTY EXCHANGE

John J. Dowling and Bernard F. Dickmann, the Opposing Candidates — Election Next Tuesday.

What promises to be a battle royal in its most acute form is scheduled for next Tuesday when the electorate of the St. Louis Real Estate Exchange will choose a president and six new directors to serve during the ensuing year.

John J. Dowling is pitted against Bernard F. Dickmann for the presidency. Both Dickmann and Dowling are among the organization's most aggressive members. Each has served as director and as secretary. Dowling formerly was vice president of the National Organization.

John W. Gibson, now president of the organization, is leading the fight for Dickmann, while C. M. McDonald, a former president, is Dowling's chief sponsor.

The candidates for the board of directors are William W. Butts, Joseph M. Darst, John W. Gibson, Madge Lang Gregg, Chauncey P. Heath, Isaac A. Hedges, H. J. Korte, William M. Proetz, John J. Reardon, Herman Tegethoff, Delbert S. Wenzlick.

The contest holds more than ordinary interest with a woman, Madge Lang Gregg, in the race for the directorate. She has sent out postals with the slogan: "I am for you, are you for me?"

A. R. Schollmeyer, a former president of the exchange and a veteran in Real Estate Exchange politics, is directing her campaign.

William H. Proetz of the Proetz-Schnell Real Estate Co.; Isaac A. Hedges and Delbert S. Wenzlick are making their first race for the directorate.

ST. LOUIS THEATER TO BE READY SEPT. 1

Novel Features Introduced in Grand Boulevard Playhouse That Will Seat 4000.

Work on the new St. Louis Theater, now in course of construction at the southeast corner of Grand boulevard and Morgan street, is going ahead with the idea of having the structure completed by Sept. 1. The theater will represent an investment close to $2,000,000. It is being built by the Metropolitan Theaters Corporation, the majority of the stock being held by Dave Sommers and Sam Koplar. The theater will be operated by the Metropolitan Amusement Co. which has arranged with the Orpheum Circuit Co. to produce popular-priced Orpheum acts as well as first-class feature photoplays. The theater will have a seating capacity of more than 4000.

The theater, which will be of fireproof steel and concrete construction, will have a frontage of 148 feet on Grand boulevard by a depth of 186 feet along Morgan street. The front will be of brick, stone and terra cotta and in height will be equivalent to a seven-story structure. It will be the largest theater in the Middle West devotedly exclusively to theatrical purposes.

The building was designed by Rapp & Rapp of Chicago, theater architects.

Waldheim-Platt & Co., Inc., of St. Louis, and Stern Bros. & Co. of Kansas City have underwritten a bond issue on the building.

SPECIAL SALE OF LOTS

A special sale will be held at Watson Terrace today under the auspices of the Rohn Realty Co. This tract is located in Southwest St. Louis, on the Watson road, and is attractive for bungalows and small homes. It is being sold at prices ranging from $15 a foot up and on liberal terms.

A total of 135 of the 550 lots comprising this tract have been sold, the purchasers in the main having building plans.

A staff of salesmen will be on the grounds to assist prospective purchasers.

OFFERS:
Elegant 12-Family Nearing Completion
On the corner of Page and Temple (5600 west) I have to offer for the first time an exceptionally attractive and well-built 12-family.
This is an exceptional apartment building with its 16-foot living rooms and bedrooms, its marble entrances and its exterior elegantly adorned with stone and terra cotta.
Price and particulars at office.

Easton, Taylor Stores
4431-33-35 Easton, consists of 3 stores, 6 flats and brick garages for 10 cars.
In this massive building the stores have always been rented, the flats have all conveniences, and the property has always had a good and steady income. Apply for statement which gives full particulars.

Rent $2040, Price $14,500. First Deed of Trust, $10,000
I have a building in the 2500 block of S. Broadway consisting of 2 stores and 3 flats renting reasonably at $170 per month. This can be bought at the reasonable price stated above, and subject to a first deed of trust for $10,000, which has practically 3 years still to run.
Speculators! Here's your chance.

Rent $1440 Price $7600
At 3809-11 N. Broadway (next to the McKinley station) I have a fine large building, the first floor of which is leased as general offices of a large concern; second floor has 8 rooms, 2 toilets, electric; rooms behind the stores and garages. Owner will sell on terms and at the low price stated above.

LIVE IN ONE RENT THE OTHER
5553-55 Vernon are two 8-room attached houses that afford the combination of a splendid investment and a home in one. Property is well constructed and situated on a good lot, with garage, and, best of all, it can be bought with $2500 cash and at an attractive figure. For card to inspect see

HEDGLEIGH PARK

UNION AND NATURAL BRIDGE

THE $5,000,000.00 SUBDIVISION

IS ONE YEAR OLD

On April 15th, 1924, this tract of ground was bought from the Hydraulic Press Brick Company and a contract let to the Fruin-Colnon Contracting Company to grade and improve with sewers, watermains, streets and sidewalks. On June 15, 1924 the first buildings were begun. Today, at the end of twelve months, our sales aggregate over 7000 front feet and more than one hundred buildings have been built or are under way, consisting of bungalows, residences, flats, apartment houses and business structures. The Board of Education has approved plans for a magnificent Stadium and High School adjoining.

More than $5,000,000.00 is being spent in this area bounded by Union Boulevard, Natural Bridge Road, Kingshighway and St. Louis Avenue.

Today we invite the public out to see what has been accomplished in a year. You will see a wonderful assortment of bungalows, flats and apartments of the most modern construction. You may find just the bungalow or apartment you are looking for. Some are for sale—some for rent—all are open for your inspection.

There are less than one hundred lots left in this entire subdivision—the best location in St. Louis for bungalows, flats and apartments.

COUNTRY CLUB COURT

Hanley Road, One Block North of Wydown Boulevard

Real Bargains in Residences of Superior Quality

This beautiful Court will be improved with residences of superior quality only. No apartments. No flats. When completed it will consist of eighteen attractive homes grouped in horseshoe form around a concrete roadway which surrounds a park planted with evergreen trees and shrubbery. A number of these homes are now occupied by their owners; others are completed and ready for sale, some are in the course of construction, and will be completed in the very near future. Forty more houses will be built on ground adjacent to Country Club Court.

The homes in this Court have seven, eight and nine rooms, with sun rooms and large front and rear porches. They have every modern convenience; are beautifully decorated, have very attractive lighting fixtures, and are metal weatherstripped. The entire house is finished with Huttig's Satin Brand millwork.

These homes must be seen to be appreciated. They are today the best buy on the market. Don't fail to inspect these homes before buying or building. If we are not erecting just the home you wish, select your homesite here and we will build and finance a home in accordance with your plans. Prices range from $17,500.00 to $30,000.00.

Take Wydown Boulevard at Skinker Road, then west to Hanley Road and one block north.

Opening—One Week From Today

THE MANSION IN DAVIS PLACE

The Most Pretentious Exhibition of Home Decorating and Furnishing Ever Attempted in St. Louis

THE stately home located on a beautiful elevation overlooking the new Davis Place, on Clayton Road, is being transformed into a magnificent country mansion. It will be formally thrown open to the public Sunday, April 26th.

One of the finest dining rooms ever exhibited in St. Louis — a living room, completely furnished, and decorated in wall panel effects never before seen in this city—these are some of the surprises in store for you at "The Mansion."

Drive out today and get your first view of the place which is going to be the talk of St. Louis this Summer. See the beautiful sloping lawns, the orchards in bloom, as you roam about the spacious grounds.

Then watch next Sunday's Post-Dispatch for further details.

Decorations and Furnishings in "The Mansion" are by

The Chance of a Lifetime in Davis Place

DAVIS PLACE, the new subdivision located in the heart of the finest residential district in St. Louis, offers the chance of a lifetime.

It will be restricted to a modern type of two-family dwellings, in which the duplex feature will be entirely concealed. Seven of these homes are already under construction.

Lots in Davis Place, due to its location and the price of property surrounding it, are bound to increase rapidly in value in the next 12 months.

You can pay all cash, one-half cash, or as low as $600 a lot and $35 monthly. The two-family dwelling plan makes it possible to own a magnificent home and have an income from it at the same time.

Davis Place will set a new record for high-class subdivision development in St. Louis.

Location of Davis Place

Davis Place is located at the intersections of Polo Drive, Hanley, Clayton and North and South Roads. One way entrance to "The Mansion" on North and South Road, four blocks south of Clayton Courthouse. Davis Place is served by two street car lines and three boulevards.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

The Post-Dispatch reserves the right to reject any query. Personal and telephone calls, or answers by mail, cannot be given attention, except letters on medical questions of undoubted sincerity when accompanied by stamped addressed envelope.

L. H. S.—The 10-cent piece of the mint of 1875 is worth from 10c to 15c.

MRS. — To exterminate moles from a garden or lawn take a tablespoonful of turpentine, mix it well with a cupful of ordinary salt and scatter in their runways with a spoon.

SUNDAY. — To remove mildew, take a paste of bleaching powder and water and allow the paste to remain on the fabric for a day or two. Keep the paste damp while it is on the material. Finally wash the fabric and dry in the sun.

ANXIOUS.—The earth's sensible atmosphere extends more than 100 miles in height. The condition and motions of this aerial ocean play a most important part in the determination of climate, modifying, by absorbing the otherwise intense heat of the sun and when laden with clouds, hindering the earth from radiating its required heat into space.

J. B.—Flag day, June 14, is the anniversary of the adoption of the Stars and Stripes by the Continental Congress in 1777. The day has been more or less observed since 1889. In that year George Bolch, a New York teacher, commemorated the birth of the flag with special patriotic exercises by his kindergarten pupils. Patriotic societies took up the observance and Flag day has become well established.

G. A. M.—Inquire of the steamship offices here for the information desired.

DAILY READER. — We would advise you to send the curtain to a cleaner for best results.

KEATON.—See answer to "J. B." in the paper of April 3 regarding the Meramec River.

JUNE S.—Inquire of the Barnes Hospital Clinic, 600 South Kingshighway. This clinic is located nearest your home.

A. M. J. — You may have the work done at either the St. Louis University School of Dentistry, Grand and Caroline street, or the Washington University Dental Clinic, 2900 Locust street. A moderate charge for appliances is all the expense attached to the work.

G. B.—Send the manuscript to a publishing house in legible form and if it is accepted the firm will notify you. To protect your title it is best to have the manuscript copyrighted before submitting it for publication. There are two ways of selling a composition, either outright or on a royalty basis. Any composer runs a risk, of course, in submitting music, the same as a writer of verse. The merits of the composition and the probability of its being a salable number rest entirely with the publisher. Further information may be had by addressing any music publishing concern. To have music copyrighted address the Register of Copyrights, Library of Congress, Washington, D. C.

LEGAL INFORMATION.

(By a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association.)

BUD.—If the owner has agreed to waive the one month's written notice, and does not require it, then he cannot claim later on that it should have been given.

R. F. A.—His sentence in the penitentiary begins to run from the date he enters prison. He is allowed approximately three months a year off of his time for good behavior.

M. E.—A farmer raising his own products does not have to have a license to sell them. You must have a license in order to sell the meats.

J. C.—(1) If the money in the bank account is actually yours and has been deposited by you and not by your mother, then he can reach it by garnishment or attachment, even though the accounts are in the names stated. (2) He has no means of ascertaining that you have an account, except by inquiry of the various banks, and most banks would refuse to give out such information. (3) He will have to get personal service on you, unless you are a nonresident and cannot be served here. (4) He can sue immediately after you move out, but can only get judgment for one month's rent then, as future installmnets would not be due. If he re-rents the apartment, or has an opportunity to, that reduces your liability proportionately.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS.

Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnosis or treatment of individual cases will not be given

MRS. C. B.—There is no such condition as you mention in your letter.

N. E. B.—There is no solution which will remove hair permanently. Remedies for temporary removal can be obtained in any drug store.

SUFFERER.—No internal remedy is of the slightest use. The condition needs surgical dials or cutting, or likely both. Such conditions are, as a rule, curable.

MOTHER.—The danger of infection in a case such as mentioned in your letter is very slight. If the clothes are immediately boiled there can be none.

O. B. L.—We suggest douching with the following: Equal parts of salt, sugar and cooking soda, well mixed. A teaspoonful to a pint of water. Follow with a spray of pineoleum oil.

MRS. B. K. — The following might be tried for the condition: Liq. potassae, 4 drams; tinct. hyoscyamin, 3 drams; mucilag. acaciae, 1½ ounces; aq. menth. pip., enough added to make 4 ounces. A dessertspoonful in water after meals. If this does not relieve, consult a physician for examination.

MOTHER.—Pellagra is a constitutional disease with skin discoloration, scaling, thickening, pigmentation and later shrinking of the skin, with intestinal and nervous complications. First stage, general feeling of ill health and low spirits, followed by skin inflammation of hands, feet, neck and face, followed by scaling. There may be small or large blisters. Symptoms disappear in winter, reappearing in the spring with increased severity. Second stage: Increased pigmentation with moist surfaces and cracks. Marked constitutional disturbances followed by weakness, fever, sleeplessness, nausea, indigestion, etc. Third stage: All symptoms of second stage increase in severity, insanity is common. Death may come early. Average duration of disease, five years. The disease is generally fatal.

IN MEMORIAM

On April 17, 1924, William J. Frese, beloved by wife and all who knew him, passed quietly away to his eternal home. Forever remembered.
WIFE.

In memory of our dear husband and father, Joseph Kraus Jr., who passed away two years ago, April 18, 1923. Gone but not forgotten.
Sadly missed by WIFE AND SON.

In sad but loving memory of our dear daughter and sister, Helen Paust Durst, who departed this life April 20, 1923.
Sadly missed by PARENTS AND SISTER.

In sad memory of my dear daughter and sister, Annie Gleason, sister of the late Robert Maddock, who departed from us April 20, 1919. Remember your birthday, 21st. Gone but not forgotten. Sadly missed by MOTHER, SISTER AND BROTHERS.

In loving remembrance of our dear husband, father, father-in-law and grandfather, Harry Blackmore, who departed this life five years ago, April 1, 1920.
Not dead to us, we love you, dear;
Not lost, but gone before.
You live with us in memory,
And will forevermore.
Sadly missed by HIS FAMILY. (c)

In loving memory of our dear son and brother, Joe Wallace, who suddenly passed away April 20, 1922:
Today recalls sad memory
Of the loved one gone to rest,
And those who think of him today
Are the ones who loved him best.
Sadly missed by
MOTHER AND SISTER.

In loving memory of our dear son and brother, Rudolph J. Willmann, who departed this life April 21, 1924:
There are sorrows so deep in human hearts
That cannot be half revealed.
May his soul, through the mercy of God,
rest in peace.
Sadly missed by all.

In loving memory of our dear mother, Caroline Bredemeyer, who departed this life one year ago, April 19, 1924.
Loving mother, true and kind,
No friend like her on earth we'll find.
God called her home, it was His will,
Within our hearts she lingers still.
Sadly missed by her CHILDREN AND GRANDCHILDREN.

In loving memory of my dear husband, John Raining, who departed this life April 16, 1923.
There are deep sorrows in human hearts
That can not be half revealed.
May his soul, through the mercy of God,
rest in peace. MRS. KATE RAINING AND CHILDREN. (c)

Sacred to the memory of Clarence E. Mitchell, who departed this life April 18, 1922.
Surrounded by friends, we are lonesome;
In the midst of our pleasures we're blue.
A smile on our face, still a heartache,
Longing, dear son, for you.
Sadly missed by
FATHER AND MOTHER.

In loving memory of our dear daughter and sister, Emilie Schwenk (nee Luehwesmann), whom the Lord called home two years ago today, April 19, 1923.
For God Who gave has taken,
And heaven our dear has won,
Although our hearts are aching,
The will of God be done.
Sadly missed by
HER PARENTS AND SISTER AND ALL WHO LOVED HER.

In loving memory of Ruth Helen Frisco who departed this life one year ago, April 16, 1924.
On the hillside sweetly sleeping
Where the flowers gently wave
Lies one we loved, but could not save.
Sleep on, dear Ruth
In thy silent tomb.
God knew best
And called you home.
Sadly missed by parents, brother and sister.

In loving remembrance of my dear husband and our dear brother, John C. Keller, who departed this life April 15, 1924.
Somewhere in the beautiful home of God
In the valley of rest so fair,
Some day, some time, when our task is done
With love we shall meet him there.
Sadly missed by wife, sisters, relatives and friends.

In loving memory of my dear wife, mother and sister, Pauline Mentrup, who departed this life April 16, 1924.
You are gone but not forgotten, or shall you ever be as long as life and memory last. We shall remember. Sadly missed by husband, daughter and family, and sister.
AUGUST MENTRUP.

In loving memory of our dear mother, Minnie Vette, who departed this life, April 13, 1924.
A loving mother, true and kind,
No friend like her on earth we'll find,
God called her home: it was His will,
But in our hearts she lingers still.
Sadly missed by
HER HUSBAND AND DAUGHTER. (c)

In loving memory of our dear mother and wife, Mrs. E. Hansen, who departed this life one year ago:
The golden sun is shining
Upon our mother's grave;
The one we loved so dearly
And tried so hard to save;
And when we lost our mother,
We lost our dearest pal—
We love you and we miss you
And forever shall.
So rest in peace, dear mother;
You're safe in heaven's bower;
The day when we shall meet you
Grows nearer every hour.
Sadly missed by husband, son, sisters, brother and all who loved her.

USED CARS

Satisfied customers are the only sound basis of an enduring business. When you select one of our USED CARS, we treat that transaction as the start, not the finish, of our business relations. We are in business for tomorrow as well as today, and we will be right here to see to it that you get every dollar's worth to which the money you spend entitles you, and to make sure that your next car will be a "PAIGE-JEWETT," whether NEW or USED.

You can select any of the following cars, confident that it is exactly as represented.

'You Will Want This Buick'

Making A Living By Stealing Poisonous Snakes

By A. W. King.

THE darkness of night, and a white wall looming spectrally through the gloom. There is no opening in the wall, but an active man may vault it, if he will. On the other side is a moat, three feet wide, three feet deep and full of water. The flickering gleam of starlight on the sluggish water is broken here and there by lily pads, in clusters.

Within the wall and moat is a rectangular enclosure. It contains graveled paths, shrubbery, small trees and curious little box-like objects of wood. Under the velvety night sky of Africa the spot seems to be deserted. But it is not.

To sharp ears, sounds would be audible now and then, just a vague, intermittent stir, like a very subdued rustle or the softest imaginable scrape of moving bodies on the ground.

No, the carefully segregated little park is not deserted. All the regular inhabitants are there, some of them crawling about even now, for night is their regular time to be abroad. This park is a home of snakes—puff-adders, tree-snakes, cobras and other kinds, a throng of 600 reptiles, some of them the deadliest known.

Darkness and solitude and snakes, and the faint humming undertone like a whisper of death.

SUCH is the scene of a remarkable affair which occurred recently at Port Elizabeth, in South Africa. The story reveals a new occupation which was carried on there, by a scamp who employed perhaps the most dangerous method of earning a livelihood on record. Detective work by an ingenious amateur also figures in the narrative, which is told on the authority of F. W. FitzSimons, director of the Port Elizabeth Museum, in the grounds of which the Snake Park is situated. FitzSimons, a well-known writer on natural history topics, had returned from a trip to Europe when he noticed what seemed to be a shortage in the collection of live snakes. Examination of the books proved that considerable numbers of reptiles had been purchased. Then the denizens of Snake Park were carefully counted and the known deaths deducted from the number which should have been present. A serious discrepancy stood revealed.

Suspicion fell first upon Johannes, the Basuto native attendant at Snake Park. It appeared that he was "short" in his snakes on hand. Whether he had "embezzled" them for purposes clear only to the native mind, or had not been properly vigilant in guarding them, or had grown slack in their care, could only be conjectured. They even shadowed Johannes, just like a suspected bank employe. But he was quite innocent in the matter.

The first clew turned up almost by accident. Several men in the vicinity of Port Elizabeth earn their living by catching snakes and selling them to the museum. Soon after FitzSimons returned home, one of these men came with a bag containing a dozen reptiles—boomslangs and puff-adders.

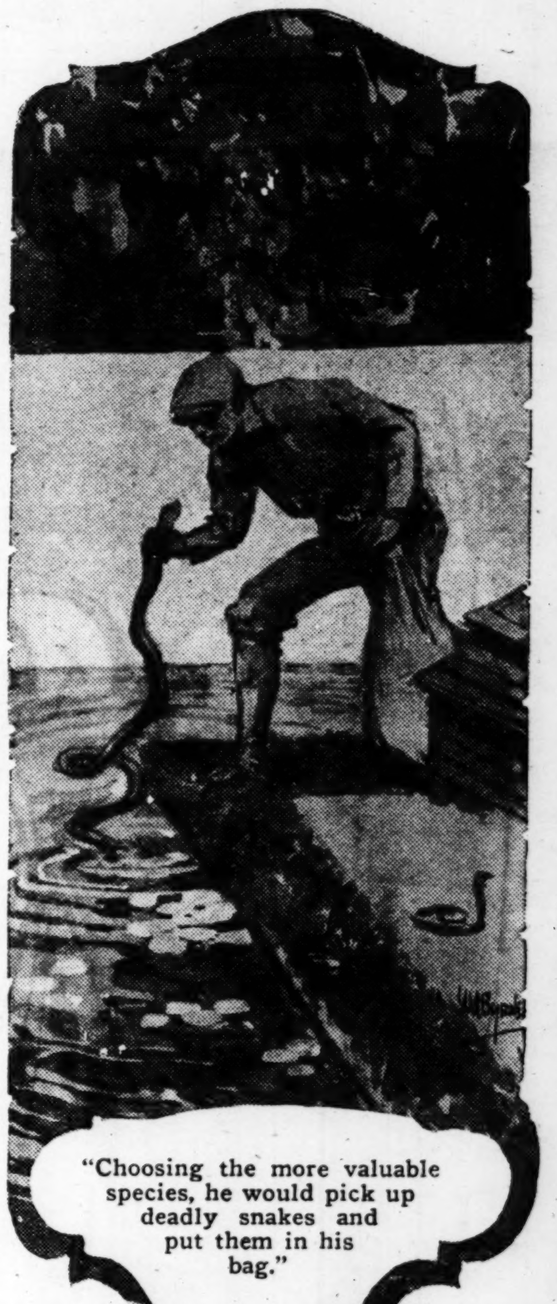
FitzSimons, with the mysterious shortage on his mind, walked over to the Snake Park to see the reptiles liberated. The bag was handed to Johannes, and expertly he emptied its squirming contents on the inclosed lawn.

FitzSimons noticed that the new snakes were not behaving as they ought to under the circumstances. They should have lunged threateningly at the leather-covered legs of the attendant, or hastened into the water of the moat, there to swim away in alarm and frantically search for a gap in the surrounding wall. On the contrary, they moved off sluggishly, and as if familiar with their surroundings.

"AS IF familiar with their surroundings." That was it, exactly. These snakes had lived in the little park before. In some way as yet undetermined they had left it, been brought back and sold to the officials again. Light began to appear in the mystery.

FitzSimons questioned the snake catcher, a European named Halse and about 20 years old. Halse stated that he had caught the puff-adders in a nearby forest reserve, which happens to be the only source of supply for puff-adders near Port Elizabeth. Inquiry showed no permit to enter the reserve had been given Halse. He had lied or he had been poaching.

But the director of the museum held his peace. A week later, Halse came with another bagful of snakes, which FitzSimons purchased at the usual prices. Again, the newcomers seemed unusually tame. And now FitzSimons moved to end the comedy of buying his own snakes over and over again. He detailed three sturdy Kaffir watchmen to guard the Snake Park at night, and to capture the thief, "dead or alive."



"Choosing the more valuable species, he would pick up deadly snakes and put them in his bag."

Then, unknown to anybody else, FitzSimons marked 100 of the snakes in the park so that he could identify them later. This was not a pleasant task. One by one, the reptiles had to be pinned down on the ground with a forked stick and gripped by the neck with finger and thumb. Then the body had to be held quiet while one of the horny abdominal scales was snipped with a pair of small scissors.

After a week of night duty the Kaffir watchmen began to despair of earning the $25 reward promised them for a capture, and they asked for a night off. That very night the thief visited the park again.

Next morning, Halse appeared at the museum with 12 snakes for sale. On five of them were the identification marks. To questions he replied that he had caught the reptiles in a neighboring locality. No, he had had no assistant. These were wild snakes, their present captivity the result of his own toil and labor.

"Young man," said FitzSimons, "you are fairly and squarely caged, trapped, tripped up. You have been snaffling our snakes for the past six months and selling most of them back to us, and now it is our inning. You have brought in some snakes which belong to us. They have our private identification marks on them."

After protests of his innocence, and feigned indignation, Halse finally confessed his guilt and begged to be let off. But FitzSimons would not consent to leniency. The culprit had systematically robbed the Snake Park for many months. And FitzSimons had "gone to a lot of trouble" in showing Halse what to do if he were bitten while snake-catching honestly. Also, a snake-bite outfit had been given to Halse.

In his confession as to the perilous burglarising of Snake Park, Halse said that he always chose a dark night. Familiar with the spot, he would jump over the five-foot wall so as to clear the moat, and then would begin to pick up snakes and put them in his bag. He chose carefully the species for which the highest prices were paid.

These included a kind of tree snakes known as boomslangs, which roost in the shrubbery, and Halse disentangled them from the twigs with his bare hands, as a man would pick fruit. Although boomslangs possess a highly subtle poison, they are not aggressive and seldom bite unless they are roughly handled.

"But the stealer of snakes was in more deadly peril than he realized," said FitzSimons afterward. "We had several cobras in the Snake Park, and they, too, roosted in the shrubs. The cobra has a bold, independent nature, and will not put up with any sort of indignity. If Halse had laid his hand on one of the cobras it would instantly have bitten him.

"A cobra is able to inject many times a fatal dose of venom, and a bite with both fangs on the hand would have been fatal within an hour—possibly less. The venom paralyzes the motor nerve endings, and weakness and collapse of the muscles is an early symptom."

The barrier formed by wall and moat has been described. The thief must surmount it a second time on his way out with his plunder. FitzSimons says paralysis of the muscles after a cobra bite would have been so rapid that, if Halse delayed to put on a ligature, he would most certainly have been unable to get out of the park, and his body would have been found there in the morning.

"It is rather surprising," adds FitzSimons, "that he did not tread on a puff-adder on the occasion of one of his many raids. These reptiles move about at nighttime, and there are upwards of a hundred of them scattered over the ground in Snake Park. The fangs are recurved and half an inch in length. The venom is of a most deadly kind, and death is slow but sure, and is preceded by symptoms of a most terrifying and appallingly painful nature."

This probably was the first time that a systematic stealer of venomous serpents ever went to trial, and the unpleasant nature of the "exhibits" caused some amusing byplay in the courtroom, which was crowded with spectators. Johannes, vindicated now and smiling happily, arrived early with a bag containing the stolen snakes, which he put on the floor in front of the Judge and lawyers. Several other cases had to be disposed of first. The legal men were restless, and even the Magistrate did not appear to be quite at his ease.

THEN the case of Halse was next, and the Public Prosecutor called for the snakes, to be offered in evidence.

"Great Caesar's ghost!" exclaimed one of the lawyers. "You don't mean to open that bag here?"

When Johannes did so, in a nonchalant manner, the lawyer gathered up his papers and departed. Others moved away from the vicinity of the bag, and several were seen to draw their feet up to the rungs of their chairs.

FitzSimons went into the witness box, and Johannes pulled a boomslang five feet long out of the bag and handed it up to his employer.

"I have handled snakes with bare hands for 25 years," said FitzSimons after the trial, "and I am still in my mortal body, though I have several scars from bites. I held the snake over towards the Magistrate, so that he could get a close view of the identification mark on it. But somehow he didn't seem inclined to make too minute an examination of it."

Small wonder, with so sinister a creature, its black, forked tongue shooting quiveringly in and out, and its large, unwinking eyes glistening in the light.

To Exercise Or Not To Exercise?

"WALTER CAMP was a fine chap and his 'daily dozen' did a great deal of good for the modern Congressman who was too lazy to get out and hustle and preferred to take his exercise in a steam-heated flat. But look at me; I am 91, still going good and never had any fads for exercise or diet," declares Gen. Isaac R. Sherwood, former Toledo Congressman.

"I never took the 'daily dozen,' never counted my calories, never ate raw vegetables or uncooked food, never drank imitation coffee, never took cold shower baths, but ate three square meals a day of whatever food was set before me," continued Sherwood, discussing the rules he followed to reach the ripe old age of 91.

"The best line of exercise to follow for old age is to drive behind a couple of thoroughbreds and do a lot of walking. Driving behind a pair of horses will give you a thrill that will make you forget all your worries. It makes you exercise your hands, arms and head besides filling your lungs full of fresh air.

KING EXERCISE tottered on his throne when Walter Camp died. King Exercise's subjects raised their eyes, not in supplication, but in question. King Exercise heard a murmur run through the ranks of his erstwhile faithful. Why? they asked. Why are we willing slaves to this ruler? Is it necessary?

For by all the rules of the game Walter Camp should have lived to that age when reporters would have flocked to his doorstep anxiously inquiring, "How does it feel to be 130? Can you still read without glasses?" Camp was indeed one of the most energetic of Health's henchmen, and on his shield, as he dashed to the attack on ill health and early death, he inscribed the eight letters, E-X-E-R-C-I-S-E. From that word he made a new religion for the United States.

The sun's rays, as they sweep across our country each morning from east to west, put in motion hundreds of thousands of arms up—down—up—down; thousands of pairs of lungs deeply and conscientiously inhale—exhale—inhale—exhale; countless heads on innumerable necks rotate right—left—right—left. Father, mother, brother, sister and perhaps Fido, too, twirl the radio knobs and then do their duty as the Daily Dozen comes sputtering in over the early morning broadcast waves. Or if there is no radio in the home, the phonograph records will do. Hail to good health and longevity! Exercise is king.

"I DON'T take any stock in this 'physical culture,'" declares Hugh d'Arcy, who gained fame long ago by writing "The Face on the Barroom Floor." D'Arcy is past the 82-year post, and is still able to reel off the three miles per day over New York's cement and asphalt that he must walk in order to visit all his clubs regularly.

"Yes, I've heard a lot about this kind of thing," he commented, when the daily limbering up was brought under discussion; "but I've got along pretty well without it. Oh, 'physical culture' is a good thing to make money with, I suppose; and I guess it makes some people happy. But not for me. If I don't feel very good today, why—probably I'll feel better tomorrow. And I've only been really sick once in the last 60 years. I get a few colds now and then, and enjoy them as much as anybody else does. But on the whole I've kept quite well, without a bit of this gymnastic stuff."

Although the author of "The Face" waves aside such exercise with a carefree gesture, he has very decided opinions on how long a really respectable man ought to live. "Died at 62?" he asked, rather in amazement, when told of Walter Camp's age. "Why, any man that dies at 62 is acting foolishly!" And D'Arcy, having passed a score of years beyond that juvenile stage, probably has a right to speak on the subject.

But the king's champion died at the early age of 62, from heart disease.

Will others follow? And will those rebel outcasts who refuse allegiance to the monarch go on living comfortably, happily, to a ripe old age, scornful of exercise and all its rules?

It is far from being an open-and-shut question. Despite the wave of body building that has swept the country, there are still prominent examples of men who have stood aside and let the tide roar past. Stranded on their little isles of ease, they have grown old—and healthy, too—while watching the devotees of exercise drop off, one by one. All of them warn of the grave dangers that lie in wait for the man of middle age or above who exercises with any amount of strain; many of them intimate that the country as a whole would be just as healthy and longevity would be just as prominent if the citizenry never bothered to touch toes with fingertips or trot faithfully around the park and riding ring. All of them suggest that they themselves worry no more about exercise than they do about life on Mars.

That Is the Question Made Timely by the Death of Walter Camp.

THE POST-DISPATCH Presents A Symposium of Answers

"DOING those indoor up-and-down exercises every day won't save anybody." There you have the opinion of George Gray Barnard, sculptor. Noted for his superb physical health, Mr. Barnard is nearing his sixty-second birthday. He believes in exercise, but not for him are the regulation gymnastics.

"You notice these pictures in magazines, exhibiting people in all kinds of postures, with legs outstretched and arms perhaps twisted in some strange manner. But who are these people? Ah! They are all young and beautiful 17-year-old girls, who can do that sort of thing—and look well while doing it. But did you ever see a picture of some middle-aged or rather elderly men going through the same contortions?"

THERE are numerous exemplars of such reckless foolhardiness who are enjoying old age at the present time, and show no sign of ceasing such enjoyment for many years to come. It is instructive to select a few and listen to their remarks.

One of the foremost is Dr. Francke Bosworth, noted internationally as an authority on nose and throat diseases. Being a member of the medical profession, he is presumably as well fitted as the next man to tell us whether or not exercise is necessary if we wish to secure a sound constitution and a long life. Dr. Bosworth has just passed his eighty-second birthday, and in appearance is 15 years younger. Here are his exact words:

"I attribute my long life and good health to the fact that I never took any exercise."

Such a statement coming from some obscure physician might perhaps be discounted a bit. But there is no discounting possible when those words come from a man who has to his credit three textbooks on his special subject; who is an honorable fellow of the British Laryngologists' Association, and a corresponding member of the French Societe Laryngologie et Otologie; and who takes up more lines in "Who's Who" than Calvin Coolidge does.

JUDGE CHARLES L. GUY, New York Supreme Court Justice, has a warning to give all elderly and near-elderly gentlemen who swing heavy dumbells with much violence in an effort to keep in that "perfect physical trim" so widely advertised. Judge Guy's seventieth birthday comes next January, but the three-score-and-ten do not prevent him from attending to the arduous duties of his position every day.

"Some form of exercise is undoubtedly beneficial," he explains, "but for men advanced in years it is a mistake to exercise to the point of exhaustion. I myself find that walking, with a few simple daily exercises, is sufficient. Especially for men over 50, too much physical exercise is dangerous. Many older men injure themselves in attempting to compete with younger men in this matter, for if exhausted they have not the recuperative power of youth."

"I used to see a mournful procession riding on horseback through Central Park behind several doctors," relates Dr. Bosworth. "They were doing their exercise—and doing it as a chore. They're all dead now. I have never taken any exercise, and I'm alive and feeling fit at the age of 82."

WALTER CAMP — World-famous propagandist of exercise. He died last month at the age of 62.

"Don't you set off any time at all to be devoted to exercise?" he was asked.

"No," came the ready reply. "I sometimes walk down Fifth avenue, but I do it because it is the most interesting avenue for a walk, with its show windows and busy people, that there is in the world. I do not do it for the exercise there is in it.

"Golf? Oh, it has been years since I played any golf, and when I did it was not in order to get exercise."

"WALTER CAMP'S system of training for the middle-aged is as good as could be devised, and his sudden death through heart disease is no criticism on his method. It was the irony of fate that he should go that way," comments Uncle Joe Cannon. "Camp's death is a big loss, especially to the middle-aged business men who had followed his rules of health. Camp was a big man. We older fellows did not regard him as merely a Yale graduate who followed the baseball, football and track athletes and picked the All-America teams. We knew him as a successful business man, past the meridian of life and the head of one of the largest and most successful business corporations at New Haven.

"This, I believe, was the real reason for the success of his daily dozen exercises now so extensively used. Walter Camp said it and the nation believed it and the older business men tried to follow them as best they could.

"I belonged to another age. I had a system of exercises that I picked up almost 50 years ago when I first came to Danville and met Prof. Matthews, who was running a gymnasium and health parlor down on West Main street. His principal exercises were running and walking and living on crackers and a glass of water while doing it. I owe most of my activities at this late date to walking taught by Matthews and often would cover 10 to 15 miles a day, here as well as in Washington. I first met Camp in Washington about 1904, when I was first elected Speaker. He and some of the Yale fellows came over to see Taft and, of course, Teddy, who was then President. I, as Speaker, was another big curiosity and I got acquainted with him through Taft. Camp looked like a groomed Olympic entry as I remember him, and I liked his methods very much. They had not yet been dignified with any title like the 'Daily Dozen,' a name that came later. Teddy had Prof. Mike Donovan, the old-time boxer, for a trainer, but that was too strenuous for me. I think Camp's system was the best for the average American business man, but will they follow it now that he is gone?"

Dr. Bosworth does not pretend to have a ready-made rule for long life and health for everyone, but he is firmly set against any exercise that develops into a mere dutiful task. He sees no harm in it if it is taken primarily for the pleasure involved—such as in golf, of walking, if the one who is doing it enjoys such things—but neither does he see any remarkable benefits. As for his own case, his ideas on the subject are definite and fixed, though "perhaps unorthodox," as he admits. "You can say," he repeated with emphasis, "that I believe my health and longevity are due to the fact that I never took any exercise—and don't take any now."

ANOTHER octogenarian who gives physical culture enthusiasts little encouragement is Henry Holt. This veteran author and publisher, after 85 years of experience, applies the picturesque label, "victims of the exercise superstition" to those who seek to heighten their hold on life by loosening their joints.

"I've had a lot less rheumatism," declares Mr. Holt, "since 70, when I practically stopped exercis

One Bloomin' Idol —Not Made of Mud— Worries England

And it Also Brings Up the Interesting Question—Can a Bloomin' Idol MARRY?

THIS is the story of a "bloomin' idol"—and of the Privy Council of Great Britain.

Out in Calcutta is a Brahman Garden, its shrine made desolate by the removal of the god Sri Sri Shamsunderji from his place beside his wife, the goddess Sri Sri Radharani, and the holy stone—the Salgram Sila—which is named Sri Sri Raj Rajiswar

Worshipers, attesting their firm belief that the goddess wants her husband back, have appealed to the Privy Council for a settlement of the family feud developed when one of their number, then acting as caretaker of the shrine—removed the god to a shrine more rich and more beautiful.

By Fate's amusing irony the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Archbishop of York and the Bishop of London are among the right honorable members of the Privy Council who must decide whether the goddess idol gets her husband back.

Possibly to them the situation is amusing. To India's 300,000,000 people it is fraught with direst consequences. India's gods and goddesses number 330,000,000. Empires have perished from religious strife where fewer were involved. So that the highest judicial tribunal of Great Britain is wary, and chary, and longs for the wisdom of old King Solomon, before it renders judgment in the cause.

But to the story.

VISHNU, the Preserver, had smiled on Satyananda Mullick. In his business he had prospered. Wealth flowed in upon him in his narrow shop in the bazar where he sat in a mud-plastered square over his little mud brazier and with blow pipe and deft fingers worked tiny miracles of Oriental beauty; fashioning earring or nose piece, bracelet, anklet or bangle; delicately wrought designs studded with ruby or emerald, turquoise or amethyst, garnet, lapis lazuli or pearl.

In his nostrils were the scents of the bazar, the odor of tumeric, of cinnamon, cloves and spices, of silks and woolens, of gums and drugs, of fruits and vegetables, of parching grain. People who came to sell their silver or their gold found Satyananda Mullick suave and gentle even while he bargained for their treasure. For he was at peace with Brahma.

Besides his wealth he had his adopted son—a fine, upstanding youth whose muscles, under satiny bronze skin rippled in the play of sunlight as he moved; whose handsome features might, with fairer skin, have served as portrait of a Western god.

Vishnu, the Preserver, had been good indeed. And Satyananda Mullick was not insensible of benefit. Humble before the gods, he sought to do them honor. So it came that in 1870 he erected in his garden a shrine. To one of his caste it was not fit that he should speak the name of holy Vishnu, and when, with an artist's cunning, he had devised and built his shrine, and with an artist's eye had approved the images, he erected to Lord Vishnu a statue under another name, that of Sri Sri Shamsunderji.

To the pious Hindu all is one. The appearances life and matter take, the forms in which the spirit manifests itself are but Maya, the illusion. By the many individual manfestations of Maya the one true being Brahma is completed. The thought descends to family life. Without wife no husband is complete, nor wife without husband. Therefore Satyananda Mullick gave his god a bride, Sri Sri Radharani, the goddess of good fortune, who under the name of Lakshmi is always wife of Vishnu. And to honor the Preserver, commemorating his life-giving power, he erected by the side of those two images a holy stone—the Salgram Sila—which he named Sri Sri Raj Rajiswar.

IT WAS a beautiful garden in which he raised his shrine, with an altar of onyx and brass, whereon, carven from rare woods, were the pedestals on which the images were placed, while over all, in dazzling white marble, was a fretted canopy. Gardenias, hibiscus and Bengal roses grew in the garden and the tuberose and jasmine perfumed its air. About were palms and trees heavily laden with luscious fruits; peaches, mangoes, jack-fruits, lemons, bananas, guavas, yams and lichis.

There, early in the morning, Satyananda Mullick, the pious, awoke his gods with prayer, sounding a conch shell, and calling upon their names. There he undressed and bathed them as a pious Hindu should, and decked them in their robes of rich brocade and cloth of gold, crowning them with diadems of gold and precious stones. Then, repeating their names, he made offerings of food, his larder's choicest delicacies, placed rice, fruits, sweets, sugar cakes and sherbets in stone or metal cups. The altar, then, he strewed with flowers, jasmine, gardenias, tuberoses, plucked without stems, and sprinkled essence of roses and sandalwood about, and lighted in the censers precious incense. The holy stone he wreathed with bilva leaves and placed before it clear, cold water.

Twice daily to that shrine there came a Brahman priest and the devotees were summoned by conch shell and the sound of gongs while the Brahman recited the texts in Sanskrit, which is the language of the gods. In the morning the priest carried away the foods, in his towel. In the evening service he lighted the five lamps, each on its little brass stand containing a few drops of ghee—clarified butter—made from sacred cows. And then, after the ceremony he tucked the gods to bed, robing them in night garments and drawing the mosquito bar about their resting places while prostrate worshipers bowed low, their heads upon the ground.

In the fullness of years Satyananda Mullick passed out of this incarnation to appear on earth again in a higher form—according to his faith—as a reward for the good that he had done. His shop in the bazar, his home, the shrine, he left to his adopted son.

And that son had three sons.

Each of these, as he reached 6 months of age, was taken before the shrine for the annaprashan (or rice-taking) and the namakaran (or name-giving), the two most important ceremonies in an infant's life. In the first the priest placed a grain of rice in the baby's mouth. For the latter the father wrote with a golden ring the chosen name in a basin of unhusked rice which had been placed before the idols. To the shrine, too, the boys were brought to begin their education and the teacher, in a bowl of unhusked rice, traced the first vowel that they learned.

Once more, it was there that the sons received the zonar, the sacred thread of second birth, of twisted wool and silk, and were taught the sacred text which is always whispered so low that none can hear:

"Om, O! Earth, O! Air, O! Heaven, O! Let us meditate on the supreme splendor of the Divine Sun and may His Light enlighten us."

The father of the three, also finished this earthly avatar and passed on to another incarnation. His estate he divided between his three sons. He made the three jointly the inheritors of the shrine.

Each in turn was for a year to be shebait. He was to serve in family rites as priest, he was to be guardian and caretaker of the idols. "Not by any means are they to be removed from the shrine," said the father in a dying injunction, "until a shrine more beautiful is built for them."

Shortly after the eldest of the three died. His share in the estate passed on to his son, Pradyumna Kumar Mullick. The second son, Manmatha Mullick, was the shebait then, and in his turn, the third, Pramatha, assumed trusteeship for a year.

THOUGH youngest of the three sons, Pramatha Mullick had prospered more than his elder brothers. He, too, thanked Vishnu, the Preserver. So, building himself a magnificent house, he erected therein a shrine of beautifully sculptured marble adorned with gold and all inset with semi-precious stones.

To this shrine, during the year that he was shebait, he removed the idol of Sri Sri Radna Shamsunderji. He left the idol's spouse, the goddess Sri Sri Radharani, deserted, standing in the desecrated shrine.

Then the bitterness of family feud. Pleading was vain. Pramatha Mullick was obdurate. He was priest-trustee under his father's will. He would place the idol where he most could honor it. Brahmans were called in. His will was still inflexible.

So Pradyumna, the nephew, and the elder brother, Manmatha Mullick, went to court. Justice Graves, in Calcutta, upheld the shebait's right. He was entitled, was the judgment of the Court, to place the idol in the shrine for the year he was its guardian.

There was appeal. The higher court decided that the male god could not be separated from his spouse, nor she from him. The idol must go back.

But Pramatha was not satisfied. Another higher court must give its judgment, and so he took appeal to the Privy Council, the highest body of the British Empire.

And the Privy Council wishes for the wisdom of Solomon. All the 330,000,000 idols of India are in

The King of Nothing

KING LOVE PRITCHARD, at the age of 83, has been forced to abdicate.

Tired of paying a dole under its poor laws, the Government of Great Britain last month moved to the mainland King Love and his 80 subjects from their beloved Bardsey Island, just off the uttermost west point of Wales. The Government decided they should not remain upon sterile soil that would not make a living.

On his head he placed his crown, under one arm he gathered his treasure chest and under the other his army, and King Love Pritchard in a chugging motor boat crossed wild Bardsey Race for the first time and entered a world more strange than the Arabian Nights.

For the first time he heard and he saw radio, phonographs, moving pictures, automobiles, bobbed-haired flappers and matrons in short skirts.

No greater wonders had awaited royalty when Sheba paid her famous visit to the throne of Solomon.

"I HAVE seen carts without horses racing through the streets, and heard them crying in the nights like owls," said the King of Bardsey in his native Welsh. "I have seen lamps that are lighted by magic, and children who speak when they are not spoken to.

"I have heard voices speaking through trumpets and been told that he who speaks is 1000 miles away.

"Eighty-three years I spent upon the island where I was born. Now in one day I have lived another lifetime of pleasure, of whirl and hurry, of strange pictures and strange music.

"I have seen women with short hair and skirts that reached to their knees.

"This is another world and I cannot understand."

All Europe has no King more strange than old Love Pritchard, monarch of Bardsey, Isle of Saints.

The exiled ruler is not the founder of a dynasty. His relatives were Kings three-quarters of a century ago. Their 80 subjects bowed to their right and for three generations they dispensed justice on a barren, rocky isle. But Great Britain never recognized them.

The island wasn't theirs. Its present owner is Hon. F. G. Wynn, a descendant of the first Lord Newborough. The third Lord established the kingdom.

He loved the island, its traditions and its people. Being the landlord, he was responsible for the administration of justice. Communication with the mainland where he lived was difficult. The third Lord Newborough decided he would name a Lord Lieutenant. Then he changed his mind and called him King.

JOHN WILLIAMS, old, wise, a patriarch, was first of the title. Lord Newborough saw that the islanders looked up to him for guidance and advice.

"You," said Lord Newborough, "shall be King."

John Williams and his wife, Jane, quiet, naive peasant people, took him at his word. So did the islanders. They all believed this overlord had power.

So Milord Newborough accepted their belief at its face value. He gave the King a crown. It is a fantastically designed diadem—of brass.

And he gave the King a treasure chest, a casket of sterling silver, delicately wrought.

Also, he provided him an army. The army was one life-sized soldier, carved in wood and painted in gay regimentals of red and gold.

It was set for a sign, mounting guard before the stone hut that was the palace of the King.

Thus there is a real dignity to such kingship as was Love's. Pwllheli, the little mainland town to which he was transported, gave a dance to welcome the Isle of Bardsey's royalty. There was phonographic music.

"Some very funny music indeed came from the little doors of the box," explained King Love. "First it sounded like the grunting of fat pigs, then the pigs squealed as if in pain. There were also sounds like a sick calf moaning in the night and a wind rattling the window panes.

"They said it came from a black disc which revolved after a beautiful red-haired lady had turned a handle with great vigor. At first I thought it was an organ like I'd seen in picture books, with an animal like a tiny man dancing while a real man turned the crank. But this wasn't an organ because it only started playing after the red-haired lady had stopped turning the handle.

"Presently a young man and a young woman rose and held each other by the arms and shoulders, face to face, as if about to wrestle. They just walked backwards and forwards without treading on each other's toes until the music stopped with a cry like a seagull.

WITH His Army Under One Arm, With The State Treasury Under the Other, and With the Old Crown of Brass Upon His Head, King Pritchard Crossed From His Kingdom to the Mainland—to Become a Simple Citizen of a Greater King.

"I think that walking dance, which I am told is called the 'fox trot,' might be very good indeed for an ordinary man of 83. Up to the age of 100 anybody can walk if he is not paralyzed; but why do young people so stiffly stroll to music when they might twist and twirl their supple limbs to the enjoyment of everybody.

"A very pretty girl said: 'Will your majesty please to dance?'

"And I replied: 'A King does not dance like a fox. Let me hear some other music.' They played another tune, which was 'The Land of My Fathers.'

"Immediately I arose and took the girl to dance with me. And I walked and walked and walked. It seemed that I was walking over the whole of Bardsey Island, but truly I only walked upon the feet of the girl. But perhaps she was not a very good dancer. . . ."

KING LOVE PRITCHARD'S domain was but two and one-half miles long and three-quarters of a mile wide. Its history is as quaintly romantic as is the picturesque figure of its ex-King.

Bardsey Island in the days before the Reformation was one of Great Britain's most sacred shrines. In all 20,000 holy men were buried on the island. The place grew in fame. A great abbey of St. Mary's was built in the thirteenth century. In the Reformation it fell. Only the ruins now remain. On Bardsey Island, too, was the famous House of Glass to which the Wizard Merlin of Welsh legend took the magic ring which had before been at Caerlon on Usk.

BUT how different at Bardsey now.

"After sundown," said King Love Pritchard, "when the men had cleared the lobster traps upon the beach and the cattle had settled down to rest beneath the trees, we would sometimes visit a neighboring farm. It was never far to walk.

"We didn't dance with our neighbors. No. Neither did we play cards or sing with them. We just sat about the hearth and smoked and talked about pig-food and the ailments of cows and sheep. It was very interesting, but not what the English would call 'jolly.'

"Shall I ever forget the dancing I have seen? Or the moving pictures? Or the short-haired girls? There was one girl with short hair on Bardsey Island.

"But she was not what you call 'bobbed'—or is it 'shangled?'—in the elegant manner of the town women.

"A friend with shears just cut off her hair because it was too long. Now she is sorry, because it is too short. That is the way with women. The only manner in which to treat them is to be severe, refrain from all argument and make sure they do not get their own way.

"Concerning this bobbing. . . . I do not like it very much. I like women with long hair down their backs. I also prefer long-haired sheep to those which have been sheared.

"I would also prefer to see long-haired men, and was very much annoyed when the men of Bardsey bobbed their beards before they crossed to the mainland. If I had remained King of Bardsey I would have prohibited this barbarous bingling . . . or, is it bungling?"

THEIRS was a hard life, who lived on Bardsey Isle. The lobster pots and fishing for crabs occupied the men when they weren't looking after the few cattle and sheep or pigs they raised.

"We rise before dawn and go to bed at 8 o'clock in the evening," King Love explained. "At one time we used to make a lot of whisky, but now we bring it over in a boat with other supplies of tobacco and matches. Even now I make a little in a kettle. It is much better than the whisky we buy. But what a pity my father did not teach me how to make soda water."

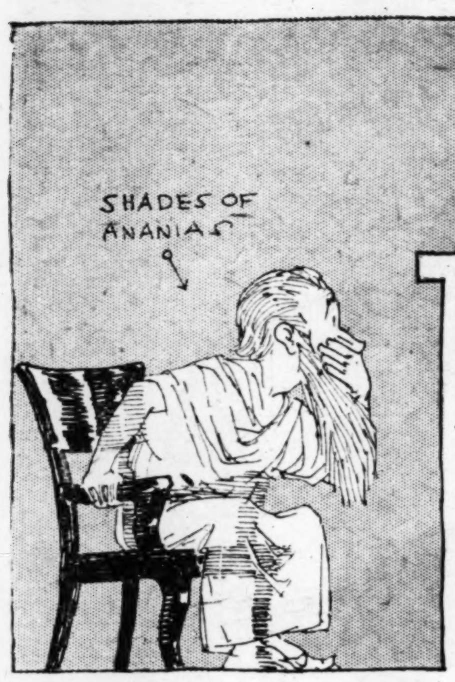
Though they made whisky they were peaceable.

"Once a man stabbed his brother with a scythe," explained King Love. "That was in the reign of King John Williams and Queen Jane. He said it was a joke, but King John Williams did not believe him. Oh, dear, no! The man was banished, and he was forced to pay the expenses of the doctor."

That is the only record of crime in all the history of the Kings of Bardsey Isle.

THE King's reign is ended. There wasn't a living in the sterile soil of Bardsey Isle and even Kings had little enough to keep body and soul together. King Love Pritchard hates to give up rank and dignity, but still he has his crown, his treasure chest and his army. The latter will be set up outside a cabin in Pwllheli. Pwllheli is his Elba. It's hard to live in exile thus, but the trappings of royalty are with the King in this new strange land. Perhaps some day he will have a phonograph or a radio . . . and once a week can go to moving pictures.

Exile is hard, yet this is better. King Love is philosophical. He remembers his predecessor. That King, too, 11 years ago, was forced to abdicate. And since the Isle of Saints had given him a living only, he ended his days in the poorhouse. King Love will escape that fate.



The Testimony of WOMEN Is Not Always to be RELIED UPON, This Reporter Finds

By Julius Kleinmann

I WISH to state at the outset that I am not prejudiced against women, although you will be convinced that I am before you finish this article, if you do. Mine is not a case of what is vulgarly alluded to as "sour grapes," for I have proposed more than five hundred (500) times, was not ever accepted, and so I have never been disappointed in love.

Therefore, my discovery that women witnesses are far more untruthful than men was the result of purely scientific observation of women testifying in this city's police courts. I had no more personal interest in the matter than a bootlegger has in the kind of liquor he sells.

It was in Police Judge John H. Matthews' court that I first discovered the perfidy of women's testimony, and the picture of the courtroom will always remain with me as a sorry and lasting reminder of this, one of the most regrettable discoveries of my life. But another will share my sorrow, for Judge Matthews made the discovery of female testimonial infidelity even before I did.

Now, I am not so dogmatic and orthodox as to believe that a woman ought to be truthful, although I realize that nobody is interested in what I believe except (a) myself, (b) several persons owing me large sums of money and (c) several more persons to whom I owe larger sums of money. Personally, I can state that the only truthful women I have met have been bores, and while I have not been bored very much, I would like to take this opportunity to digress from the subject, which I am trying to get in hand, long enough to air at least one of my personal failures to enter upon matrimony.

THE only reason I venture to tell it is because the woman in question was a bore—and I believe still is—and none of my friends are willing to listen to it again. It was on my last trip to the Arctic circles that I met her and she had made her debut but a few nights before—counting by Arctic nights. Her father owned great flocks of walruses, and as she didn't understand my language and I didn't understand hers, I felt that in times of stress we would get along perfectly; as I could say nasty things to her, all the time keeping my countenance swathed in angelic smiles, and she would think I was crooning to her; and she could do the same to me and I would remain in a like state of illusionment. But the woman was a bore. She was so truthful. So utterly truthful. After an arduous search for an igloo which would not strain my modest means, we discovered a cozy little one. One just on the edge of the high-rent district, but on a street high sounding enough to prevent salesgirls from sneering at us when we gave them our address. So one afternoon, shortly before our marriage day was set, we went to our igloo to supervise the installation of a refrigerator, and I inadvertently lit a cigarette. She gestured that I put it out. I shook my head. She gesticulated violently. I still refused. She conveyed to me that she knew I was an incessant smoker, and that I would have to give up the practice altogether, as she had no intention of allowing me to melt down her home.

So I told her to choose between the igloo and me. She rapidly did so, letting me know that a comfortable igloo at a moderate rental was far harder to secure than a husband, especially if a girl's father owned great flocks of walruses. Which was the end of my Eskimo romance. I was never treated so coldly before or since, but that is beyond the point. What I wish to prove is that my discovery that women are far more untruthful than men when they ascend the witness stand was not engendered by my opinion of them in social intercourse, for had this little girl of the Far North not been a bore, i. e., not truthful, she would have said nothing about my smoking until after the connubial ceremony had been consummated and would hence have assured her future happiness if not mine.

THE first time I observed a woman witness flagrantly prevaricate, I was horribly shocked and distraught. As one always should at such times when one is unfortunate enough to see a woman do something which degrades her sex, I thought of my mother. I recalled the first day she sent me off to school. How, while tying my windsor scarf, she had begged me always to be truthful, and then had gently thrust a tiny notebook and tiny pencil into my tiny palm, telling me to use it as a "crib," or a "pony," whatever I cared to call it, instructing me in its uses as she patted my little head. And how I had always diligently followed her instructions of how to use that little book, a little book and like little books to which I cheerfully credit my success in acquiring a Bachelor of Arts degree, a Master's, a Doctor of Philosophy and a Certificate of Competency from the late Knickerbocker Bar.

After these thoughts had passed through my head, a journey which they found little difficulty in completing, I harkened again to the woman still on the stand and still flagrantly prevaricating in the fullest sense of the words. She not only did it with extreme nonchalance and a face that never gave the slightest indication of her sin, but she seemed to enjoy it immensely. The only thing that seemed to disturb her was that the Judge wouldn't let her talk enough. In other words, she wanted to fib more, and I really don't feel that fib is at all the right word.

But when it was all over, I consoled my disillusionment by thinking that perhaps this was but an isolated case. This woman was one in a million, nay, ten million. And soon I was happily illusioned again. But was it the next day that I discovered another member of the sex that we help up the curb stones perjuring herself? Not at all. It was the next case. Ridiculous as it may seem, it gave me pause for thought. So I decided that I must be scientific, I must blot out all of the chivalrous instincts with which I am so thoroughly imbued, I must from now on observe with the intensity of an astronomer or the croupier of a crap game. I did. And I haven't the temerity to tell what I observed. I'm not that nasty.

But still my romantic conception of women would not down. To my great relief and enjoyment I finally hit upon a theory which left the female sex basking in all their pristine glory, at least as far as honorable police court testimony was concerned. I felt all the better about it for I took all the blame from their shoulders by putting it on my own. I decided that I was a bad and fallacious observer, and I felt extremely gallant over it all. Then I prepared to observe again. And to the lasting defamation of my gallantry and feminine testimonial veracity, I again heard woman bear witness to that which by no stretch of my chivalrous imagination could I regard as true.

Still faintly and weakly battling for the honor of womankind, I turned my eyes to Police Judge Matthews. During the most awful violations of the witness' oath of truth his face remained immobile. Was it possible he did not realize the obvious perjury being committed before him? Hardly, for he is a man of penetration and perception. Then how could he keep from blushing at the untruths of what for the first time in my life I began to believe was the weaker sex. There was but one reason: He had become so used to their shenanigans that it didn't even affect him any more.

So I waited till court was over for the day and then I weakly dragged myself into the Judge's chamber.

"Judge Matthews," I sobbed, after first seeing that all the doors and windows were locked and stuffing the cracks and keyholes with paper so my words might never reach anyone else's ears, "do you think women are more untruthful on the witness stand than men?"

"Really," the Judge replied, "I am a married man and if it is all the same to you let's talk about something else."

"But," I cried, "there is nothing domestic about it, and I only want your opinion in your official capacity."

"My dear fellow," said the Judge, "while I don't want to dip into the misfortunes of your personal affairs, I can see that you are not married. My official capacity! Do you think if I were to answer your question, even in my official capacity, any discrimination would be made between me and my official capacity when I got home? Now, come, we've known each other for a long time, and know lots of other things to talk about, so let's talk about them. Any one of them."

"But," I persisted, "don't you really"——

"Well," he said slowly, "I believe Byron once said something about believing a woman or an epitaph."

"Yes, I know," I replied, "but I'm talking about courts, and Byron didn't have much experience with courts, though that was probably due only to his extended travels."

The Judge sat silent for a moment. Finally he said: "You're right. To put it delicately, I must say that women are a great deal less given to truthful testimony than men. Sentiment. With them it's too often a victory of the emotions over the intellect. It's the same kind of psychology which will cause them to vote for a good-looking man of 25, if he's without any ability, in preference to voting for a man of twice his age, not especially prepossessing, but having the greatest ability.

"Look at some of the cases that come in my court. One woman has another brought in. Often the prosecuting witness is the only one who is really to blame. I try to

SAM GOMPERS Tells H Story

By A. W. King.

MANY romantic incidents came to color the life of a boy who was born of Holland Jewish parentage in the tenement district of London, 75 years ago. Brought to this country in childhood by his parents, he worked hard, both at his trade of cigarmaker and for his ideals.

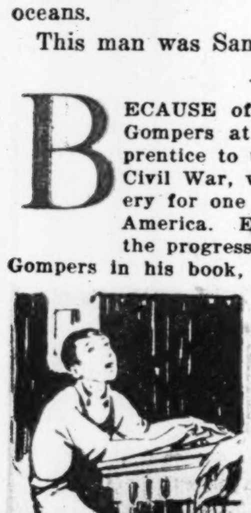
As he grew older he figured in violent controversies. Viewed with suspicion and distrust by some people, he had large numbers of devoted adherents. Presidents of the United States treated him with respect, some of them even with affection.

He was sentenced to serve a year in jail, but higher courts finally dismissed the case. He went abroad and was the guest of the great, Kings and Queens, high Government officials and army commanders.

He contributed so much to victory in the World War that when he died, on Dec. 13 of last year, and his body was being sent home from San Antonio, Tex., it went to the station on a caisson and with military escort, "Because he was the army's friend in a time of deep need." And at Washington the Secretary of War provided another escort of honor. His death caused sorrow on the other side of the oceans.

This man was Samuel Gompers.

BECAUSE of his family's poverty, young Gompers at the age of 11 was an apprentice to the cigar-making trade. The Civil War, with abolition of human slavery for one of its issues, was convulsing America. English wage-earners followed the progress of the struggle closely, says Gompers in his book, "Seventy Years of Life and Labor—An Autobiography," recently published by E. P. Dutton & Co.



These workers, in contrast to the British Government's attitude, favored the cause of the Union. The two most popular songs among wage-earners in his boyhood days in London were "The Slave Ship" and "To the West, To the West, To the Land of the Free."

"I learned both and sang them with a fervor in which all my feeling quivered and throbbed," writes Gompers. At home, or in the shop where he worked, or at social gatherings, little Gompers would throw back his head and sing them lustily. Often friends asked him to render these songs after he was grown. One of them ran:

> To the west, to the west, to the land of the free,
> Where mighty Missouri rolls down to the sea;
> Where a man is a man if he's willing to toil,
> And the humblest may gather the fruits of the soil.
> Where children are blessings and he who has most
> Has aid for his fortune and riches to boast.
> Where the young may exult and the aged may rest,
> Away, far away, to the land of the west.

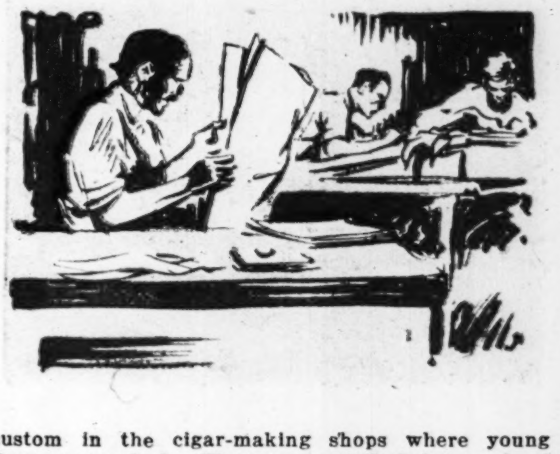
GOMPERS saw his first Fourth of July celebration in mid-ocean. The family had decided to emigrate to America and departed from London aboard an old-fashioned sailing vessel on June 10, 1863. So humble were their circumstances that they carried their food with them, and did their own cooking in the ship's galley. The vessel was an "old tub," the sleeping quarters cramped and uncomfortable. When July 4 dawned and the captain ordered all on deck to participate in the celebration, the Gompers family gladly obeyed. The program consisted of music, dancing and fireworks. At the close of the festivities, all saluted the American flag. Says Gompers:

"In the years that followed there grew in me a feeling of pride and ownership in the Red, White and Blue, until the time came when I looked up at it under foreign skies, from the ramparts of a great World War, and felt it in my heart to say: 'America is more than a name, America is an ideal. America is the apotheosis of all that is right.' "

The family landed at Castle Garden, New York, on July 29—such an important date in the life of Gompers that he records he was then 13 years, 6 months and 2 days old.

EAGER for knowledge, the boy soon was attending lectures and classes in the evening at Cooper Union, where he studied a wide variety of subjects, from elocution to economics and astronomy. For 20 years he went to Cooper Union, little by little and persistently getting the education which had been denied him.

This assimilation of knowledge was helped by a custom in the cigar-making shops where young Gompers worked. The men contributed to a fund for buying newspapers, magazines and books. Then, while the others rolled cigars, one of them would read aloud for an hour or longer. Pay depended on the number of cigars made, and to prevent the reader from losing financially, each of the other men would make and give to him a definite number of cigars.



Because Gompers had a strong, clear voice, he was a favorite reader. Discussions would follow. The shop was almost like a debating society, for the men could talk and work at the same time. Thus was stimulated Gompers' interest in public questions and matters affecting wage-earners. Already he was active in trade union work and helping to evolve the "militant economic force" which the American trade union was to become.

IN 1886 the American Federation of Labor succeeded an earlier, ineffectual federation and Gompers was elected president, an office which he held, excepting in the year 1895, until his death last December. His salary at first was $1000 a year. The A. F. of L. now owns a seven-story building in Washington, but its first office was a little room of Cigarmakers' Local Union No. 144.

The furniture was makeshift, consisting of a kitchen table brought from the Gompers home, and a box for the president to sit on. His second son, Henry, was office boy, and used a child's desk, which had belonged to the president's daughter, Rose. Henry also sat on a box. They used home-made files. Letters were written in longhand, and in the same way they wrote addresses on wrappers for the paper published by the Federation. Money was scarce. Sometimes, says Gompers, they had to go out and borrow a little ink, until they could afford to buy a new bottle. When Gompers died he was head of an organization of more than 3,000,000 wage earners.

GOMPERS writes a chapter about "Presidents I Have Known." The first one he met personally was Grant, upon whom a delegation called at the White House in behalf of an eight-hour law.

He met Garfield while the latter was in the House of Representatives. Gompers became prejudiced because of a speech on the railroad strike of 1877, in which Garfield declared "that the military ought to be called out to shoot down workingmen in the streets if necessary to restrain them from striking."

The labor leader could not forgive such words, even after President Garfield had been assassinated. Garfield's body lay in state in Cleveland, during a convention of the cigar makers. A motion to adjourn for the day as a mark of respect was opposed by Gompers, because the dead man's counsel had ever been against efforts to right labor's wrongs, he said. The speech created a sensation, and the newspapers called Gompers a dangerous man.

"In later years," he confesses, "I came to a better understanding of the respect due to an office that represents an ideal," irrespective of the occupant's personality.

Of Roosevelt the labor chief says:

"I accepted him as a friend with brain, sympathy and willingness to serve, and he believed in me and at times accepted my advice and acted upon it. Our relations were of the most cordial and confidential character. Frequently he talked very bad Holland Dutch to me."

Taft, to whom Gompers had given the name of "Father of Injunctions," he found on acquaintance to be "one of the most genial and likable men I have ever met. Repeatedly, I found myself wishing he had never entered the legal profession, for legal training, I believed, hampered a mind that was otherwise constructive and clear."

Woodrow Wilson was not the choice of Gompers for the presidency, because of certain earlier writings. But at a meeting after Wilson's nomination, says Gompers, "I felt my prejudices disappearing before the sincerity and the obvious humanitarianism of the man." As the association between the two grew closer, and report says that it became very close indeed, Gompers records:

"My respect for him grew into a feeling of well-nigh reverential admiration. I admired his keen, alert mentality, his beautiful English, the perfect enunciation and modulation of his speaking voice. There was that in his personal dignity that made me feel when the door swung open to admit him that a real President of the United States was entering."

Gompers participated in the Peace Conference at Paris, as a member of the Commission on International Labor Legislation. He was then, and remained to the end of his life, a stanch adherent of the League of Nations, perhaps influenced by his friendship for Woodrow Wilson.

Personally and officially, as President of the A. F. of L., Gompers championed the cause of the Versailles treaty and participation in the League of Nations during the presidential campaign of 1920. He did his "level best," he records, to mobilize public sentiment in support of ratification of the treaty. And the vote of that year expressed no judgment as to the League. It was a vote of hate. He declares:

"The League of Nations moves haltingly, but the machinery is there which at some future time can develop into the power and proportions envisioned in the original plans. There will yet be a 'world parliament of man.' "

NOT all of the strife so plentiful in the career of Gompers was with employers or with lawmakers who disagreed with him about proposed legislation. One experience, which he had in San Francisco, was similar to several others recorded in the book. Gompers writes:

"I was taking a walk one Sunday evening and happened to go by way of 'Bug Alley'—a distinctive San Francisco institution. Anybody who feels moved may go there and speak as long as he can hold an audience. He can speak on any subject that interests him.

"There happened to be some Socialists speaking there the evening I walked along. Catching sight of me, they at once adjourned their meeting and followed me in a hooting crowd, which gathered in numbers as it proceeded, hooting and booing me as I went along the street. However, I did not waver from my purpose of taking a walk. I never felt safer or more exalted in my life."

Gompers Said:

The cause of labor is no easy mistress to serve.

Betterment for workingmen must come primarily through workingmen.

My emotions are naturally strong, and fortunately no one ever attempted to teach me self-repression.

I have always felt that if the labor movement were understood it would find sympathetic support.

I am very frankly a partisan—a union man—not a half-hearted advocate who may be swayed either to one side or the other.

It was a long, long struggle to convince society that wage earners had a right to participate in the formation of public opinion and national policies.

I treat everybody with respect. I never yield to anyone on account of his position. I never hold myself superior to the poorest devil in all the world.

The trade union movement was in no way responsible for the teachings or the deeds of the anarchists, and yet for years we suffered through their unwisdom.

I do not value the labor movement only for its ability to give higher wages, better clothes and better homes—its ultimate goal is to be found in the progressively evolving life possibilities of those who work. There are such wonderful possibilities in the life of each man and woman!

E problem of national preparedness was presented at the annual meeting of the National Federation in New York, January, 1916. The kers included Theodore Roosevelt, William H. Taft, Henry Stimson and Gen. Leonard Wood. Gompers on that occasion made his first preparedness speech. He writes:

"In view of the uncertainty which the public felt as to the attitude of labor in the approaching war, that speech of mine was important news and was carried in great length by the metropolitan press. In this speech . . . I was speaking directly to the wage earners of the country. I did not anticipate great difficulties in mobilizing labor opinion in defense of the issue I saw involved in the European war—the defense of democratic institutions.

"The response that came to that speech of mine was very gratifying to me, though I think it was rather a surprise to many."

N AUGUST, 1918, Gompers and four other lead among American wage earners sailed for Europe as a Labor Mission. Their errand was twofold: First, to encourage the workingmen of allied countries, for there were indications that some of them were wavering, after four years of toil and hardship, with victory still to be won and with much insidious pro-German propaganda in the air. Second, to visit the American front and bring back to American labor the story of the hardships and danger undergone by our troops. It was thought that this would spur on the men engaged in ship-build-ch was made of the Labor Mission. King George received the delegation at Buckingham Palace, and they were presented also to Queen Mary. They attended an international meeting of labor representatives in London and forced the adoption of resolutions in line with American ideas, which had nothing in common with the pacifists and defeatists. They met King Albert at his headquarters in Belgium; ate lunch with Sir Douglas Haig in a field strewn with the debris of war, while shells passed overhead; went to Italy and dined with King Victor Emmanuel; returned to France and had to decline an invitation to dinner with President Poincare, because a cablegram had brought word of the death of Gompers' daughter, and he nearly collapsed.

After they had visited the American front and were on their way to the other fronts, the members of the Labor Mission had an adventure. At Boulogne they were met by an officer from the Belgian G. H. Q. and were taken northwards in automobiles through Calais and Dunkirk. Gompers writes:

"IN Dunkirk we were detained a few seconds by inspection of our military passes. We had not gone more than a quarter of a mile before we were looking back gratefully to that detention, for a shell from a Big Bertha landed in the middle of the narrow road, about 50 yards in front of us.

"It made a crater fully 20 feet in diameter and fully six feet deep. The explosion and the bricks and dirt killed Chinese workmen, two women and some children. It was the first shell that had been shot into Dunkirk for 30 days."

Gompers emerges from his autobiography as a combination of humanitarian and battler, student and man of action, conservative and defier of court injunctions. Epigrams reflect it. "There is nothing I like better than to meet people, and feel that good comradeship that comes from mutual understanding and liking," he says in one place. In another: "My life has been fought out along the principles expressed by 'Lay on, MacDuff, and damned be he who first cries, "Hold enough."'" Again: "There is no more demoralizing theory than that which imputes all human evils to capitalism or any other single agency." And again: "It has always been the poor who have helped the poor." And again: "I have been called an agitator, a demagogue, a dangerous character, but I was sustained by the firm conviction that I was right."

THE IRREPROACHABLE CONDUCT
Of a Gentleman Who Refused a Knighthood

by

MICHAEL ARLEN

SAID Mr. Fall to Lord Tarlyon on the telephone, one day in July:

"Pleased if you'd dine with me tonight."

"Sorry," said Lord Tarlyon; and he was sorry, for he liked Mr. Fall very well. "Promised to dine with a man."

"Pleased if you'd bring him along," said Mr. Fall.

Mr. Fall lived in Lord Brazie's house in Grosvenor Square. Lord Brazie, of course, lived somewhere else, but he wouldn't have been able to live at all if Mr. Fall had not taken his house. As George Tarlyon and I walked thither through the quietening streets and the dainty noises of the town in the evening, we spoke of Cyrus Fall; and then a silence fell upon us, for we were meditating on millionaires of the Canadian sort. In the last decade of the last century millionaires were always American; but with the war all millionaires who were not Canadian fell into greater discredit, so that many women exchanged theirs for Canadian model on the first opportunity. Now of these, the greatest was Cyrus Fall. . . .

The history of Mr. Fall and his millions is simple. Like all Canadian millionaires, he was born near Limerick and emigrated, with his parents, to Canada at the age of 3. For a time he was dancing master and chucker-out in a cabaret in Toronto, but, deciding that that was a discreditable profession, bought some newspapers and edited them in such an original way that he very soon became a Force. Throughout this time he never failed to consult his mother at every turn, and though in doing so he sometimes made mistakes, he never missed an opportunity of saying that a man's best friend is his mother; and when, at the age of 30, having been a Force in Canada for some years, he came to England, he wrote to his mother, who, of course, lived in Winnipeg, every day, saying that a man should be grateful to the woman who gave him birth. In England Mr. Fall went on being a millionaire until the war broke out, when he at once became a multi-millionaire. He refused a baronetcy in a simple and sincere way, excusing himself to his friends on the grounds that his mother wouldn't like him making a guy of himself; and when someone said that Canadians can't be choosers, Mr. Fall biffed him one. About the time when George Tarlyon and I were going to dine with him he was getting too old for letter-writing. Mr. Fall had not married.

THAD never actually met Mr. Fall, but when we did meet he said he was pleased to know me, so that was all right.

"You will, of course, have a cocktail?" he said.

"Of course," we said.

"My own particular make," Mr. Fall told us. "Instead of shaking them I stir them with a shagreen shoe horn steeped in Chartreuse."

"Perfect it is," I assured him.

With the cocktails were caviar sandwiches.

"They go together very well," said George Tarlyon. When they had gone we dined.

Somewhere near us, but not in the room, sang a ukulele; near enough to be enjoyed, far enough not to distract, a gentle noise, a mezzotint noise, unrecognizable and remote.

And then, in the fullness of time, the table was cleared and there was coffee.

"You will like the brandy," said Mr. Fall, as Tarlyon hesitated on the butler's question. We liked the brandy very much.

"Leave it," said Mr. Fall; and the butler left us.

"It's like this," he began; and he put both elbows on the table, and in one hand he waved a cigar and with the other he caressed his chin. Seriously he glanced from one to the other of us; he was a man with a courteous eye.

"It's like this," Mr. Fall addressed Tarlyon. "I asked you to dinner, Lord Tarlyon, not only because of the very real pleasure I take in your company, but because I want your advice—your advice," said Mr. Fall, "as an Englishman of honor. And for yours, too, Mr. Trevor, I shall be very much obliged. Have some brandy."

"YOU see," said Mr. Fall, "I am not a gentleman. I am not even quite a gentleman. My birth and upbringing, though they have fitted me for very much, have not fitted me to decide on certain matters with that clearness of vision and decision which I find so admirable in men of breeding. . . ."

Tarlyon made a faint noise which sounded like "Ah. . . ."

"To men like you," Mr. Fall continued, "there are not two ways of doing a thing; there is only a right way; and that, with you, is the instinctive way. Whereas for me there is also the right way, but there are other ways as well, and sometimes I find myself wandering up these other ways and wondering if they are not quite as right as the right way, even though they are more convenient. In matters of policy there are two sides to every question; and I sometimes wonder if, in matters of honor, there are not also two sides to every question. . . ."

"There are," said George Tarlyon. "But one of them is a precipice. . . ."

"Exactly, Lord Tarlyon. And that is why I am about to put before you the case of myself and a lady, as discreetly as possible, of course, so that you can advise me what to do—as a man of honor. Or, rather, so that you can support me in going on doing what I am already doing, or encourage me to change my course towards what, I frankly admit, will be a happy fulfillment for me. Have some brandy.

"I may say," Mr. Fall continued, "that at the age of 52 I know as little about ladies as I did when I was 20, when I didn't know anything. Perhaps it is because I have always been a very busy man, perhaps it is because I did not attract them enough"——

"Or perhaps it's because you attract them too much," Tarlyon suggested.

"Of course," Mr. Fall admitted, "one is agreeable financially; and a knowledge of that fact has sometimes, I am afraid, caused me to reconsider an invitation to dinner which the night before had seemed full of friendship, and, perhaps, possibilities of a kind which I am not too old to think romantic. However . . ."

"A LITTLE over a year ago," said Mr. Fall, "I met the lady who is bound up in the situation on which I need your advice. I met her in an ordinary way, at a ball; and saw nothing unusual in the meeting until the evening of the following day, when I found to my surprise that throughout the day she had been inhabiting that part of a man's mental economy which is called the 'back of his mind.' On bringing her to the front I discovered that I was in love with her; and on ringing her up was delighted to hear that she was agreeably disposed to seeing me at her flat, at about 5 o'clock any afternoon. That was a year ago, and that is as far as I have got."

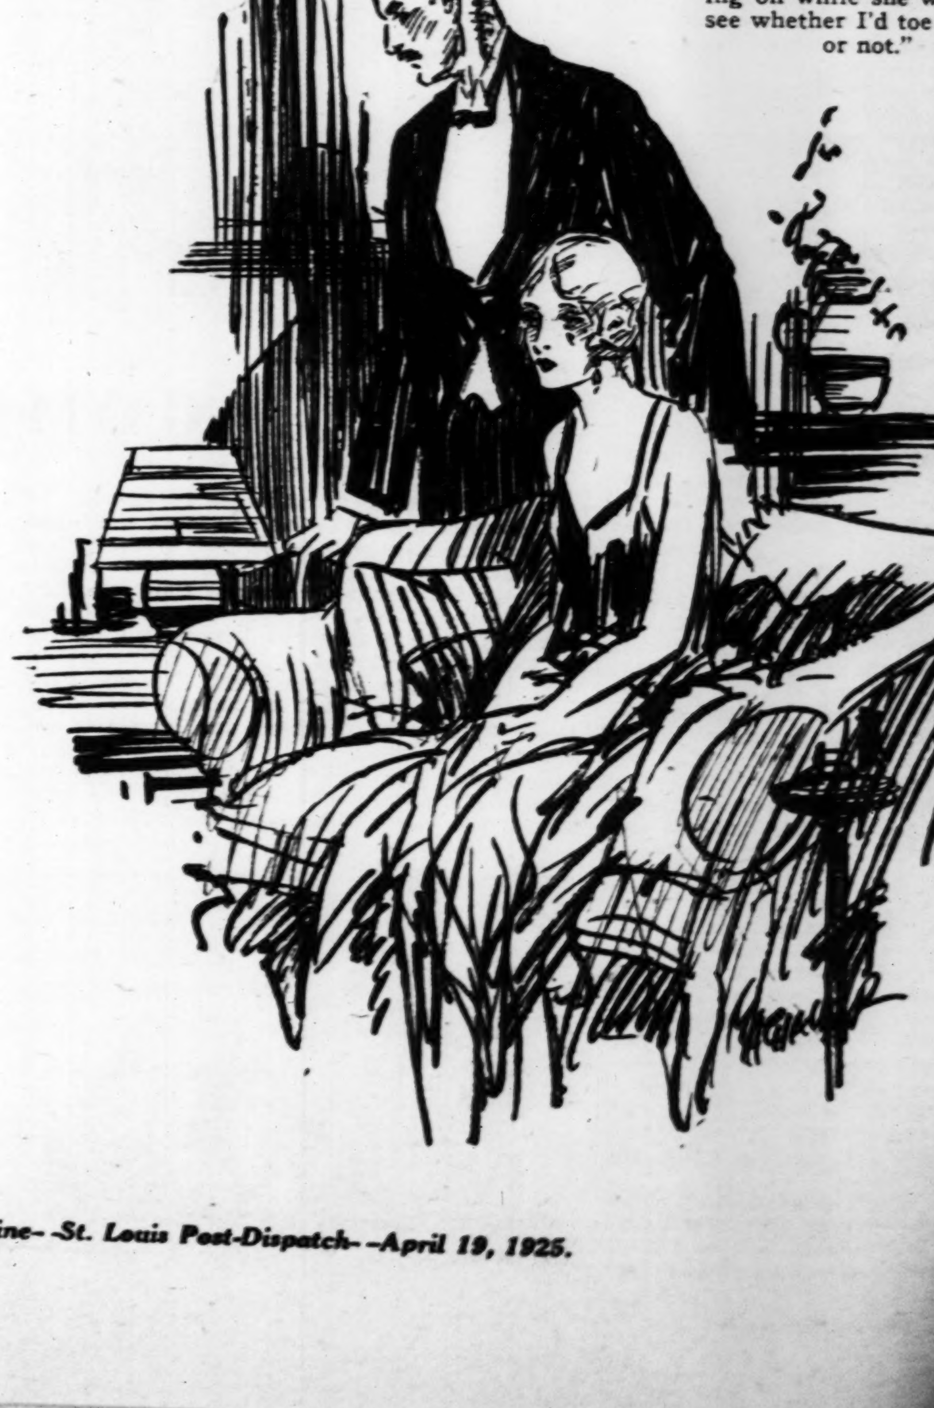
"You mean, she has so far refused to marry you?" I asked.

"I have not asked her, Mr. Trevor. That is the point—I cannot ask her. With such as she, as you can understand, the words love and marriage are synonymous—and both, to her in particular, are offensive. I am her friend. I do not want to be, but I am.

"She is a lady of birth, of deep principles and affections, which, I believe, it is the custom of the day to find wanting in women of fashion; and I find that at the end of a year I respect the dignity of her mind as much as I admire that of her carriage, her principles as much as her features, which are of the kind known as classical, though indeed I find in them every quality of romance. I cannot even mention marriage to her, because of the damn silly thing which stands between us. Have some brandy.

"Her husband had died some 12 months before I met this lady, in Rome, where he was on political business, of a sudden chill. At that time I was also in Rome; and though I had never met his wife, or even knew he was married, I had had a fairly long acquaintance with him, which had begun in the early days of the war in Paris, where he was stationed as a military officer of some consequence. I remember while I was there he won the D. S. O. for service at the front—telephone service, I gathered.

"He died of his chill within 24 hours, and my business took me from Rome before his wife could arrive. I leave you to imagine the tragedy of her arrival in a city where, only a few years before



"She's just kept him hanging on while she waited to see whether I'd toe the line or not."

All of Which

she had spent the happiest weeks of her life, her honeymoon, to look upon the still face of one who had left her two weeks before in the full vigor of youth and health. She has described it to me, not as a whole but in those disjointed pieces with which a sensitive mind can make a figure of tragedy vivid to a sympathetic listener, and I can see the thing so clearly that I feel it as a personal loss. . . ."

"And so," Mr. Fall added grimly, "it is. It seems that, on the night I met her at the ball, she had discovered my acquaintance with her dead husband; and it was that fact which had made her so agreeably disposed to allowing me to call on her, for hers was that kind of breeding—rare, I am given to understand, in these days—which is not usually approachable by a slight acquaintance on the telephone. I am quite assured, in spite of her very courteous assertions to the contrary, that we would never have become friends but for my having known her husband. . . .

"VERY early in our friendship I found that she had loved her husband as few men are fortunate enough to be loved; and in this love had been contained a respect which I can only describe as religious. It was not the qualities of his mind, which were gentlemanly, but scarcely above the commonplace, but those of his heart, which had held such a high place in her love; and which, now that he was dead, reigned in her mind to exclusion—I speak literally, Lord Tarlyon—of every other interest and affection. She had not loved him enough, she said. She ought, she insisted, to have recognized more deeply his regard for and constancy to her; and she ought certainly to have insisted on accompanying him to Rome, when, perhaps, under her care, he might not have caught that fatal chill.

"She persuaded herself that she had neglected one whose every thought, whose whole life, was bound up in hers, a great gentleman whose fidelity to her, one of four daughters of an impoverished house, had merited the most utter devotion; and whose memory she couldn't but hold in the highest esteem.

"I need scarcely tell you, who are men of the world, that a lady so devoted, so consistent, is rare, and must undoubtedly possess qualities of mind and heart deserving a man's highest respect. Perhaps, however, I carried this respect business too far when, at that beginning, and in the natural flow of conversation about someone whose memory was so admirably dear to her, I helped to feed her illusions about her husband. I need not, in trying to anchor her interest in me, have gone so far as I did. I need not, just for the pleasure of seeing the tender light in her eyes, have rashly struck out on my own and invented a magnificent Parisian situation in which her husband's constancy to her had been as a shining light among the crude passions let loose by war among even the most decent of temporarily celibate men. I need not have depicted him as a man whose purity and asceticism were such as to astonish his friends—myself, who was but human, among them—and as one whom the fascinations of the most lovely women left untouched, except for a sad smile which I had frequently seen come on his face, as at the thought of someone inexpressibly dear to him. Have some brandy.

"THE man is dead; and I wouldn' have you think me so wanting i decency as to speak harshly of a dea man. But the fact remains that tha man must have been one of the world' biggest liars, a liar of inconceivabl genius and magnitude. I have told yo how, throughout the time I knew hin I was not even aware that he was ma ried; but there was not only nothin in his conversation, but there was le than nothing in his behavior, to ind cate that he had a wife in England f whose company he was passionatel

"THE man is dead; and I wouldn't have you think me so wanting in decency as to speak harshly of a dead man. But the fact remains that that man must have been one of the world's biggest liars, a liar of inconceivable genius and magnitude. I have told you how, throughout the time I knew him, I was not even aware that he was married; but there was not only nothing in his conversation, but there was less than nothing in his behavior, to indicate that he had a wife in England for whose company he was passionately longing. I had nothing against him, mind you; he was a charming bachelor, a gay companion, and, if you will permit a small vulgarity, could resist a pretty woman about as much as a mouse can resist a cheese.

"It has been my part to have had to sit and listen to his praises by the hour, and at his name I have had to endure seeing tears spring to the eyes of a noble and beautiful lady. With her I have stood by his grave, and on it I have emptied the contents of Solomon's windows. I have sat close beside her and longed to touch her hand, to kiss her hair, to express even the surface of my passion—I have known that, perhaps, in happier circumstances, she might not have pushed away my hand nor denied my kiss—and I have also known that she would not allow herself for one second to deviate from the path she had set herself, the path of self-sacrifice to the memory of a man who, I knew, had never spent a moment of his life in thinking about her. Have some brandy.

"It may seem strange to you, Lord Tarlyon, and to you, Mr. Trevor, that I should confide in you with so little restraint. But as I told you in throwing myself upon your kind attention, I lack the breeding which could alone give me an instinctive direction in such a matter. I need guidance, Lord Tarlyon. I am in a damnable case; and in the last few weeks I have been seeking refuge from a position which becomes more insupportable every moment—and the more so, you understand, because I can see I am not altogether distasteful to the lady—in wondering whether, in some recess in the code of honor, there is no decent way out of this damnable lie. That in particular is why, Lord Tarlyon, I was so anxious to see you, and to put the matter before you. Is there, for a man of honor, no way out of a mess like this? Is it utterly impossible for me to shatter her illusions about her late—her extremely late, in his nightly habits—husband? Is there nothing I can do but look sulky every time the man's name is mentioned? But I have tried that, and I am afraid she takes it as the expression of a sympathy too deep for words. What can I do, Lord Tarlyon? Or perhaps you, Mr. Trevor, can suggest some way out. Have some brandy."

A SILENCE fell on us a while. At last I said:

"I am afraid, Mr. Fall, as you have honored me by asking for my advice, that there seems to be nothing you can do but what you have already done—to wait. Maybe some time . . . she . . . well, you know what I mean." I hope he did, for I was by no means sure. . . .

"And you, Lord Tarlyon?"

"Well," said George, very thoughtfully, with his eyes somewheres on the table, "as you ask me, I must say that your behavior throughout seems to me to have been irreproachable, and I respect you enormously for it. I can't say fairer than that. But," and he looked across at Mr. Fall; and he smiled at him a grave smile, "neither can I for the life of me see how you can break away from the position you are in. It seems beastly—but, since you've asked my advice, I can only suggest that you must just wait. You can't, as you have said, shatter the illusion—you can't, as a man of honor. A cad, of course, would long ago have stepped into the breach and away with the body—I mean, booty. Your brandy is marvelous, Mr. Fall. But, as I was saying, I can't for the life of me see that you can do anything but just wait and look sulky whenever you get the chance."

"You will forgive my boring you?" Mr. Fall put to us sincerely.

"It would be too cold-blooded of us to say we have been entertained," I began.

"But," said Tarlyon, "we have certainly not been bored. And I only wish we could have been of some use"——

"I just wanted cor-rob-oration," Mr. Fall murmured softly, sadly. "Have some brandy."

IT WAS past 1 o'clock when George Tarlyon and I set foot again in Grosvenor Square; we walked up South Audley street, and I stopped at my door.

"Good night, George," I said. But Tarlyon held my arm.

"You are coming home with me," says he.

"Nonsense!" said I; and though I was friendly, I was firm. "I have drunk brandy, and I would sleep. Good night, George Almeric St. George."

But he is a very tall man, and he dragged me by the arm down South Audley street, the while crying mighty cries after the manner of one who wants a taxi immediately; and into one he threw me, and the taxi hurled itself towards Belgrave Square, where George Tarlyon lives in a house which, together with much money, was left to him by his wife, who died before she could make a will.

I was very angry, and insisted that he should make a note of it.

"There, there," he soothed me. "All I want you to do, Ralph, is to leer in the offing while I ring up a lady. I do so hate to do that kind of thing alone."

I pointed out that she couldn't be much of a lady if he could ring her up at that unearthly hour; he warned me to leave his friends alone; I said I wouldn't touch them at the end of a barge pole, and then I composed myself to sleep. The taxi hurled itself across Hyde Park Corner, and dreamily I heard Tarlyon's voice:

"I am not only going to telephone a lady, but I am going to insult a lady intolerably. And in case my invention should run low I want you, Ralph, to stand by and suggest some more intolerable insults. . . ."

And dreamily I heard Tarlyon's voice:

"She keeps her telephone beside her bed, and so she must answer! and lo! I will insult her intolerably."

The taxi stopped and very soon the receiver was to his ear, while I leered at him from the depths of an armchair.

"Have some brandy," said Tarlyon, but I sneered at him.

BUT what he said down the telephone, I cannot repeat. These things should only be spoken of privately, as between man and man. All I can do is to give a brief outline of his speech and a summary of the conclusions at which he arrived. He spoke at length of her character, of which he seemed to take an unfavorable view; he took grave exception to the manner of her life; and he begged her to hold him excused, in future, from any closer relationship than that of a distant acquaintance. She must have said he was drunk, for he denied any undue excess, while reserving to himself the right to think she was probably a secret drinker.

He began, I thought, rather subtly, on a matter which has been discussed between ladies and gentlemen ever since Solomon took a fancy to the Queen of Sheba and put off all dinner engagements for a week. In the gentlest way Tarlyon begged to be excused from dining with her on the following night. No, it was not that he had discovered a previous engagement; no, he couldn't say that. The truth was, he said, that he had found something better to do; he hadn't, he added, had to look very hard. He then proceeded to give his reasons for never wishing to see her again, and these he deduced (a) from flaws in her character, (b) from structural errors in her personal appearance. He pointed out that he was putting himself to this trouble only for her good, and in memory of his long friendship with her late husband, whom he had known ever since they were at Oxford and Cambridge together. I can only put down the fact that she did not ring off before she did to some fatal fascination in his voice, which was throughout smooth and reasonable in tone.

"That woman," he explained, "is a very clever woman. She has the kind of brains that don't generally go with beauty; and if I had any political ambitions, or any indoor ambitions of any kind, I would marry her like a shot. She has been thinking this last year that I might marry her, but I've just managed to keep the conversation off that. For, though one doesn't deserve an angel, one needn't marry a devil. Meanwhile, however, I've grown fond of her, and I've taken no trouble to hide from her that I admire her enormously; and so she has kept me dangling for a year, doing neither one thing nor the other—indeed, why should she?—on the off-chance that I might marry her; for though Viscounts are not what they were, Ralph, a wealthy Viscount was to her mind just preferable to a wealthy Canadian of a certain age. And so she has kept poor old Cyrus Fall, who adores her, as I've known for the last 10 months or so, hanging on as her second string, palming off that ghastly lie on him about a husband she never cared a damn about—she just kept him hanging on, while she waited to see whether I'd toe the line or not; and if not. . . . But I'm rather sorry about it all, Ralph, for she is a clever and amusing woman, and I shall miss begging her to put-off Mr. Fall to dine with me."

"Poor old Cyrus Fall!" I murmured. "But then—why poor? He adores the woman—no matter how cunning she is, he adores her. And so on. . . ."

"Exactly," said Tarlyon. "There are men, Ralph, who would warn Mr. Fall against that woman, whereas we are throwing her into his arms. For we, Ralph, know that no matter how thoroughly he finds her out, as he surely will, he will not cease to adore her; for it is not virtue that men and women love in each other"——

"Quite," said I. "Good night."

A WEEK later, there was announced in the Morning Post, which somehow always seems to know about these things, the engagement of Mr. Cyrus Fall to Mrs. Lycester-Craven, widow of Major Lycester-Craven of the ——. The same morning Mr. Fall rang up Lord Tarlyon.

"Pleased if you'd take luncheon with me today," said Mr. Fall.

"Sorry," said Tarlyon. "Already luncheoning."

"Cocktail?"

"Well, why not?"

"Ritz, 1 o'clock?"

"Right," said Tarlyon.

Tarlyon grasped the outstretched hand and wrung it.

"Congratulations," he murmured.

"Thank you," said Mr. Fall.

Tarlyon raised his eyebrows.

"But is the man mad?" he asked. "What on earth for?"

"For your advice to the lady, Lord Tarlyon," said Mr. Fall, gently.

Tarlyon jumped in his chair, and he stared at Cyrus Fall.

"You don't mean to tell me that she told you!" he gasped.

"Oh, no!" Mr. Fall assured him. "Oh, no! She has never mentioned your name, and I haven't the faintest idea of what you said to her. But I knew you would say something, Lord Tarlyon—as a man of honor. That is why I told you of my dilemma that night—after which, as a man of honor, you could do but one thing, since my intentions were serious and yours were not. A cocktail?"

"I'll have some brandy," whispered Tarlyon.

THAT LAUNDRY PROBLEM!

BY STEPHEN LEACOCK.

A LONG time ago, thirty or forty years ago, there used to exist a humble being called a Washerwoman. It was her simple function to appear at intervals with a huge basket, carry away soiled clothes, and bring them back as snow-white linen.

The washerwoman is gone now. Her place is taken by the Amalgamated Laundry Co. She is gone. But I want her back.

The washerwoman, in fact and in fiction, was supposed to represent the bottom end of everything. She could just manage to exist. She was the last word. Now the Amalgamated Laundry Co. uses hydro-electric power, has an office like a bank, and delivers its goods out of a huge hearse driven by a chauffeur in livery. But I want that humble woman back.

In the old days any woman deserted and abandoned in the world took in washing. When all else failed there was at least that. Any woman who wanted to show her independent spirit and force of character threatened to take in washing. It was the last resort of a noble mind. In many of the great works of fiction the heroine's mother almost took in washing.

WOMEN whose ancestry went back to the crusades very nearly, though never quite, started to wash. They were just ready to wash when the discovery of the missing will saved them from the suds. But nowadays if a woman exclaimed, "What shall I do? I am alone in the world! I will open an Amalgamated Laundry!"—it would not sound the same.

The operation of the old system—as I recall it from the days of forty years ago—was very simple. The washerwoman used to call and take away my shirt and my collar and while she washed them I wore my other shirt and my other collar. When she came back we changed over. She always had one and I had one. In those days any young man in a fair position needed only two shirts.

Where the poor washerwoman was hopelessly simple was that she never destroyed or injured the shirt. She never even thought to bite a piece out with her teeth. When she brought it back it looked softer and better than ever. It never occurred to her to tear out one of the sleeves. If she broke off a button in washing, she humbly sewed it on again.

WHEN she ironed the shirt it never occurred to the simple soul to burn a brown mark right across it. The woman lacked imagination. In other words, modern industrialism was in its infancy.

I have never witnessed at first hand the processes of a modern incorporated laundry company using up-to-date machinery. But I can easily construct in my imagination a vision of what is done when a package of washing is received. The shirts are first sorted out and taken to an expert who rapidly sprinkles them with sulphuric acid.

They then go to the coloring room, where they are dipped in a solution of yellow stain. From this they pass to the machine-gun room where holes are shot in them, and from there by an automatic carrier to the hydraulic tearing room where the sleeves are torn out. After that they are squeezed absolutely flat under enormous pressure which puts them into such a shape that the buttons can all be ripped up at a single scrape by an expert button ripper.

The last process is altogether handwork and accounts, I am informed, for the heavy cost. A good button-ripper with an expert knowledge of the breaking strain of material, easily earns $50 a day. But the work is very exacting, as not a single button is expected to escape his eye. Of late the big laundries are employing new chemical methods, such as mustard gas, tear bombs, and star shells.

COLLARS, I understand, are treated in the same way, though the process varies a little according as the aim is to produce the Fuzzled Edge Finish or the Split Side Slit. The general idea, of course, in any first-class laundry, is to see that no shirt or collar ever comes back twice. If it should happen to do so, it is sent at once to the Final Destruction Department, who put gun cotton under it and blow it into six bits. It is then labeled "damaged" and sent home in a special conveyance with an attendant in mourning.

Had the poor washerwoman kept a machine-gun and a little dynamite, she could have made a fortune. But she didn't know it. In the old days a washerwoman washed a shirt for ten-twelfths of a cent—or 10 cents a dozen pieces. The best laundries, those which deny all admission to their offices and send back their laundry under an armed guard, now charge $1 to wash a shirt, with a special rate of $12 a dozen.

On the same scale the washerwoman's wages would be multiplied by a hundred and twenty. She really represented in value an income of $50,000 a year. Had it been known, she could have been incorporated and dividends picked off her like huckleberries.

NOW that I think of it, she was worth even more than that. With the modern laundry a shirt may be worn twice, for one day each time. After that it is blown up. And it costs $4 to buy a new one. In the old days a shirt lasted till a man outgrew it. As a man approached middle life he found, with a certain satisfaction, that he had outgrown his shirt. He had to spend 75 cents for a new one, and that one lasted till he was buried it in.

Had some poor woman only known enough to pick up one of these shirts and bite the neck out of it, she might have started something really big.

But even when all this has been said there remains more yet. In the old days if you had a complaint to make to the washerwoman you said it to her straight out. She was there. And she heard the complaint and sneaked away with tears in her eyes to her humble home where she read the Bible and drank gin.

But now if you have a complaint to make to an Amalgamated Laundry Corporation, you can't find it. There is no use complaining to the chauffeur

La-May Stays On Better Than Any Other Face Powder

Do you know you can now get a face powder that really stays on—that stays on until you wash it off—that stays on in this wonderful way without showing noticeably as make-up? And it does not contain a single harmful ingredient! Everything used to make it stay on is recommended by doctors and skin specialists to benefit and beautify the skin. No cold cream or almond paste that might grow hair—no white lead to poison the skin, no rice powder to cause enlarged pores and blackheads.

This delightful powder is called La-May (French, Poudre L'Ame). It is the successful creation of a specialist who spent twenty years to perfect a beauty powder to prevent and banish enlarged pores instead of making them, to keep the skin young instead of ageing it, to prevent and remedy eruptions instead of causing them and to really beautify instead of only hiding the blemishes.

Thousands of beautiful New York women are gratefully praising La-May; they have confidence in its purity; they refuse to take a chance in using another powder, even when offered by a friend. Girls, if you honestly value the charm of a lovely complexion, you will never be satisfied until you give your skin the lasting benefit of this real beauty treatment. Millions of women are devoted to it; they say it goes on smoother, looks better and it stays on marvelously well.

You can get La-May in any of the good stores at sixty cents, one dollar and three dollars per box, in White, Flesh, Brunette and Tan. All stores sell the special generous trial size, enough for two months, for only thirty-five cents. Remember, you are offered five thousand dollars if you can buy a better, a finer, a smoother, a purer or safer powder than La-May anywhere at any price. Save this notice.

It's Safe to Use La-May—It's Pure!

in livery. He never saw a shirt in his life.

THERE is no use in going to the office. All you find there are groups of lady employes sheltered behind a cast iron grating. They never saw your shirt. Don't ask them. They have their office work and in the evening they take extension lectures on the modern drama. They wouldn't know a shirt if they saw it.

Nor can you write to the company. I speak here of what I know, for I have tried to lay a complaint before a laundry company in writing, and I know the futility of it. Here is the letter I wrote:

To the Board of Directors,
The Amalgamated Universal Laundry Co.

Gentlemen:

I wish you would try to be a little more careful with my shirt. I mean the pink one. I think you put a little more starch in the neck last time than you intended and it all seems stuck together.

Very faithfully yours.—

BUT the only answer I got was a communication in the following terms:

Dear Sir,

Folio 110,615. Department 0412. Received February 19th 9:26 A. M. Read March 19, 8:23 A. M. Sent down April 19 4:01 A. M. Sent up May 19th 2 A. M.

We beg to inform you that your communication as above will be laid before the shareholders at their next general meeting. In answering kindly indicate folio, department, street, age and occupation. No complaints received under names or in words.

Yours,
Folio 0016.

After that I felt it was hopeless to go on. My only chance for the future is that I may get to know some beautiful rich woman and perhaps her husband will run away and leave her weeping and penniless and drinking gin, and then I will appear in the doorway and will say, "Dry your tears, dear, dear friend; there is prosperity for you yet; you shall wash my shirt."

To Exercise or Not to Exercise?

ing entirely, than I had before that, when I was, at times, a believer myself in that superstition.

"I have avoided the exercise fad and I don't see but what I am just as well off.

"This 'exercise superstition' is a bad superstition—one of the worst ones we have today. I should say that a good rule would be to get as much sunshine and fresh air as you can, and then, if you really want to exercise, do it—but not unless you feel like it.

"I used to bore myself pounding around an indoor riding ring on a horse during the winter. I went to Dr. de Costa of Philadelphia to be examined, and while there I asked him if it was necessary for me to keep up that horseback riding.

"'Why,' he laughed, 'you can do it if you want to!' That was all he said. So I stopped it."

"Sheer superstition," is the way Henry Holt sums the matter up.

The Philadelphia doctor whom he mentions was famous in his day for his utter disregard of exercise. This physician, of whom it was once said by a New York doctor, "all we know about health and long life we learned from Dr. de Costa," ridiculed the supposed benefits coming from faithful attention to any form of physical culture.

But the honor of hammering the final and strongest nail in the coffin of King Exercise goes to Chauncey M. Depew. This veteran of American business and political life has long been noted for his combination of activity and age. Although 91 years old, he is at his office desk regularly every day, handling the affairs of the New York Central as chairman of its board of directors—a position he has held for 27 years.

"Do you attribute your good health and your long life to exercise?" he was asked. The reply was both concise and illuminating:

"I never took any."

Mr. Depew cannot credit his longevity to even the incidental exercise that comes when engaging in sport purely for sport's sake. I never played golf, or tennis, or things like that," he explained. "Nor have I ever done much horseback riding."

As perhaps the most outstanding example of a vigorous old age that the United States has to show, Mr. Depew has been in an excellent position to learn the reactions of the public mind on the question of how to attain longevity, for he has been asked many times for advice on the subject.

"Walter Camp's death ruined his scheme," says Mr. Depew. "I have received letters from all over the country saying, in effect, 'We believed in Walter Camp. We followed him. But he died at 62. We want to live to 80 or 90. He has failed us; we need your help. What can you tell us to do?'"

"Well, what do you tell them?"

"I don't tell them anything!"

Despite all this, Chauncey Depew has been experimenting with the "Daily Dozen" himself during the last three years. But up to his eighty-eighth birthday such exercises were entirely foreign to him. And 88 is far enough along to satisfy even those who write anxious letters asking how to become notably and respectably aged.

So: we have the fact of Walter Camp's early death; we know what some of the country's most prominent examples of longevity think about exercise; we are aware of the changing public sentiment. Explain away all these things, if you can, King Exercise—for you are going into the same nose-dive that the buttermilk fad took when its champion, Metchnikoff, died.

> "IT IS a mistake to build up too big a physical system," declares Bernard Baruch, "for you must then take care of it in after years. Exercise, like everything else, must be taken in moderation."
> "Have you found, in your experience, that a certain amount of exercise is necessary?" he was asked.
> "Yes, but in the open air!" Mr. Baruch answered. "The thing to remember is that the individual, with the advice of his physician, must adjust the amount to his own special needs."

Great interest attaches to reports of a remarkable method for treating goitre recently demonstrated at the W. T. B. Laboratory, 819 Minty Block, Battle Creek, Mich. It is used by the patient herself in her own home and it is said that the largest and most hideous goitres begin to recede almost in a day. They gradually get smaller until in three or four weeks they are often gone entirely. The treatment is perfectly safe for anyone to use and many believe it will prove the long sought specific for all goitres. A little book issued by the laboratory explains the method fully and will be mailed free for the asking to anyone interested.

I HAVE been a druggist for more than twenty-five years. I have filled thousands of prescriptions. I have known many that seemed to work like magic—but never in all my career have I known anything to give such remarkable results as this prescription which was given to me by a noted stomach specialist.

I now own twelve drug stores in Springfield, and in these stores this now famous prescription has been filled times without number. In 95 out of 100 cases, immediate relief and benefit have been the result. So many people praised this medicine, so many came back for more, so many told me friends had recommended it, that finally I had it put up in tablet form and offered it to the public at large.

One Bloomin' Idol

the end but the same three gods, Brahma, the creator; Vishnu, the preserver, and Siva, the destroyer. Through their other names they preserve the identity, these are but Maya, illusion. Under these forms they presided over a thousand different destinies, crafts, fates and occasions. Often the names are chosen because the Hindu, bound by caste, dares not to utter the sacred names of the great triumvirate. On the judgment of the Privy Council may depend the Empire's fate, for these Hindus are fanatical.

IT'S probable that judgment will be wise. Once before the Council had a problem to decide and Solomon's judgment was not more wily.

That was some 15 months ago. Lakshman Goundan, a rich Hindu of Madras, had built a temple to his special deity, the god Kandaswami, to whom he said he was indebted for many favors. Thousands had come to worship at that temple in the intervening years. His descendants sought to claim the temple as private property. The devotees said it had become a public religious trust.

And the Privy Council weighed, debated and put down its judgment.

The temple was a public religious trust, it said, but the descendants of Lakshman Goundan should manage it.

Oh, wise and wily Privy Council!

The Testimony of Women

conciliate them. I tell them that if I find either or both of them guilty, there'll be a fine. I give them a chance to drop the case. Does the woman who's prosecuting always do it? No. She gets up on the stand, and if she's really in the wrong she tells tales that—that I can hardly be expected to believe. No, some of the men prevaricate, and all of the women don't, but the men are really a bit more given to what we may term the existing facts."

And the Judge recalled to me the case of a woman who had her husband brought into court. And how she had said he didn't work. How she said he drank. How he admitted he drank, but contended he did work. And his wife was called to the stand again and asked if he gave her $35 each week, as he said he did, which was about nine-tenths of his pay. And she admitted it, but she qualified it by saying he didn't work all the time. What the good woman probably meant was that he didn't work 24 hours a day.

It brought back a bit of my chivalry to know that someone besides myself had discovered the great secret about women witnesses. Judge Matthews and myself are sad together.

Surely the women should try to find some means to correct this deplorable situation. I suggest they might stay away from court. And I sincerely hope they will not think I am prejudiced against them. It would make me very sad. Besides, I have an invitation to lunch at the Town Club this week.

Stealing Snakes

Halse was found guilty and sentenced to a month's hard labor. Since then, the population of the Snake Park has remained at normal figures, and new snakes purchased have been wild enough to satisfy any director.

The puff-adder received that popular name from its habit of swelling or puffing itself up when irritated. It is with poison from this creature that natives in Africa envenom their most effective arrows. They take advantage of the puff-adder's extreme sluggishness. Before the snake has made up its mind to bite, the dark-skinned hunter plants his bare foot upon the adder's neck, then with a knife severs the head.

A relative of the boomslang found in Borneo is one of the most beautiful of the tree-snakes, and quite harmless. Native children are said to make a pet of it. They allow the snake to coil itself around their arms and bodies and it never hurts them. It is most active, leaping from branch to branch of the highest trees.

The cobra is the most famous and most dreaded of all snakes. The cobra-da-capello, most common venomous reptile of India, is reverenced by Buddhists because of a legend that such a cobra once spread its "hood" over Buddha as the weary god lay asleep in the sunshine, and thus shielded his face from the rays of the sun.

Great numbers of them are used by the itinerant snake-charmers in India, who seem to have the secret of handling cobras with impunity. It is known that in some cases, at least, the poison-fangs of these performing snakes have been drawn. But in more instances the snake's poison apparatus is intact and it could deal a deadly blow if it wished. Indian snake-charmers have been known to go into the jungle and catch cobras with their bare hands and receive no injury.

The most deadly of all snakes, but rather rare, is the species called Ophiophagus elaps, which feeds upon other snakes. Its bite will cause the death of a human being in three minutes, and the death of an elephant in two hours. Were it as abundant in India as the cobra, according to some scientists, the country soon would be depopulated. Returns for 1922 show that 19,396 persons died in India from snake bites, the vast majority being natives.

New Discovery Clears Body and Face of Objectionable Hair

—roots and all!

SCIENCE has taken a rare old Oriental secret and perfected a remarkable soothing balsam that eases out superfluous hair in a jiffy—and at the same time destroys its growth!

Hair on chin or cheeks, or arms, on legs can now be removed—roots and all—without the danger of having it grow back again heavier than ever before. Nothing like this extraordinary method has ever been known. It is safe, scientific, absolutely effective the first time it is applied. Beauty experts recommend it. Women heartily acclaim it. In case after case it is proving that unsightly objectionable hair is unnecessary.

What Is This Method?

Women who have vainly tried for years to get rid of objectionable hair on the face and body are astounded. What is this new method they want to know? How does it achieve such marvelous results—not only lifting out the hair quickly and gently, but actually destroying its growth?

The process represents the newest, most scientific and correct method for destroying superfluous hair without electricity, without ordinary depilatories or "surface" methods that remove the hair temporarily, and often stimulate an even heavier growth of hair. The product itself is made of the finest Oriental balsams and is as easy to apply as a cold cream. The whole process is quick and simple and not at all unpleasant.

There is nothing messy or disagreeable about this new method—no bad odors to be tolerated—no painful breaking or pulling of the hair. It's wonderful—the very discovery you've been waiting for! Get rid of that unsightly hair at once. You can; in the privacy of your home.

FREE "The New Way to Destroy Objectionable Hair."

The whole fascinating story of this new method, what it is, how it works, what it will do for you, is told in this interesting little book, illustrated with actual photographs. We will be glad to send you a copy absolutely free and without obligation. See for yourself how easily, quickly and inexpensively superfluous hair troubles can be removed forever! I HAVE been a druggist for more than twenty-five years. I have filled thousands of prescriptions. I have known many that seemed to work like magic—but never in all my career have I known anything to give such remarkable results as this prescription which was given to me by a noted stomach specialist.

I now own twelve drug stores in Springfield, and in these stores this now famous prescription has been filled times without number. In 96 out of 100 cases, immediate relief and benefit have been the result. So many people praised this medicine, so many came back for more, so many told me friends had recommended it, that finally I had it put up in tablet form and offered it to the public at large.

If You Suffer—Try It

Send me your name and address TODAY, by next mail, and let me prove to you by actual test, without your risking a penny, just what this remarkable medicine can do for you. It is safe, harmless, reliable, proven in hundreds of stubborn cases. It costs only $1.00 if you are delighted with its benefits, nothing if you are not more than satisfied. Try it. Know the glorious relief it brings. Write now—just your name and address.

Kills Catarrh Germ in Three Minutes

Chronic catarrh, no matter how bad, and cases of bronchial asthma now yield instantly to the amazing discovery of a French scientist. This drugless method called Lavex kills the germ in three minutes, yet is positively harmless to the most delicate tissues. Your head and lungs are cleared like magic. Sufferers are relieved in a single night.

To prove it and to introduce Lavex to a million sufferers in one month, I offer to send a treatment free and postpaid, to any one who will write for it. No obligation. No cost. If it cures you, you can repay the favor by telling your friends—if not, the loss is mine. No matter what you have tried, just send me your name and address for this generous free treatment and prove that you can be rid of catarrh.

Stop Using a Truss

STUART'S PLAPAO-PADS are different from the truss, being mechanico-chemico applicators made self-adhesive purposely to hold the distended muscles securely in place. No straps, buckles, or spring attached—cannot slip, so cannot chafe or press against the pubic bone. Thousands have successfully treated themselves at home without hindrance from work—most obstinate cases conquered.

Doctor's Prescription for ASTHMA

Leaven's prescription was originally written by a physician and filled in my drug store. People got such good results that now over 200,000 have used it. I ask no one to send any money before trying this medicine; a $1.25 bottle will be mailed to any sufferer who will send their name. If after 10 days results are satisfactory, pay $1.25. Otherwise you owe nothing. No bill will be sent you. No C. O. D. I have confidence this medicine will prove its merit. I hope I can convince every sufferer to write for a trial bottle today.

One Bloomin' Idol

the end but the same three gods, Brahma, the creator; Vishnu, the preserver, and Siva, the destroyer. Through their other names they preserve the identity, these are but Maya, illusion. Under these forms they presided over a thousand different destinies, crafts, fates and occasions. Often the names are chosen because the Hindu, bound by caste, dares not to utter the sacred names of the great triumvirate. On the judgment of the Privy Council may depend the Empire's fate, for these Hindus are fanatical.

IT'S probable that judgment will be wise. Once before the Council had a problem to decide and Solomon's judgment was not more wily.

That was some 15 months ago. Lakshman Goundan, a rich Hindu of Madras, had built a temple to his special deity, the god Kandaswami, to whom he said he was indebted for many favors. Thousands had come to worship at that temple in the intervening years. His descendants sought to claim the temple as private property. The devotees said it had become a public religious trust.

And the Privy Council weighed, debated and put down its judgment.

The temple was a public religious trust, it said, but the descendants of Lakshman Goundan should manage it.

Oh, wise and wily Privy Council!

conciliate them. I tell them that if I find either or both of them guilty, there'll be a fine. I give them a chance to drop the case. Does the woman who's prosecuting always do it? No. She gets up on the stand, and if she's really in the wrong she tells tales that—that I can hardly be expected to believe. No, some of the men prevaricate, and all of the women don't, but the men are really a bit more given to what we may term the existing facts."

And the Judge recalled to me the case of a woman who had her husband brought into court. And how she had said he didn't work. How she said he drank. How he admitted he drank, but contended he did work. And his wife was called to the stand again and asked if he gave her $35 each week, as he said he did, which was about nine-tenths of his pay. And she admitted it, but she qualified it by saying he didn't work all the time. What the good woman probably meant was that he didn't work 24 hours a day.

It brought back a bit of my chivalry to know that someone besides myself had discovered the great secret about women witnesses. Judge Matthews and myself are sad together.

Surely the women should try to find some means to correct this deplorable situation. I suggest they might stay away from court. And I sincerely hope they will not think I am prejudiced against them. It would make me very sad. Besides, I have an invitation to lunch at the Town Club this week.

Stealing Snakes

Halse was found guilty and sentenced to a month's hard labor. Since then, the population of the Snake Park has remained at normal figures, and new snakes purchased have been wild enough to satisfy any director.

The puff-adder received that popular name from its habit of swelling or puffing itself up when irritated. It is with poison from this creature that natives in Africa envenom their most effective arrows. They take advantage of the puff-adder's extreme sluggishness. Before the snake has made up its mind to bite, the dark-skinned hunter plants his bare foot upon the adder's neck, then with a knife severs the head.

A relative of the boomslang found in Borneo is one of the most beautiful of the tree-snakes, and quite harmless. Native children are said to make a pet of it. They allow the snake to coil itself around their arms and bodies and it never hurts them. It is most active, leaping from branch to branch of the highest trees.

The cobra is the most famous and most dreaded of all snakes. The cobra-da-capello, most common venomous reptile of India, is reverenced by Buddhists because of a legend that such a cobra once spread its "hood" over Buddha as the weary god lay asleep in the sunshine, and thus shielded his face from the rays of the sun.

Great numbers of them are used by the itinerant snake-charmers in India, who seem to have the secret of handling cobras with impunity. It is known that in some cases, at least, the poison-fangs of these performing snakes have been drawn. But in more instances the snake's poison apparatus is intact and it could deal a deadly blow if it wished. Indian snake-charmers have been known to go into the jungle and catch cobras with their bare hands and receive no injury.

The most deadly of all snakes, but rather rare, is the species called Ophiophagus elaps, which feeds upon other snakes. Its bite will cause the death of a human being in three minutes, and the death of an elephant in two hours. Were it as abundant in India as the cobra, according to some scientists, the country soon would be depopulated. Returns for 1922 show that 19,396 persons died in India from snake bites, the vast majority being natives.

New Discovery Clears Body and Face of Objectionable Hair
—roots and all!

SCIENCE has taken a rare old Oriental secret and perfected a remarkable soothing balsam that eases out superfluous hair in a jiffy—and at the same time destroys its growth!

Hair on chin or cheeks, or arms, on legs can now be removed—roots and all—without the danger of having it grow back again heavier than ever before. Nothing like this extraordinary method has ever been known. It is safe, scientific, absolutely effective the first time it is applied. Beauty experts recommend it. Women heartily acclaim it. In case after case it is proving that unsightly objectionable hair is unnecessary.

What Is This Method?

Women who have vainly tried for years to get rid of objectionable hair on the face and body are astounded. What is this new method they want to know? How does it achieve such marvelous results—not only lifting out the hair quickly and gently, but actually destroying its growth?

The process represents the newest, most scientific and correct method for destroying superfluous hair without electricity, without ordinary depilatories or "surface" methods that remove the hair temporarily, and often stimulate an even heavier growth of hair. The product itself is made of the finest Oriental balsams and is as easy to apply as a cold cream. The whole process is quick and simple and not at all unpleasant.

There is nothing messy or disagreeable about this new method—no bad odors to be tolerated—no painful breaking or pulling of the hair. It's wonderful—the very discovery you've been waiting for! Get rid of that unsightly hair at once. You can; in the privacy of your home.

FREE "The New Way to Destroy Objectionable Hair."

The whole fascinating story of this new method, what it is, how it works, what it will do for you, is told in this interesting little book, illustrated with actual photographs. We will be glad to send you a copy absolutely free and without obligation. See for yourself how easily, quickly and inexpensively superfluous hair troubles can be removed forever! Send for your copy of the free book TODAY! F. C. Irwin, M. D., Dept. 384, 730 Fifth Ave., New York.

Swiss Alps? No, indeed! Two guides with their Alpenhorn on the lower slopes of Mt. Rainier, in Mt. Rainier National Park, in "The Charmed Land."

Come, Now, to "The Charmed Land"

COME, this summer, to "The Charmed Land," the magic playground of America. Come to hospitable Seattle, famous Gateway to the Orient and Alaska, metropolis of the Pacific Northwest, of which Marshal Joffre, of France, said: "It is the keystone of your Western Empire. I shall never forget it. It is marvelous that within such a few years a settlement should grow to such a great world city!"

This cool, green Sportland of sea and forest and towering mountain, with its average summer temperature of only 62 degrees, offers you a diversity of attractions unapproached elsewhere in America, yet easily accessible from Seattle.

From surf-bathing to mountain-climbing, sailing, fishing, golfing, motoring, camping, hiking—"The Charmed Land" has everything! Write Room 112, Seattle Chamber of Commerce, Seattle, Washington, for illustrated book describing Seattle and Vacation Land.

[When planning ANY trip to The Pacific Coast, ANY TIME, insist that your ticket agent route you via SEATTLE. Liberal stopovers allowed. Ask him about low round-trip summer rates.]

Your Whole Appearance Depends Upon Your Hair

Without beautiful, well-kept hair, you can never be really attractive. Soft, silky hair is the most ALLURING CHARM any women can possess. It makes the plainest features appear soft and sweet.

Fortunately, beautiful hair is no longer a matter of luck. You, too, can have beautiful hair if you shampoo it properly.

PROPER shampooing is what makes your hair soft and silky. It brings out all the real life and lustre, all the natural wave and color and leaves it fresh-looking, glossy and bright.

When your hair is dry, dull and heavy, lifeless, stiff and gummy, and the strands cling together, and it feels harsh and disagreeable to the touch, it is because your hair has not been shampooed properly.

While your hair must have frequent and regular washing to keep it beautiful, it cannot stand the harsh effect of ordinary soaps. The free alkali in ordinary soaps soon dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle and ruins it.

That is why thousands of women, everywhere, now use Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo. This clear, pure and entirely greaseless product brings out all the real beauty of the hair and cannot possibly injure. It does not dry the scalp or make the hair brittle, no matter how often you use it.

If you want to see how really beautiful you can make your hair look, just follow this simple method.

A Simple, Easy Method

FIRST, wet the hair and scalp in clear, warm water. Then apply a little Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo.

Two or three teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather. This should be rubbed in thoroughly and briskly with the finger tips, so as to loosen the dandruff and small particles of dust and dirt that stick to the scalp.

After rubbing in the rich, creamy Mulsified lather, give the hair a good rinsing. Then use another application of Mulsified, again working up a lather and rubbing it in briskly as before. After the final washing, rinse the hair and scalp in at least two changes of clear, fresh, warm water. This is very important.

Just Notice the Difference

YOU will notice the difference in your hair even before it is dry, for it will be delightfully soft and silky.

After a Mulsified shampoo you will find your hair will dry quickly and evenly and have the appearance of being much thicker and heavier than it really is.

If you want to always be remembered for your beautiful, well-kept hair, make it a rule to set a certain day each week for a Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo. This regular weekly shampooing will keep the scalp soft and the hair fine and silky, bright, fresh-looking and fluffy, wavy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any drug store or toilet goods counter, anywhere in the world. A 4-ounce bottle should last for months.

Splendid for children—fine for men.

"WHEN I CAME HOME after exhausting months of study, I suffered from indigestion and my face was covered with ugly pimples. A doctor recommended Fleischmann's Yeast so highly that I consented to try it. The effect was marvelous. In three weeks my pimples were drying up. In two months I was cured—my color was like that of a school-girl; and my digestion was superb."

(Miss Blanche Frechette, Sorel, Que.)

Can you answer "Yes"?

Does your body eliminate its wastes properly . . . Is it free from digestive and skin disorders . . . Has it the strength, the energy, you need?

NOT a "cure-all," not a medicine in any sense—Fleischmann's Yeast is simply a remarkable fresh food.

The millions of tiny active yeast plants in every cake invigorate the whole system. They aid digestion—clear the skin—banish the poisons of constipation. Where cathartics give only temporary relief, yeast strengthens the intestinal muscles and makes them healthy and active. And day by day it releases new stores of energy.

Eat two or three cakes a day before meals: on crackers—in fruit juices or milk—or just plain. For constipation especially, dissolve one cake in hot water (not scalding) night and morning. Buy several cakes at a time—they will keep in a cool dry place for several days. All grocers have Fleischmann's Yeast. Start eating it today!

And let us send you a free copy of our latest booklet on Yeast for Health. Health Research Dept. 777, The Fleischmann Co., 701 Washington Street, New York.

"HAVING SOLE CHARGE of a little Mission on the top of the Blue Ridge, I did my own housework, taught the day school, gave Visiting Nurse work, and conducted a Clothing Bureau. . . . In March, 1924, we had deep snows and weeks of heavy clouds. I began to feel very ill. My spirits went down to zero. Then one day I opened the mail and found my order of Fleischmann's Yeast. The stories I had read flashed into my mind, and I began to eat those silver wrapped cakes. That day appetite and vigor began to return—I sincerely believe Fleischmann's Yeast saved me from a serious breakdown."

(Miss Adah Prescott Knight, Upper Pocosan Mission, Va.)

"I HAD BEEN suffering from constipation, stomach ills and headaches for about ten years. A well-known physician . . . suggested that I eat Fleischmann's Yeast. I ate two cakes a day with results that amazed me. Fleischmann's Yeast put an end to headaches, stomach ills and constipation and restored my vitality. I eat it for several months each year to keep myself fit."

(John B. Kinstler, Bellevue, Ky.)

"I FELT BADLY for nine years. I was always tired in the morning—my food did not digest and I had fainting spells. Last April I moved to Denver. There I met a Hollander who told me he ate Fleischmann's Yeast and that was the reason he was so strong and healthy. At last I tried it. Now I am entirely well. I am 49 years old, but feel as I did when thirty, and I do the hardest kind of work with pick and shovel every day."

(M. B. Delken, Denver, Colo.)

EAT FLEISCHMANN'S YEAST FOR HEALTH

A FAMOUS FOOD for health—start eating it today. It tones up the entire system—banishes constipation, skin troubles, stomach disorders.

"BEING A TEACHER of music, I have consequently suffered more or less from the ills which attend a life of physical inactivity. I was a "doubting Thomas" about Fleischmann's Yeast, but finally I decided to give it a trial. I am enthusiastically converted. By its use I have overcome the dizziness, sick headaches and constipation that for years were a serious handicap to my health and work."

(Miss Marie Crosby, Enid, Okla.)

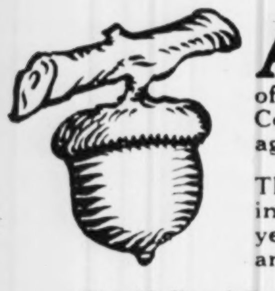
The Acorn of Courage Started the Holland Furnace Company



A LARGE percentage of all the economical and healthful home-heating of today was made possible by Courage—the tremendous courage of one man.

This courage began its effect in American homes seventeen years ago, and has become more and more a power ever since.

The Holland Furnace Company would not be an organization worthy of the name, probably would not now be in existence at all, had it not been for single handed courage.

This advertisement can be taken largely as a tribute to the one man, A. H. Landwehr, who chose a very difficult but worth-while life work to do and then proceeded to develop the simplest means of doing it.

He wanted a difficult thing so that few others would be attempting to do the same thing. And he wanted the simplest way because that is the surest way to succeed—just plain horse-sense.

Courage means more than anything else to every pioneer.

Of course, home-heating did not begin seventeen years ago. A. H. Landwehr was not a pioneer in that sense. He was a pioneer in that he built an organization that could expertly install every individual Holland Heating System that his factories could manufacture.

Only feeble attempts had ever been made to accomplish this much needed result. No man had had the courage to risk the opposition of dealers, even though these plumbers, tinsmiths and hardware men knew themselves that they were not heating engineers. Few of them could ever hope to be for they were too busy with all sorts of other affairs. And few of them, indeed, had backing enough to make a guarantee that would count. That has always been so and always will.

Practically every risk known to business was faced by A. H. Landwehr. Manufacturing and merchandising each present problems enough. But add to this the training and equipping of an army of heating engineers, and financing them, together with their offices and warehouses—men from almost every walk of life. Today there are thousands in this organization, and all because there was courage in one man to step out and do what other men were afraid to undertake, even though it was plainly the right thing to do.

Almost every business day in the year this company refuses to accept orders for Holland Furnaces from people who live where it is not practical for Holland men to make the installation.

The installation is even more important than the furnace itself, and the policy of the Holland Furnace Company is that every Holland customer must be pleased. Therefore, every Holland Furnace that is built must necessarily be installed by Holland expert installers. Every Holland heated home in this country has an influence on the value of every other Holland heated home. We cannot jeopardize our standing with home-owners or with real estate men and builders.

This explains why we cannot permit even a small proportion of our heating systems to be installed by men who are not directly responsible to this concern.

We have nothing but good will for dealers in every line of business. But when we sold furnaces to dealers, prior to seventeen years ago, we learned that a furnace installation could not be sold successfully "over the counter" like so much packaged merchandise. It was at that time that A. H. Landwehr called a positive halt in the affairs of the Holland Furnace Company. It was then that this Company began all alone the development of a complete Home-Heating Service. The result—the largest furnace company in the world—built in only a few years—tells best of all the appreciation of home owners and builders for healthful, economical heating service.

Courage was the seed—the germ—from which all this began. The Holland Guarantee Bond with its three fundamentals, Engineering Experience, Financial Strength, and Moral Character—the bond that guarantees every Holland user, a heating system that is healthful and economical and entirely satisfactory—this too is the outgrowth of a courage that picked a hard worthwhile thing to do and then built an organization to do it.

It will not obligate you in any way to let a Holland man tell you about the Holland Heating System and what it would cost you for your own particular home. It is his business and pleasure to tell you this and his business to be not only a heating expert but a gentleman. You will enjoy talking with a Holland representative.

RULING 35 YEARS OLD IS CITED IN IGOE CONTEST

Divergence of Views of Democrats and Republicans on Decision Shows Intensity of Controversy.

BARRETT'S STAND ANSWERED BY ELY

Attorney for Democrat Says Ex-Attorney General Did Not Fully Quote Opinion in Bowers Case.

An indication of the intensity of the legal controversy which will center about the contest of Mayor-elect Miller's election April 7 by William L. Igoe, defeated Democrat, is found in the divergence of opinions held by Republicans and Democrats on the application of a 35-year-old Missouri Supreme Court decision to the blanket ballot law passed in 1921.

The preliminary discussion of the contest has related to the Democratic charge that the intent of the voter was not considered in the counting of some ballots and the Republican charge of fraud which has not been set out in detail.

The decision in question is that in the case of Bowers vs. Smith over the office of Sheriff of Pettis County in 1890. Bowers asserted that the vote cast in Sedalia should be ignored for the reason that two polling places instead of one were maintained in one precinct. The opinion by former Supreme Court Judge Shepherd Barclay, a St. Louisan, dealt with the manner in which irregularities should be considered.

Contention of Democrats.

The only charge of irregularity which Democrats have made in the present case is that ballots with a cross in the circle above the Republican ticket, with Miller's name scratched and Igoe's written in, were counted for Miller under order of the Election Board, which Chairman George Eigel said was based upon an opinion given the board in 1922 by Attorney-General Barrett.

This order and the ruling upon which it was based was given on the theory that the blanket ballot prohibits writing in the name of any candidate whose name already appears on the printed form. It provides that a voter may scratch a name and write in another if the name so written does not appear on ballot. If it does appear, the proper way to vote for a candidate on another ticket is to place a cross opposite his name.

Democrats assert that such instances as the writing in of Igoe's name and the scratching of Miller clearly manifested the voter's intention of voting for Igoe, regardless of whether he technically complied with the law which provides that to vote the Republican ticket for other offices but for Igoe for Mayor, he should have placed a cross in the circle at the head of the Republican ballot and a cross in the square to the left of Igoe's name on the Democratic ballot.

Comment by Barrett.

"It is the contention of the Democratic legal committee, headed by former Federal Judge Henry S. Priest, that election statutes are mainly advisory and so construed as to give effect to the intent of the voter, "not by technicalities to entrap and unwary and unlettered into the forfeiture of his franchise."

Former Attorney-General Barrett said today that when the Democrats made the assertion that rules made by the Legislature for marking ballots were merely advisory, they forgot that the Legislature went further and declared any other marking should be unlawful. He took the Bowers case and quoted this portion of it:

"If the law itself declared a specified irregularity to be fatal the courts will follow that command, irrespective of their views of the importance of the requirement."

Barrett said that the Democrats wanted the Court to nullify the legislative provisions and "declare lawful that which the Legislature expressly declared should be held unlawful."

The section of the statute Barrett had in mind reads: "It shall not be lawful to deface or tear a ballot in any manner, nor to erase any printed name, except as provided in this section, figure, word or letter therefrom, nor to erase any mark made thereon by such voter nor inclose in the folded ballot any other paper or any article."

Law in Force Four Years.

Barrett said that the Legislature in passing the law was deeply concerned with giving effect to the
